HUGHES ACCLAIMS REPUBLICAN TARIFF

HAILS BUSINESS REVIVAL

Secretary of State, Speaking for Frelinghuysen, Gets Ovation in West Hoboken.

Speaking before an audience that filled to capacity the auditorium of the Hoboken High School at West Hoboken, N. J., Secretary of State Hughes last night called upon the voters of New Jersey to give President Harding a vote of confidence be re-electing United States Senator Joseph S. Frelinghuysen for a second term.

Secretary Hughes declared that the present Republican Administration at Washington had fulfilled every pledge the party made to the people when placed in power two years ago. With the "high minded and sagacious" leadership of Warren G. Harding, Mr. Hughes said, there had been a driving force in the White House under whose impulse business had been revived, unemployment had vanished, taxes had been reduced together with the national debt, and the expenditures of the Federal Government cut almost in two.

Mr. Hughes received a great ovation. His speech was frequently interrupted by applause from a most responsive audience. The meeting was held under the auspices of the Hudson County Republican Committee as part of a drive that is being made during the final week of the campaign to convert what from a Republican viewpoint is the enemy's country" to Senator Frelinghuysen's party. William N. Runyon, Republican nominee for Governor, followed Secretary Hughes and was also warmly received.

Hughes's Address.

Mr. Hughes in his address said:

"It is characteristic of the American people that they are not deceived either by extreme claims or by the unjustified criticism of campaigns attempting to minimize well-known achievements. There is an instinctive regard for their own interests which renders futile mere partisan assault. They know when an Administration has served them well. They test it by the intimate knowledge of conditions which the man in the street has, of productivity and employment, of prosperity and security.

"When this Administration came into power every one was talking of the difficulty, if not the impossibility, of its task. The saddened our friends of the opposing party to think of what we could not do. But we have gone forward so successfully and swiftly with one accomplishment after another that our opponents are compelled to resort to issues which cannot serve them. In every position they take, you will observe that they seek a futile controversy with no promise of achievement; the Administration has sought achievement with a minimum of controversy.

What are the tests?

Revival of Business.

"You wanted the revival of business. You have it. When this Administration took office we were at a low point in industry and business and you needed a life line. The more you looked ahead the more discouraged you were. The future was black and some thought that America must await the recuperation of the entire world before it could get back to know the great change that had been wrought. Instead of operating at less than 60 per cent. of capacity industry is now operating at about 90 per cent. of capacity, which means the top level of useful work, an enormous figure. It may be said that we should not claim too much for Government, and I am the last to desire to do so. But I think you cannot fail to note that the Administration has not stood in the way. You have not had to climb over it to get prosperity. It has helped you to get prosperity.

"You wanted employment. A year and a half ago we had about 5,000,000 unemployed. That presented the greatest problem and created the most serious apprehension—unemployment, poverty and dire distress for a large proportion of the wage-earners of this country. Now we have no problem of unemployment. It has disappeared in increased activity. The serious question confronting business, industry and agriculture is how to get the necessary labor to meet its needs.

Points to Reduced Taxes.

"You wanted reduction in taxes. You have it. Congress has reduced taxes over $800,000,000, reductions which have benefited every one.

"You wanted a reduction in the enormous debt which had been accumulated during and after the war. You have it. The debt has been reduced by over a billion dollars.

"You wanted economy in Government. You wanted to stop the wasteful and extravagant expenditure which the country could not stand. It has been stopped and strict economy enforced. For the year ending June 30, 1920, our public expenditures aggregated $6,403,000,000; a year later, $5,115,020,000; for the year 1922, $3,371,607,000.

"You wanted protection for American industry. You have it. This country has never been willing to abandon the protective policy, an diet it not be forgotten that the fundamental difference between the two parties has been whether we shall have a protective policy. You cannot get adequate protection to American industry from a Democratic Administration. On the other hand, if you wish to know what Democratic business men really think of the tariff now established, read the letter which John H. Kirby, leading Democrat, President of the Southern Tariff Association, has addressed to President Harding.

Quotes Southern Democrat.

"He represents an association composed largely of Democrats in the South, without which the Democratic Party could not function, and he says: 'There are doubtless inequalities and discriminations in the law recently enacted—to think otherwise would be to assume human infallibility—but we have come as Southerners, the representatives of industry in a loyal and trmendously important section of our common country, to say to you that in our judgment the Fordney-McCumber tariff measure is, as a whole, a just measure and capable of promoting thrift throughout the land and the contentment and happiness of our people everywhere.' He adds that when the emergency tariff act was passed under the present Administration 'the provisions of that law put their industries upon their feet in the sense that they were able to survive, and in the passage of the final act the door of hope has been opened,' for which these leading Democrats expressed their grateful acknowledgment to the President and the Congress.

"The most important point, however, as I view it, not being an expert in tariff schedules, is that provision has been made for needed elasticity, so that without the delays and uncertainties incident to a new tariff measure an expert body constantly giving the most intelligent attention to the problem can advise the President of changes in conditions and by appropriate executive action these can appropriately be met by changes in rates.

Discusses Foreign Affairs.

"You wanted an American policy in foreign affairs. You desired adequate protection of American interests abroad; freedom from being enmeshed in European policies and rivalries into which we never ought to be drawn; you wished a candid and direct diplomacy which did not promise what it could not perform and did not threaten where it did not intend to execute. This you have had.

"You wanted peace. For when this Administration took office, strange as it may seem, we were still at war. We would have been debating yet had we continued the old controversy, but the country wanted peace. The commercial interests of the country depended upon peace, and we made peace, without sacrificing our interests or detracting from the interests of those with whom we had been associated in the war. Within a few months the treaties were negotiated and ratified with Germany and Austria and Hungary and peaceful relations resumed.

"We have given the best of our cooperation. In the Far East there is a new atmosphere of mutual respect and confidence, instead of suspicion and apprehension. We were highly privileged to be able to promote the settlement of the Shantung controversy between China and Japan. We have stopped the competition in naval armament, bringing the great powers together in the happiest co-operation that has taken place since the war.

Latin-American Situation.

"In Latin America we have been constantly endeavoring to facilitate stability and peaceful adjustments. In almost every country American money is being invested to help productive enterprise. Throughout the world it is recognized we have simple, direct policies of equality of opportunity and maintenance of American rights. It is recognized that America's policy in seeking to conserve our own interests is not endeavoring to exploit others.

"Thus we are putting our house in order, reducing expenses, stopping wasteful outlays, maintaining sound principles of international intercourse. We are desirous to aid in every proper way in the economic recuperation of Europe, but we cannot do for Europe what is wholly within European control, and Europe must do for itself.

"How have the beneficent results to which I have referred been obtained? By singleness and inflexibility of purpose. When the Washington conference was called it was at once demanded that we should make the vain endeavor to reform the world. We thought our task as defined in the call of the conference quite sufficient and had we not thought so it would not have been accomplished in such large measure. You cannot get anywhere unless you begin somewhere. Whatever we have attempted our friends in opposition have insisted that we should do something else involving ourselves in fruitless controversies. That has been their mistake, and but for that mistake a large part of our troubles would never have come upon us.

Praises President.

"Government is not an impersonal matter. It is not a Government of men, but it is a Government through men. The explanation of the success of the Administration is, first, that you have had the high-minded, sagacious leadership of Warren G. Harding, the President of the United States. The hardest thing in administration is to stop waste and secure economy. You cannot do this unless the head of the Government supplies the driving force. Under this Administration that power has been supplied unceasingly, and there can be no higher tribute paid to the President than lies in the fact that against every sort of appeal and every insidious influence he has insisted upon the reduction of governmental outlays and has succeeded in the most difficult task that could have fallen to the lot of an executive. You have had his co-operation with Congress and the co-operation of Congress with him in abundant measure. And then there has been the constant and faithful co-operation of public servants, such as has been given by Senator Frelinghuysen, whose candidacy is before you. His experience in affairs, indefatigability and intimate knowledge of what American prosperity demands has been of the greatest aid to the Administration. He is energy personified, and his intelligent industry has been unremitting.

"Administration under our form of Government is not successfully represented by the single man in armor challenging to battle all other departments of Government. He is represented by the leader in co-operative effort, and as we pay our just tribute of appreciation and esteem to the leadership of the President, so we invite confidence in those who have faithfully worked with him and made success possible."

LONDON'S ELECTION TODAY.

Holders of 1,362 Seats in 28 Borough Councils Will Be Named.

LONDON, Oct. 31 (Associated Press).—The liveliest local political campaign London has known in many years came to an end today, and tomorrow several million men and one million women living in the city will have an opportunity to vote at the municipal elections. They must select holders of 1,362 seats on the twenty-eight Borough Councils which constitute the local Government of London.

Among other things, this local Government controls the expenditure of the taxpayers' money, and, because the boroughs now ruled by the Socialist Party are groaning under taxes of 80 per cent. above those fixed in the other boroughs, the campaign fight is particularly bitter.

The high expenditures complained against induced a combination of municipal reformers and progressive taxpayers to pit their candidates against the Laborites, under whose banner the Socialists and Communists are waging their campaign. This has made the issue a clear-cut one between economy and extravagance.

There are 2,500 candidates for the 1,362 seats. One thousand candidates are Laborites and the remaining 1,500 are running on the economy platform. Since the new borough councilors will control the income from taxes of nearly £30,000,000, the constituencies are being flooded with demands that every elector go to the polls and eliminate extravagance and defeat the Socialist danger. In some of the labor centres Socialists and Communists, gathered under the red flag, have systematically broken up meetings of their opponents and prevented the holding of others.

FRENCH ARE BITTER OVER HUGHES SPEECH

SEE PEACE PLAN IMPEDED

By Attacks Upon Turks Which They Attribute to the American Secretary of State.

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Oct. 31.—Secretary Hughes sent to Paris yesterday a note saying what he expected the French to get their friends, the Turks, to do at Lausanne. On the same day in a speech in Boston he is reported to have accused the French, with other European powers, of playing checkers in the Near East and to have called the Turks assassins and murderers. [No such characterization of the Turks occurs in the reports of Secretary Hughes's Boston speech as published in this country.] Whatever reception Mr. Hughes's words had in Boston, they have had a very unfortunate reception in Paris.

The Turks have just won a war. They think themselves great victors. The French are their patrons. Not having troops at Chanak or anywhere else in that neighborhood, what the Americans may get from the Turks at the peace conference will depend on what France and England persuade the Turks to do.

The French Government is of the opinion that Mr. Hughes's note on the Turkish conference, coupled with his Boston speech, constitute a demonstration which not only renders more difficult the task of the Allies in making a general settlement with the Turks but lessens the chances of the United States getting what it wants from the Ottomans.

American Proposals Approved.

M. Poincaré's Government regards the program of five points as laid down in the Hughes note as perfect. Protection of minorities, freedom of commerce and liberty of the Straits is what the European nations are seeking. It is also what they have been seeking for many generations in Turkey, and what they have not yet got. In view of the excellence of the American proposals, the Quai d'Orsay regards it as unfortunate that Mr. Hughes declines for the Washington Government all responsibility in the work of trying to put his high aims into effect at Lausanne.

The Quai d'Orsay regrets that after Mr. Hughes had laid down a program of what the Allies must persuade the Turks to do—since it is not to be a dictated treaty—he in his Boston speech branded the Turks as assassins. Without criticising the motives of the Secretary, French diplomats express the opinion that his calling the Turks murderers and rascals will not make any easier the task of leading the Turks out of their way to satisfy American wishes.

The Quai d'Orsay recognises the strength of the technical American reason for not sending plenipotentiaries to Lausanne, namely, that the United States was not at war with Turkey, and it does not combat the view of the American Government that its interests are as much entitled to consideration as those of any other Government; but it regrets that the United States is not ready to go further than a pious Christian wish to obtain its desires, for the reason it has been the experience of European diplomats that pious Christian wishes do not go far with the Turks, and, above all, at times when, like the present, they are flushed with victory over a Christian army.

The French cannot repress a certain cynicism over the situation in which the spokesman of the American Government accuses them of playing a questionable game of checkers in the Orient, and then lays upon their shoulders the task of carrying out a program pleasing to the great creditor nation. For they reason that, if Mr. Hughes's program doesn't amount to a request, it would amount to dictation, which they could not believe to be the intention of Washington.

"I give this sketch as showing the attitude of the French Government. Had Mr. Hughes's note stood by itself it might have had a better reception. But it must be borne in mind that the French have to a large extent made common cause with the Turks. If it is true that the Allies have been playing a game in the Near East, it is true that the French have been betting on the Turks, and, therefore, irrespective of Secretary Hughes's remarks, to call the Turks assassins and at the same moment ask the French to get a lot of concessions from them might be called, in the words of Mr. Lloyd George to the Russians, "true enough, but not diplomacy."

Caustic Comment in the Temps.

The Temps in a leading article tonight expresses well the impression given generally at the Quai d'Orsay of the Foreign Office's view of the attitude of the United States.

"The Government of the United States spoke yesterday on the Near East," it says. "It spoke its opinion in two forms. On the one hand it handed a note to the Entente powers which had invited it to the peace conference. On the other hand Secretary Hughes laid down his ideas on Turkey in a speech in Boston.

"Every manifestation of American policy has naturally the right to our most attentive and most amicable study. But we believe we would not be friends if we failed to be frank. And frankness obliges us to observe that the two manifestations of yesterday are not in perfect accord.

"In his Boston speech Mr. Hughes strongly attacked the Turks, whom he reproached for all sorts of cruelties. In addition he repeated that the United States did not intend to intervene in the discussions of the Near East.

"The European powers," he said, "have made of the Levant a diplomatic checkerboard. 'We have no intention of mixing in these rivalries.' In his short speech Mr. Hughes oscillates between probation and absention.

"In the note which the United States Government delivered to the Entente powers yesterday we find the clear wish not to intrvene in Near Eastern discussions. But if we read further we find that the American note contains a complete peace programa program which the Turks are to be got to sign. The American note deals with the capitulations, the open door, the freedom of the Straits, the protection of minorities, and so on. In short, this note oscillates between abstention and injunction. Whatever opinion one has on the ideas expressed in the name of the United States, they certainly do not agree.

"If the Washington Government considers the Turks as murderers and the Allies as checker-players; if it refuses to associate in the negotiations or share the responsibilities, how does it expect to get its peace program adopted? After what Mr. Hughes has just said in Boston he apparently does not hope that the Turks will give him satisfaction by a spontaneous movement of sympathy and gratitude.

"And then he was careful to add: 'The President of the United States has no power to throw his country into war, even a holy war.' This, then, means that it is not by force that he intends to get what he wants. Then what help does the American Government offer to the European powers, who are to try to make the American program triumph in the conference where America will have only a simple observer?

Says Christians Burned Smyrna.

"And how could the European powers negotiate with the Turks if they used the words of Mr. Hughes to make his program prevail? The American Secretary of State accuses the Turks of having committed atrocities. Without doubt he entirely forgets that the testimony received by French authorities obliges us to attribute the burning of Smyrna to Christians, and not to Mussulmans. If Mr. Hughes had ever had an opportunity himself to study the customs of the different populations of the Orient and the workings as well of Greek propaganda his legal mind would better discern the truth.

What Secretary Hughes Said.

The accounts of Mr. Hughes Bostoin speech published in this country do not contain the words "assassins" and "murderers" applied to the Turks. The principal passage referring to the artocities in Anatolia, and the strongest in its language, is the following:

"The most acute questions at the moment concern the Near East. The Christian world has been filled with horror at the atrocities committed in Anatolia, especially in connection with the burning of Smyrna, rivaled only by the wholesale massacres and deportations of the Armenians in 1915.

"While nothing can excuse in the slightest degree or palliate the acts of barbaric cruelty of the Turks, no just appraisement can be made of the situation which fails to take account of the incursion of the Greek Army into Anatolia, of the war there waged, and of the terrible incidents of the retreat of that army, in the burning of towns and general devastation and cruelties, which in war has been the scene of savagery."

of them they will be dismissed. This new régime will be hard for many of them, but they must realize that times have changed."

Mussolini also outlined the main points of his policy. As to internal affairs, it may be summed up in three words: "Discipline, economy, sacrifice." Mussolini said.

"I have not reached my present position by holding forth visions of an easy paradise, as the Socialists did. All will be ruled with an iron hand. It must be a wonderful testimonial to the patriotism and common sense of Italians that the Fascisti with such a program have the backing of an overwhelming majority of the country. Of course, they will be better off in the end, but our policy will not bear fruit for some time, and in the meanwhile there is going to be suffering."

On being asked by THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent what were the more specific points in his policy, he answered:

"First of all, the country must be pacified. The people must be made to understand that laws are passed in order to be observed. Lawlessness has reigned such a long time in Italy that the task will be difficult.

"Either the people will understand the need for pacification of their own accord or (here flash came into his eye) I will make them understand it.

"The second most important need is to balance the budget. The country must be placed on a paying basis. We are now paying billions yearly for running the railroads, posts, telegraph and telephone and we are paying these huge sums for running them badly. This must cease. Either the Government can run them well and show a profit, or the Government must give them up.

"Besides, by throwing all the youthful enthusiasm of the Fascisti, which has hitherto been used in fighting the Communists, into the paths of peace, we hope to inject so much pep into the country that there will be increased prosperity.

"The country had got tired. It had been running in a groove too long. We are going to shake it up, wake it—make it realize that it is alive."

Legions Enter in Triumph.

ROME, Oct. 31 (Associated Press).—One hundred thousand well disciplined Fascisti marched through Rome from north to south today to the plaudits of a million Italian citizens gathered in the capital from all parts of the kingdom.

Their commander, Mussolini, was the central figure of the procession. Like the others who walked behind, the leader wore the black shirt of the organization. He was bare-headed and in a buttonhole was the Fascisti badge, while on his sleeve were several stripes showing that he had been wounded in the war.

Mussolini was surrounded by his general staff, including Signor Bianchi, de Vecchi, a number of generals and several Fascisti Deputies. He walked with a firm step the entire four miles to the disbanding point.

The day broke clear and fine, with one of Italy's brightest suns lighting the way to Borghese Park as the Fascisti troops, abroad early, proceeded up the Pincian Hill, from Tivoli, Santa Marinella and other places on the outskirts of the city, where they had been camping the last three days.

Big Parade Forms in Park.

"It is a Fascismo sun," said a sturdy young black-shirted peasant from the plains of Piedmont as he led the Piedmont contingent into Borghese Park, where 15,000 Fascisti, representing all the province of the Kingdom, from Northern Venetia and Lombardy to Southern Calabria and Sicily, assembled.

With military precision they formed and automatically fell into the places assigned to them—dark-visaged youths, with set, determined faces, upon which shone the light of victory, all wearing the black shirt. The rest of their equipment varied from skull caps to soft felt hats and steel helmets—some of them were without hats—and nondescript trousers, multi-colored socks and shoes that ranged from topboots to dancing pumps. They were armed only with riding crops and bludgeons, one man from Ancona swinging a baseball bat.

Briskly they swung into line to the tunes of innumerable bands, the Roman contingent leading the way along the Pincian Hill Road to the Piazza del Popolo and to the Porta del Popolo, through the Gate of the People into the People's Square, then marched down the Corso Umberto, Rome's main street, lined with flags.

Every window was filled with Romans cheering, some showering flowers upon the passing blackshirts, while those in the streets saluted straight-armed from the shoulder, with hands extended toward the west.

Through the heart of the city the procession continued, the youths never looking to the right or left, and acknowledging the acclamations and cheers only by singing Fascisti marching songs. Thus they reached the monument of Victor Emmanuel and the tomb of the unknown soldier.

At the tomb each contingent, with banners flying, halted before the imposing monument; then two men from each contingent, one bearing a huge palm, the other a bouquet of flowers, ascended the steps leading to the tomb and deposited them upon it until it was lost to sight beneath a mass of bloom. The first wreath placed on the tomb was carried by a veteran Garibaldian, nearly a hundred years old, who was assisted up the steps by two youths whose combined ages totalled less than half his own.

Paraded Before the King.

On departing from the tomb the Fascisti proceeded at double-quick up the steep Cesare Battisti Hill to the Quirinal, where the king appeared on the balcony. He stood at salute, as each continent arrived the flag was dipped, as before the tomb of the unknown soldier. The King received a great ovation from the assembled multitude.

The Fascisti reformed and marched directly to the station, where fifty trains, capable of transporting from 500 to 1,000 soldiers each, had been held in readiness since morning in accordance with the demobilization order that "every soldier must be on his way home before nightfall."

A feature of the day was the absence of speeches, the Fascisti leaders having decided, as one of them put it, that they are men of action, not words.

The crush around the tomb of the unknown soldier was so great that many women and some soldiers fainted. They were attended promptly by Fascisti ambulances.

Fully a million people lined the concourse from Borghese Park to the railroad station, or nearly twice the population of Rome, many of them coming from as far north as Venice and others from Sicily. Airplanes hovered overhead for most of the day, dropping Fascisti manifestos. Frequently the crowds were stampeded in efforts to pick up the pamphlets.

Groups of Fascisti today invaded the homes of former Premier Nitti, Count Valpi, Deputy Nicola Bombacci, the Communist leader, and Arturo Labriola, the Socialist ex-Minister. Socialist literature and other pamphlets were confiscated. Signor Nitti is absent in Southern Italy.

A band of Ancona Fascisti, led by Casare Rossi, broke into the home of Deputy Mingrino, commander of the Communist Red Guards, last night. The invaders seized all the documents they could find, sequestered forty hand grenades and threw the furniture into the street. Then they set fire to the furniture.

Eight Killed, Twenty-five Wounded.

Clashes occurred in several parts of the city between groups of Fascisti and isolated bands of Communists. Early tonight the casualties were placed at eight killed and about twenty-five wounded. One fight, in which several shots were exchanged, took place near the Vatican. Some of the bullets went over the Vatican wall, but no damage was reported.

A communiqué issued by the Commander of the Roman Legion announces that by Premier Mussolini's instructions any action taken by the Fascisti, either collectively or individually, which is directed against Communists or persons presumed to be Communists will be repressed with the utmost severity and the responsible leaders prosecuted and punished in an exemplary manner.

Mussolini has sent a message to the British Prime Minister, Bonar Law, and the French Premier, M. Poincaré, announcing his accession to the Premiership as "the representative of Italian ideals born at Vittoria Veneto." The message conveys cordial greetings and assurances of solidarity among the allied nations, which, Mussolini says, "I regard as indispensable for the effectiveness of their political action."

Stands For Policy of Expansion.

Whatever the outcome may be when the new Cabinet goes before the Chamber of Deputies, there is general agreement that the new Premier has gathered about him a Cabinet exceptionally strong from the Nationalist standpoint, comprising a body of men who were leaders of Italy in the great war and the outstanding protagonists for Italy's territorial claims in the peace.

Mussolini brings with his Ministry a well-defined foreign policy, the cornerstone of which is expansion. The Fascisti Party, ever since its inception a year ago, has preached the extension of Italy's territorial claims. When former Premier Giolitti ordered the evacuation of Albania by Italian troops the Fascisti sent up a cry of protest against the veteran statesman, burning him in effigy and hurling stinging epithets against him in hostile demonstrations.

The new Premier himself has declared that the Mediterranean is an Italian lake, and he advocates complete control of that waterway by Italy. The claim of Greece for the Dodecanese Islands was always bitterly contested in Fascisti councils.

Total repudiation of all Soviets has been a constant cry among Fascisti. When the Russian commercial mission arrived in Rome in 1921 their rooms were broken into and their baggage ransacked by Fascisti, who contended for no negotiations in any form with the Soviets.

Domestic Policy in Doubt.

In their domestic policy the aims of the Fascisti have not been so clearly defined. Indeed, it has been constantly maintained by their opponents that they had no domestic policy. One thing, however, has stood pre-eminent in all their domestic actions, namely, their hostility to the Extreme Socialists and Communists.

They have defiantly fought the strike in any form. Wherever and whenever strikes have been declared they have strained every effort to keep industry going.

Communism has been rendered almost helpless in Italy by the onslaught of the Fascisti. The militant Nationalists have carried their battle into the labor temples and meeting places of their antagonists. They have seized the records and rosters and burned them, and on many occasions even set fire to the buildings. The Fascisti, however, have manifested strong friendship for the laborers, provided the latter became Nationalists and embraced the Fascisti principles.

Besides the strength which comes to the Government with the appointment of General Diaz and Admiral Thaon di Revel to Cabinet positions there is an accompanying assurance of stability with other appointments. Professor Einaudi, the Minister of the Treasury, is distinguished for being one of the foremost Italian economists. Signor Rossi, the Minister of Industry, is a manufacturer and has held Cabinet positions previously. He was one of the chief advisers to the Italian Government in the Genoa Conference.

D'Annunzio Aid in Cabinet.

Another member who gives considerable weight to the new Cabinet is Deputy Giuriati. He was Gabriele d'Annunzio's Chief of Cabinet during the poet's occupation of Fiume, and previously distinguished himself during the World War. He has been a stanch supporter of Mussolini since the inauguration of the Fascisti Party.

While the Cabinet is composed of strong personalities, there is always the question of support in the Chamber. It remains for the Catholics to announce their program when the Chamber opens next week. If they are pleased with the selections and will give their support, it would seem that sufficient strength could be counted on from the various other constitutional parties to render the Ministry stable.

In taking the portfolios of Foreign Affairs and the Interior in addition to the Premiership Mussolini occupies the posts which mean most for the Fascisti sphere of action. By occupying the Foreign Office he can put forth the policy which has again and again been enunciated by his party—that of expansion. By being Minister of the Interior he controls the police force and will be able to manoeuvre the various public instruments for the maintenance of order in accordance with the program of his party.

Moderate Socialists Barred.

It appears that the original plan attributed to Mussolini to have two Moderate Socialists in the Cabinet was strongly opposed by other Fascisti leaders, so that Gino Baldesi and Bruno Buozzi, two of the leading figures in the co-operative movement in Italy, were not included in the new government.

With Signor Mussolini, the new Ministry, according to the latest classifications, comprises five Fascisti, two Catholics, three Democrats, one Nationalist and one Liberal, with the addition of General Diaz and Vice Admiral Thaon di Revel, who, being Senators, and also belonging, respectively, to the army and the navy, are not assigned to any special party.

Commenting on the new situation the Giornale di Roma says:—

"Italy has now a Government of national concentration under a strong man who has shown he can keep wonderful control over himself and who possesses a sense of moderation, which is an essential quality in a statesman. The new Government has a prestige such as no former Goverament ever had."

The newspaper favorably mentions the manifesto of the Federation of Industry supporting the Fascisti Government and concludes with an exhortation to all Italians to return to work.

The Messaggero in its comment says: "Fascism is an affirmation of life, and a revival, and foreigners must recognize this elementary truth if they wish to judge Italy rightly. We are glad to see such eminent men in the Cabinet and expect to witness the reorganization of all branches of the national life."

MUSSOLINI WEARS HIS FIRST FROCK COAT

Has a Try-On While Waiting to Visit King—Once Arrested as a Vagabond.

ROME, Oct. 31 (Associated Press).—Premier Mussolini summoned his Cabinet early this morning to proceed to take the oath of office before the King.

"Everybody must wear a frock coat and top hat," the Premier told each Minister. Turning to his secretary he asked to be supplied himself with these articles of apparel. "I have never possessed either one," he remarked.

Half an hour later he was trying on various sizes of ready-made frock coats, and shortly afterward he was fully equipped to meet the King formally.

King Victor Emmanuel received the Cabinet members in a cordial, earnest way. Premier Mussolini was the first to take the oath of office. He stood rigidly at attention before the King, surrounded by the Ministers.

Accounts of Mussolini's appearance before the King on Monday, when he went to consult on the formation of the Cabinet, are bringing out some picturesque details. Mussolini was wearing his Fascisti uniform, and his first words to the King were: "I must apologize for coming before your Majesty in my black shirt."

Mussolini, who also wore a Sam Brown belt, puttees and a sash of the Fiume colors, added that he wished to present himself as representative of the national movement which had overthrown all obstacles in order to reconstruct the country, "for which purpose," he went on, "I am your Majesty's obedient servant."

The King and Signor Mussolini both pledged themselves to work together for the advancement of Italy.

The impression given by the new Premier is essentially one of strength. Mussolini's chin may become famous throughout the world for its squareness and force. He smiles rarely, speaks slowly, says little, but speaks without hesitation on anything which arouses his interest, and looks far younger than his years. He answers exactly the description of him given by an American, "A Napoleon turned pugilist."

GENEVA, Oct. 31 (Associated Press).—Benito Mussolini, whose spectacular rise to the Italian Premiership has excited worldwide interest, spent an exciting few years in Switzerland during his youth.

His entrance into this country was dramatic. He was pursued over the frontier at Chiasso by Italian gendarmes, who had a warrant for his arrest, but won his race for freedom by a scant hundred yards and the Swiss custom officers refused to surrender him.

Mussolini at that time was about 20 years old. Penniless, he crossed the St. Gothard Pass on foot, and upon his arrival in Lucerne was arrested as a vagabond without visible means of support. Political friends, however, came to his aid.

Later he entered the University of Lausanne, but as he was a revolutionary Socialist, and wrote many fiery articles for the Swiss and Italian Socialist press he was finally expelled from Switzerland, after several police warnings which he refused to heed.

Mussolini then went to Trent, in the old Austrian Tyrol, whence he was also expelled in 1911. Upon the declaration of a general amnesty he left for Milan, where he founded the newspaper Popolo Italia.

He aroused the hatred of the Socialists in the conduct of his paper, however, by his campaign in favor of Italy's entrance into the World War on the side of the Entente, and later fought with the Italian forces at Monte Nero and at Carso, where he was severely wounded.

SFORZA QUITS AS ENVOY.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Oct. 31.—Count Sforza, the Italian Ambassador at Paris, sent today his resignation to Premier Mussolini, with whose policy he is not in entire agreement.

In a telegram to the new Government announcing his decision the Ambassador wishes all success to the Administration, but adds that, in his opinion, such an important post as that of Italian Ambassador to France should not be held by any one who is not in entire agreement on every point with his Government.

Count Sforza was himself Foreign Minister of Italy three years ago. In France his work since he came as Ambassador has been regarded as of the greatest service in improving the relations of the two peoples.

PARIS, Oct. 31 (Associated Press).—Count Sforza has telegraphed his resignation as Italian Ambassador at Paris to Premier Mussolini. He explains that in his view the new Government should have in such posts men in thorough accord with its policies.

"I express for the new Government the most cordial good wishes," the Ambassador's telegram read, "but in a foreign policy which is really a policy and not simply a group of likes and dislikes everything is interdependent, and men who in all subjects are in accord with the ideas of the new Government should occupy these most delicate posts.

"With sadness at relinquishing here a work that I know to be fruitful, and which I am confident will be continued, but convinced of the necessity of taking this action, I send you my resignation as Ambassador to France. I am ready to leave immediately or to await the new Ambassador, if his Majesty's Government so prefers."

Count Sforza later called on Premier Poincaré, whom he told of his decision to leave.

The question of Tunis, which Premier Mussolini says is the first that must be settled between France and Italy, is the same as that which caused Great Britain's protest to the Council of the League of Nations, and which, by agreement between Leon Bourgeois and the Earl of Balfour, was referred to the Permanent Court of International Justice at The Hague.

It involves the right of immigrants in Tunis to retain their original nationality. The French Government, much worried by the continual increase in immigration which threatened to submerge the French and native population, and desiring to prevent the development of troublesome ethnological claims there, issued a decree naturalising those immigrants permanently settled in the country. Both Great Britain and Italy protested and the former took the matter before the League of Nations, with the result stated.

Confidence is expressed in French circles that this question will be settled with Italy without serious difficulty, since it is expected that the Rome Government will be willing to abide by the decision of the International Court in Great Britain's case.

It is said at the Foreign Office that there is no apprehension on any other score, as Italy abandoned her claim to a sphere of influence in Tunis subsequent to the proclamation of the French Protectorate.

The census of March, 1921, in Tunis showed the total European population of the country to be 156,115, of whom 54,476 were French (exclusive of the army of occupation and the navy) and 84,790 Italians.

SWISS WATCHFUL OF TICINO.

Recall Mussolini's Reported Wish to Annex It to Italy.

GENEVA, Oct. 31 (Associated Press).—The Swiss Government is carefully watching the Fascisti movement in Italy, as, since his accession to the premiership, considerable importance is attached to Mussolini's recent reported declaration that the Swiss Canton of Ticino should become a part of Greater Italy if the Fascisti assumed power.

Ticino, which is on the Italian slope of the Alps, contains a large Italian population, and originally belonged to Italy, by whom it was held until 1512. The Swiss precautions have not yet extended to the movement of any military forces.

The Canton of Ticino is almost entirely mountainous, but the district raises considerable crops of wheat, maize, rye and tobacco, and exports wine and silk. The transit trade between the Canton and Italy is considerable. Its principal towns are Bellinzona, Lugano and Locarno. The population exceeds 100,000.

HYLAN ASSAILS RIEDL STORY OF BUS BRIBE

Shearn Says Witness Has Been Approached—Tells Mayor Jury Will Sift Entire Matter.

Mayor Hylan yesterday attempted to discredit the testimony given on Monday before the Transit Commission by Louis Riedl, who charged that he was prevented from operating buses under a permit from the Board of Estimate after he had refused to pay $25,000 demanded for the "Big Chief" by Daniel O'Connor, whom Riedl described as a Brooklyn Democratic politician.

The Mayor declared that Riedl's testimony was a political move on the part of George McAneny, Chairman of the commission, and Clarence J. Shearn, its special counsel, and said that the testimony should be discredited because Riedl at a hearing before the old Public Service Commission in 1919 admitted that he had failed in attempting to start bus operation and had said nothing at that time about O'Connor's demand for money.

In a reply to Mayor Hylan, Judge Shearn said that Mr. Riedl had no opportunity to tell his bribe story before the Public Service Commission. Judge Shearn said he was convinced of the truth of Riedl's story, and added that since he volunteered to testify he had been shadowed by detectives and had been approached by a man who misrepresented himself as coming for Judge Shearn in an effort to learn how far he intended to go.

"Big Chief" Not an Official.

Little progress was made during the day in corroborating Mr. Riedl's story, or in establishing the identity of the "Big Chief," although that was said to be known to Judge Shearn and the members of the commission. It was intimated that this man was not a political leader but an official.

Agents of the commission were reported to be searching for the man who, Riedl said, heard one of the talks between him and O'Connor. Riedl furnished Judge Shearn a description of this desired witness, but said he did not know his name.

It was established yesterday that O'Connor is dead. Announcement was made by Assistant Commissioner of Public Works Joseph Fennelly of Brooklyn, described by Riedl as a friend of O'Connor, who said that O'Connor was a man of high character and that his friends would not believe Riedl's testimony. Mayor Hylan said:

Statement From the Mayor.

In his comment on Mr. Riedl's testimony, Mayor Hylan said

"The testimony adduced yesterday before the higher fare Transit Commission by $60,000 a year Counsellor Shearn from a discredited and irresponsible witness, shows to what depth McAneny and his associates have sunk in their effort to discredit city bus operation and to save their candidate, Governor Miller, from defeat.

"I am not amazed that Shearn and McAneny should stoop to this, because they are evidently willing to try to put over anything before Election Day. It is more amazing, however, because right under their very nose in the office of the Transit Commission, is the record and testimony of Reidl, which itself gives the lie to the story he swore to yesterday.

"Reidl was a witness before the Transit Commission on Dec. 18, 1919, and thirty-two pages of testimony were taken from him with reference to his failure to undertake bus operation in this city on Sept. 20, 1919, as he had promised city officials he would do. He was examined by the commission's counsel at that time, and not one word did he mention then that any one suggested or attempted to solicit a perquisite or a bribe from him in return for the permit for bus operation which he received from the Board of Estimate.

"Riedl in his testimony three years ago admitted that he had a grievance against Commissioner Whalen. Mr. Whalen had started bus operation where Reidl had failed. The full story of Reidl's attempt to start bus operation and of his deception of the Board of Estimate, Commissioner Guider in Brooklyn, and Mr. McCollum, Chief of the Franchise Bureau of the Board of Estimate, is best told in a report submitted by Mr. McCollum on Sept. 23, 1919, only four days after Reidl's failure.

Asked Aid From Newark Mayor.

"In this report Mr. McCollum says that on Sept. 16, 1919, he undertook, through Mr. Guider, negotiations with Mr. Riedl to begin operation at noon on the 20th. Riedl obtained from the Board of Estimate the permit for this operation, and on the morning of the 19th Mr. McCollum asked Riedl if he would be ready to start the next day. Riedl told him that he had buses stored under the Williamsburg Bridge ready to begin operation. Mr. McCollum investigated this statement and found it to be untrue—that there was not a single bus under the Williamsburg Bridge or anywhere on hand for this purpose.

"Commissioner Whalen, who had been out of town during these preliminaries, returned at this time and Mr. McCollum took the matter up with him. Instead of depending on Riedl, who had completely fallen down, they got in touch by telephone with Mayor Gillen of Newark, explained the situation to him and urged him to aid the City of New York to start buses the following day. Commissioner Whalen and Mr. McCollum went to Newark, and, with the personal assistance of Mayor Gillen, they obtained sufficient buses to begin operation at 6 o'clock the following morning.

"Riedl never made good, and the permit for bus operation was withdrawn from him. He no doubt became sore at Commissioner Whalen because of Mr. Whalen's success and his own personal failure.

"If what Riedl now says is true, that some one suggested to him that the privilege of temporary bus operation extended by the Board of Estimate and subsequently revoked, was worth any sum of money to any one, why did he not tell it to city officials, to the Transit Commission or to the District Attorney of any county in which the suggestion or request may have been made? Why did he not tell it to the Meyer committee, to the Almirall Grand Jury or to the Whitman Grand Jury? Why did he not tell it to one of the traction newspapers that was pounding the city Administration?

"It is evident that the story he told yesterday is utterly false and that he told it solely for political effect to a Transit Commission hostile to the city Administration. I am not surprised that Counselor Shearn and Commissioner McAneny should stoop to this low conduct, because they have shown that they will do anything to mislead the public in an effort to help elect their candidate, Governor Miller, who created the commission and appointed them to lucrative office."

Shearn Replies to the Mayor.

In his reply to the Mayor, Judge Shearn said:

"The explanation of the circumstances surrounding the sudden and peculiar termination of the Riedl bus franchise, put forth by Mayor Hylan on behalf of the parties involved in Riedl's testimony yesterday, concerning blackjacking and bribe solicitation, would be much more persuasive if all of the various officials who are immediately concerned would sign waivers of immunity and take the witness stand.

"Whether the parties involved in Riedl's testimony are guilty of graft, and [illegible] Mr. Riedl under oath is true can best be determined when all the corroborating evidence is in. In most of its essential details the testimony of Mr. Riedl is readily susceptible of corroboration if it is true, and of disproof if it is untrue. Everything will be done to sift this matter to the bottom, so far as the limited powers of the commission suffice. In any event, District Attorney Banton will be able to get to the bottom of the scandal with the fearless aid of a Grand Jury.

"No reason is apparent to me why Mr. Riedl should voluntarily come forward, as he did, and tell this sordid story. Indeed, it can only result, so far as he is concerned, in disagreeable publicity and persecution. Since he first rang me up and offered to testify, telling me that the disclosures of graft that were being made daily at the Transit Commission's inquiry made him feel that it was his duty to tell me of his own personal experience, he has been constantly shadowed by detectives. This shows that somebody knew that he was a menace, and might become a witness.

"The parties involved even went to the extent of sending a man to him last week, who misrepresented himself as coming from me, and tried to worm a statement out of him which would indicate to them how far he would go if called as a witness. These occurrences fortify my belief in the essential truth of his statement to me.

"I notice that the point is made that Mr. Riedl was called as a witness in a proceeding before Public Service Commissioner Lewis Nixon in December, 1919, and that although questioned concerning his readiness and ability to furnish the buses required for operation under his revoked franchise, he made no mention of any attempt to collect graft from him.

"I have just run through the testimony, and observe that the hearing had nothing to do with the motives that led to the sudden rescinding of his franchise, and that no questions whatever were put to him on this subject. In fact the attempt to question him at all was made with a storm of objections from the Corporation Counsel. The hearing had to do with the operation of buses on Eighth Avenue in Brooklyn, and Commissioner Nixon answered the objections of the Corporation Counsel by stating:

"'There is no fishing excursion here, as far as I am concerned. It is with the kindest feelings in every direction. I wanted to know whether he did, or did not have the facilities for carrying this matter on.'

"Obviously an examination conducted with tender feelings for everyone concerned, and merely directed to the question of whether or not Riedl had the facilities for carrying out his contract was not one calculated to bring out disclosures of graft. I shall read into evidence Riedl's full testimony before Commissioner Nixon, and all who are interested may then readily compare it with his testimony given yesterday and see whether there is any essential discrepancy.

"Let me repeat that it is highly preferable that all having explanations to offer in this unsavory matter should voluntarily take the witness stand instead of issuing statements."

TRACE HIGH FARE BUS PERMIT TO 'BIG CHIEF'

fare, which he said was 5 cents less than once charged by a predecessor company, was continued until August, when Mr. Whalen established a zone system with a fare of 10 cents for each zone.

It also was brought out that the Board of Estimate rescinded the franchise held by the City Island Bus Company on the ground that it had not paid the money due the city under the terms of the franchise, and that the West Farms Corporation obtained a permit not only without payment of any kind to the city, but also with the implied permission to levy 25 per cent. of the gross receipts on bus operators assigned by Frederick Richter, supervisor of the city bus system, to help carry the heavy traffic on this route on Sunday and holidays.

Mr. Frankenberg said he had lived in the Bronx for twenty-four years and ran a garage. He said he had talked with Mr. Jungberg, who had been manager for the City Island Bus Company, who had told him there was "good money" in this bus line. He said that a lawyer named William Keating, subsequently identified as William A. Keating, counsel to the Sheriff of Bronx County, had "come" to him and had prepared the articles of incorporation of the West Farms Bus Corporation.

Asked to explain how Mr. Keating had happened to "come" to him, he said a friend had told him he would send him a good lawyer, and admitted that this friend might have been Mr. O'Neil. It was later brought out that Mr. Keating never rendered any bill to Mr. Frankenberg for legal services, and all that the latter had paid him was $62 for incorporation fees.

Saw Whalen About Permit.

Mr. Frankenberg said Mr. O'Neil spoke of him to Mr. Whalen about a permit, and later went to see Mr. Whalen with him, after which the permit was issued. He said that the West Farms Bus Corporation was formed with a capital of $10,000, and that he put up $1,000 in cash. He was elected President, he testified; Karsch, Secretary, and Broschard, whose name he said was "Charles," Treasurer. Neither Karsch nor Broschard put any money into the company, he said, and neither received any salary, but each owned one-third of the stock.

Mr. Frankenberg said the company started operation with one bus which he owned and seven others owned by their drivers, each of whom gave the company 25 per cent. of his gross receipts. Subsequently, he said, the company bought seven buses for $20,000. He admitted that he was responsible for the payment.

Asked concerning the profits of the company, Mr. Frankenberg said he could not say offhand and that he had been unable to get the company's books from the safe. "I couldn't work the combination," he explained. "It's an old-time safe."

Mr. Frankenberg said he would produce the books today, and asked if the hearing would be in the afternoon. He said he could not produce any canceled checks, as he always destroyed them.

He was told the hearing would be at 2 o'clock. "You had better ask O'Neil for the combination of the safe," said Judge Shearn.

Judge Shearn then read from the civil list in The City Record, showing that O'Neil is Under Sheriff of Bronx County at $5,500 a year; that Keating is counsel to the Sheriff of Bronx County at $5,000 a year, and that Broschard, Treasurer of the West Farms Bus Corporation, is a Deputy Sheriff at $3,500.

Noticing a badge on Mr. Frankenberg's waistcoat, Judge Shearn asked what it was. Mr. Frankenberg explained that he was a Special Deputy Sheriff of Bronx County, but that the position carried no salary.

Refers to the "Big Chief."

Judge Shearn, in commenting upon the West Farms Bus Corporation receiving permission from Mr. Whalen to charge 20 cents, said that the fare should be under the jurisdiction of the commission, and referred to the "big chief" of bus operation, a term that was used at the preceding day's hearing concerning the man for whom Louis Riedl, a witness, said Daniel O'Connor, a Brooklyn Democratic politician, demanded $25,000.

"But by resorting to this device of getting a permit from a department that has no authority to issue a permit," Judge Shearn said, "these people are able to get the consent of the 'big chief' of bus operation to charge a fare of 20 cents. That is one of the evils of this situation, that they can go to a man who has no real authority and, after securing his consent through the intervention of Tom O'Neil, the district leader, can get a permit to impose a charge of 20 cents upon the people of the Bronx, whereas, if they had complied with the law they would have to come here and make a proper showing as to what is fair and reasonable, and submit themselves to the jurisdiction of this commission."

BONAR LAW YIELDS POINT TO LABOR

IRE OF GEORGEANS GROWS

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Oct. 31.—Premier Bonar Law announced tonight the final appointments to his Ministry, and the first meeting of the Cabinet will be held tomorrow.

The appointment of Sir Montague Barlow as Minister of Labor will arouse most interest, not because of his selection, for Sir Montague was already Parliamentary Secretary in it, so his appointment is a natural promotion, but there have been many attacks on the policy of having a Secretary for the department. It is undoubtedly expensive, as it employs some of the officials in the much derided labor exchanges, but it has been retained probably on account of the need of some machinery to administer the unemployment doles.

The selection of Neville Chamberlain as Postmaster General suggests that the disagreement of the new Prime Minister with his brother, Austen Chamberlain, is not so deep as appears, and gives to the Liberal wing of the Conservative Party an important Post. Neville Chamberlain was first Director of National Service during the war, but was forced to resign under a storm of criticism, a good deal of which took no notice of the almost insuperable difficulties he had to face. But his failure then makes his appointment to the head of a great administrative department a bold act.

Two Unofficial M. P.'s Chosen.

Sir William Joynston Hicks and Sir Samuel Hoare, who are the new Ministers of Overseas Trade and Air, have been two of the most prominent unofficial members of Parliament. Joynston Hicks ranks as a die-hard and it will be somewhat of a surprise that he has not gone to the Air Ministry, as he always has been one of the chief advocates in the House of Aeronautics.

Appointment of T. W. H. Inskip to be Solicitor General was expected. He was in the last Parliament, having been elected in 1919 after two previous unsuccessful candidatures and is well known as an authority on ecclesiastical law.

A big surprise of the new list is the appointment of Major G. C. Tryon to the Ministry of Pensions. It had been taken for granted that this Ministry would be abolished, Premier Bonar Law in outlining his plans for economy in a speech last Thursday said he was satisfied there was no need for a special Ministry to deal with war pensions, as that work could be done by one of the old departments with equal efficiency and with far greater economy. "And we mean to try it," he added.

This announcement provoked the severest criticism from many quarters, especially from the pensioners, some of whom complained that the work was inadequately done even when a complete Government department had charge of it.

Only today Winston Churchill sent a message to the President of the Dundee Liberal Association strongly condemning the proposed discontinuance of the Pensions Ministry. He contends that the position of Pensions Minister is essential and that the work cannot be done by any other official.

The former War Minister, Sir Laming Worthington-Evans, in a speech tonight also criticised the idea of doing away with the Pensions Ministry. He spoke as a man who was Minister of Pensions for eighteen months, and he was quite sure he said that the ex-service men still required a minister solely employed in dealing with their cases. He hoped Mr. Bonar Law would reconsider his proposal to abolish the ministry.

Appointment May Be Short Lived.

Whether the Prime Minister has bowed his head to this criticism and given in on the subject remains to be seen. The appointment of Major Tryon seems to indicate that he has, but it is suggested that he may yet introduce a measure for the scrapping of the ministry and that Major Tryon has been appointed only to have his head chopped off later.

In today's list of new ministerial appointments there is again noticeable a preponderance of peers and peers' sons. There are now three marquises, four earls, two dukes, three viscounts and seven sons of peers in the ministry. This fact will certainly be made the most of by the Labor Party for electioneering purposes.

The anger of the Lloyd George Liberals with the Conservatives was increased today by a telegram sent by Sir George Younger to Sidney Wells, Conservative, who is opposing former Postmaster General Kellaway: "You are assured of our cordial support," said Sir George Younger, and the Lloyd Georgeans are taking this as proof positive of a Conservative desire for an electoral war.

At Conservative headquarters this is not admitted. Sir George Younger, it is explained blandly, has been merely following out his regular policy of assisting any candidate put up by local Conservative associations, and if the Coalition Liberals are annoyed they should blame the local leaders, not the headquarters of the Conservative staff. So there are more threats of Coalition Liberal raids on Conservative constituencies, but experienced election hands are taking them with a grain of salt.

Even if Mr. Lloyd George feels he would like to alter his carefully planned tactics it is not at all certain he can do so successfully. If he abstains from declaring war on Mr. Bonar Law he can almost certainly be returned at the head of a compact group free to operate on the flank of a rather weak Conservative Government and powerful enough often to dictate its own terms. But if he becomes definitely hostile he may succeed in making Mr. Bonar Law's position indefensible without establishing himself securely in power.

Coalition Liberals Handicapped.

The Coalition Liberals, it is believed, have not the organization or the funds to make a very wide campaign, and, chagrined as they may feel now at the attitude of their old allies, it would be foolish for them to throw away their grasp of a real balance of power by making opportunities for the Wee Frees or Labor candidates to get in.

Meanwhile the dullness of the election has been relieved by The Morning Post's announcement that A. W. Cope, who was so well known as one of the chief British officials in Ireland, had become chief organizer for the Coalition Liberals in return for £9,000 down, £2,500 for seven years, some title and a seat in Parliament. This it has denounced as part of the price Mr. Lloyd George has had to pay for Mr. Cope's services in Ireland.

Mr. Cope has not denied that he is getting the cash named, but maintains it is only a reasonable reward for giving up his civil service position and pension, and indignantly denies expecting a place in the honors list or a desire for nomination to Parliament.

Other Appointments Announced.

LONDON, Oct. 31 (Associated Press).—Mr. Bonar Law, the new Premier, has made the following appoints of Under Secretaries:

Home Office, Lieut. Col. George F. Stanley.
Foreign Office, Ronald McNeill.
Colonial Office, William G. A. Ormsby-Gore.
War Office, Walter E. Guinness.
Air Ministry, the Duke of Sutherland.
India Office, Earl Winterton.

Commissioner of Works, Sir John Baird.
Secretary to the Board of Trade, Viscount Wolmer.
Secretary to the Ministry of Transport, Lieut. Col. Wilfred Ashley.
Secretary to the Ministry of Health, the Earl of Ancaster.

Tells of Economies Prevented.

Winston Churchill, who has recovered from his illness sufficiently to be removed to his home tonight, although he will still be confined to his rooms for a few days, sent a letter to his constituents today strongly opposing abolition of the ministry. In the same letter Mr. Churchill recounts a number of large economies which the late Government was contemplating, largely on his recommendations, amounting to nearly £50,000,000 annually, which were prevented by the overthrow of the Government.

Incidentally, Mr. Churchill mentions that the economies included £15,000,000 on naval estimates, but he regretted to say that these economies were obstinately opposed by Lieut. Col. L. C. M. S. Amery, First Lord of the Admiralty in the new Cabinet, who was then Financial Secretary to the Admiralty. He adds that Colonel Amery took a leading part in the revolt of the Under Secretaries, which led to the overthrow of the Government, and declares:

"I view with disquietude the fact that this junior Minister has stepped into the shoes of his late chief—a reward of successful mutiny, which is certainly an unwholesome spectacle."

The former Colonial Secretary, who is still providing effective electioneering points, remarks how disappointing is the declaration of the new Chancellor of the Exchequer, Stanley Baldwin, that reduction of taxation is impossible, when all these projected economies have been hindered by the change of Government.

Viscountess Astor, in campaigning today, attended a meeting of the Plymouth branch of the National Unemployed Workers and explained her views in the presence of George Ebury, organizer of the National Unemployed Committee, who may be the unemployed candidate.

She was accorded a hearty reception, but was subjected to good-natured running comment, in which Mr. Ebury took part.

ASQUITH IS NOMINATED.

Opens Campaign in Paisley With Attack on Lloyd George and Coalition.

PAISLEY, Scotland, Oct. 31.—Herbert H. Asquith, former Premier, addressed his constituents here tonight after he had been named as candidate for Parliament. He was accompanied by his wife, Margot Asquith, and his daughter, Lady Bonham-Carter.

Mr. Asquith was received with enthusiasm. He declared that the last House of Commons would live in history as a Parliament of subservience. Mr. Lloyd George, he said, was posing now as a stern economist, but in the last three years he had heaped up every form of costly and unjustifiable extravagance, adding: "We have been living under an uncontrolled dictatorship — a dictatorship, in fact, of organized instability."

He described the present situation as "topsy-turvydom," with only two fixed points in the whole political landscape, one held by the Liberal Party, the other by the Labor Party. All else was fog and chaos.

A compact between the Conservatives and the Liberal Unionists meant that in the new Parliament there would be a revived coalition under a new alias. After four years of coalition no post-war problem, either international or domestic, had been solved, with the single exception of the Irish question. Mr. Lloyd George, with his little cohort of followers, he asserted, had carried off the brains of the coalition concern.

AMERICA WILL JOIN IN THE WORLD COURT

people going to war over a justiciable dispute. The important point is that in viewing European conditions you should have a true perspective and should not, in default of adequate remedies, put an exaggerated estimate upon what is good in itself but at this time is far from being curative. It should be remembered that the great problems that now vex the European nations and retard recuperation are not, except in a minor degree, of a legal or justiciable nature which can be solved by judicial tribunals."

It is recalled here that Elihu Root, as American member of the Advisory Committee of jurists which met at The Hague in June and July of 1922, took a conspicuous part in framing the staute for the court, including the method of selecting the eleven judges and four deputy judges. The statute was submitted to the Council and Assembly of the League of Nations at its meeting at Geneva in December, 1920, and was adopted with slight amendments.

A place on the World Court was offered to Mr. Root, but he declined it. So John Bassett Moore was chosen in his place. The eleven judges represent as many nationalities.

As to Economic Conferences.

Another interesting statement that came from the White House today had a bearing on possible participation of the United States in an international economic conference such as has been proposed.

This Government, it was said, was perfectly willing to lend its approval to any economic conference to discuss "the old world situation" and to participate in it, but it was added that the Government would not consider participation in any economic conference covering inter-allied war debts until the economic problem involved in these debts had been threshed out by experts.

It was made clear that the Administration would not take part in the Brussels conference of allied nations at which the war debt problem is to be discussed. For the present, and until our own Debt Commission has made an effort to bring about an adjustment with European debtors, this Government will hold aloof from any other form of settlement.

The Administration believes there has been much loose talk concerning the question of allied debts to the United States. It has no patience with those who advocate the cancellation of these war debts. This impatience does not arise from objection to the principle of cancellation but from the fact that the Administration is bound by the act of Congress which directs it to arrange for the payment of the debt at a set rate of interest until paid.

The Administration is equally impatient with those who contend that it should collect every penny of the money owing to us from former associates in the World War. Talk of this sort is regarded by Administration officials as silly. The Government, it was pointed out, had no means of enforcing collections, but was dependent upon what the debtor nations would do. The whole matter, it was said, was one of negotiation and of adjustment to conditions.

The statements made in this connection appeared at variance with others that have come from Administration sources. Today's explanation, however, indicated that the Administration was not proceeding on the assumption that the European debtors of the United States could be required to pay their full obligations, but desired to treat them with consideration in accordance with their ability to pay.

My Husband Died Yesterday

A relative had telephoned Kensico to send a representative. The widow received him. "My husband died yesterday," she murmured, "and we have no family burial place."

What meaning, what dread, what baffled hopelessness is felt in those words, "We have no burial place." Her husband should have seen to that before—in the fullness of life.

When a man has made up his mind to choose a family burial place he must consider Permanence, Beauty and Cost. The facts governing these things are covered in a booklet called "Judging a Burial Park." Kensico will send this booklet to any interested man or woman—and who is not vitally interested?

HUGHES CLARIFIES NEAR EAST POLICY

DEMANDS CAPITULATIONS

Indemnity for American Losses in Turkey Is Another Subject Interesting This Government.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—The formal refusal of the American Government to accept the invitation of the allied powers for full-fledged participation by the United States in the Near East Peace Conference was made at the State Department tonight after its transmittal to the British, French and Italian Governments through the American Embassies in London, Paris and Rome.

After giving the reasons on which this Government bases its declination to participate in the final peace negotiations between the allied powers and Turkey and Greece and informing the powers of the willingness of the United States to send observers to the proposed peace conference if this action is agreeable to the powers concerned, the American communication declares that the United States has no intention of seeking for itself or its nationals any position of special privilege, but does desire to protect its rights and assure the open door in the Near East.

Note Takes Form of Aide-Memoire.

The American communication takes the form of an aide-memoire, which emphasizes the fact that while this Government feels it cannot participate in a conference that deals with problems resulting from the state of belligerency to be treated in the proposed treaty of peace with Turkey, the United States does have important interests in the Near East which it is not disposed to relinquish. For that reason this country would like to have observers at Lausanne, instructed to keep the Government in Washington fully informed as to the attitude of the powers toward those matters in which there are mutual interests, and similarly to advise the powers regarding the attitude of the United States.

The text of the aide-memoire follows:

"The conference proposed for the purpose of drawing up a treaty of peace with Turkey will have primarily to deal with the problems resulting from the state of belligerency between the allied powers, Turkey and Greece. The United States was neither at war with Turkey nor a party to the armistice of 1918 and does not desire to participate in the final peace negotiations or to assume responsibility for the political and territorial adjustments which may be affected.

"While maintaining this reserve in regard to certain phases of the Near East settlement, the Government of the United States does not desire to leave the impression that it regards its interests as less entitled to consideration than those of any other power, or that it is disposed to relinquish rights enjoyed in common with other powers, or proper commercial opportunity, or that it is unconcerned with the humanitarian interests involved.

Summary of Subjects Interesting Us.

"For the purpose of clarity certain subjects of particular American concern may be briefly summarized:

"1. The maintenance of capitulations which may be essential to the appropriate safeguarding of non-Moslem interests.

"2. The protection, under proper guarantees, of philanthropic, educational and religious institutions.

"3. Appropriate undertakings in regard to the freedom of opportunity, without discrimination or special privilege, for commercial enterprise.

"4. Indemnity for losses suffered by Americans in Turkey as a result of arbitrary and illegal acts.

"5. Suitable provisions for the protection of minorities.

"6. Assurances touching the freedom of the Straits.

"7. Reasonable opportunity for archaeological research and study.

"Prepared to Send Observers."

"This brief summary, while not exhaustive, may serve to indicate the general nature of American interests. To safeguard such interests and to facilitate the exchange of views the Government of the United States is prepared to send observers to the proposed conference if this action is agreeable to the powers concerned. Without participating in the negotiations of the treaty of peace, these observers would be able to indicate this Government's position in greater detail than is possible in this aide-memoire, and they could also inform the American Government of the attitude of other powers in matters where there are mutual interests.

"As the object in view in submitting this suggestion is the elimination of any possible cause of misunderstanding, it is considered appropriate to call attention to the attitude of the United States in respect to secret treaties and agreements. It is not felt that arrangements previously made with respect to Turkish territory which provide for the establishment of zones of special commercial and economic influence—such, for example, as the tripartite agreement of 1920—are consonant with the principle of the equality of economic opportunity. It is assumed that the allied powers will not now desire, and do not now intend, to carry into effect previous arrangements of this nature.

"The United States has no desire to take any action which might embarrass the allied powers in the proper effort to secure peace. It desires nothing which need conflict with the interests of other countries, if the principle of commercial opportunity for all nations is recognized at the outset.

"The United States has no intention of seeking for itself or its nationals a position of special privilege, but it desires to protect its rights and to assure the open door.

"Finally, it wishes to afford protection to its citizens who wish to continue the humanitarian work which has been carried on for generations in the Near East and is rendered more essential than ever by the present conditions."

DR. CANNON THANKS HUGHES.

The Rev. Dr. James Cannon Jr., Methodist Episcopal Bishop of Blackstone, La., has sent the following telegram from El Paso, Texas, to Secretary of State Hughes:

Hon. Charles E. Hughes, State Department, Washington.

Gratified to read in Associated Press that Government reply to invitation to participate in the Lausanne Conference declares purpose safeguard interests enumerated in five points and similar matters. Believe, however, meanwhile Government should cooperate actively to absolutely prevent repetition in Thrace and Constantinople of atrocities perpetrated upon innocent non-combatants in Asia Minor during past seven years, that minorities be not further exterminated before peace conference protects.

The way you wash your hands!

AND think what it means to have fresh gloves—practically new gloves—every time you go out! Kayser Chamoisette Gloves cost one-half what leather gloves cost, so that you can afford to have at least two pairs—and keep changing.

This Matter of Economy

There is this about Kayser Chamoisette Gloves costing so little and wearing so long—you seldom think of it, because they are so good to look at, so much in style, so comfortable on the hands, so easy to slip on and off without awkward pulling and tugging—you'd just want to wear them even if they cost a lot—and it would pay you!

Good pure soap—a few minutes in the suds—rinse with clean water—let them dry—and there you are! And you're always smartly gloved, and happy about it.

And the Long Wear

You see, you can wear Kayser Chamoisette Gloves and wash them, and keep on wearing them and washing them, and they LAST. Of course we are talking about real Kayser Chamoisette. That's why we think it a good idea to ask you to look for the Kayser name in the hem of the glove—ALWAYS.

CHALIAPINE COMES TO APPEAR IN OPERA

He Arrives on the Olympic With Frieda Hempel, Hoffman and Huberman.

GIVE CONCERT ON SHIP

Four of the most noted stars of the musical world arrived yesterday from Europe on the White Star liner Olympic to appear in concerts and opera during the coming Winter season. They were Feodor Chaliapine, the Russian basso; Mme. Freda Hempel, the former Metropolitan soprano; Josef Hofmann, the American pianist, and Bronislaw Huberman, violinist.

On Saturday night the quartet of artists gave a concert in the lounge of the Olympic for the benefit of the seamen's charities. Each artist gave three numbers, and Prince Lubomiraki, Minister for Poland to the United States, was Chairman. The purser, J. A. Shepherd, said that it was the finest concert he had heard during his twenty-five years' experience in the Atlantic trade. The Duncan sisters collected the money.

Chaliapine was grayer than when he was here last season but looked to be in very good health. He said that he had left Russia in June and had since been singing in Stockholm, Copenhagen and London. General living conditions in Russia were a little better, he declared, but life was hard in a country after such a revolution as had occurred in Russia.

"I spent March, April and May in Russia," Chaliapine continued, "and sang without pay in Petrograd and Moscow for the benefit of the poor. My wife and four of my children are living in England and my other children are still in Russia, as it is expensive to travel these days. The Soviet Government has placed no restrictions upon my right to enter or leave Russia at will. I get my passport and pay for it the same as any other person."

He added that he had also been to Homburg to take the cure.

Chaliapine said he was glad to hear that the company from the Moscow Art Theatre was coming to America, as it gave a novel and magnificent performance, and it would cause the public in this country, he thought, to take more interest in Russia.

The singer was met at the pier by his managers, S. Hurok and F. C. Coppicus, and Morris Gest, who is bringing over the Moscow theatre company. Max Rabinowitz, his accompanist, returned with him and two valets.

Mme. Freda Hempel returned with her husband, W. B. Kahn, after singing in London and spending the Summer in Switzerland. She will commence her tour of fifty "Jenny Lind" concerts at Montreal with the Boston Symphony Orchestra. Mme. Hempel said that the audience in London wished her to sing entirely in German and that she selected arias and songs from the works of Schubert, Schumann and Brahms. As encores she sang "The Last Rose of Summer" and "Home, Sweet Home" in English.

Josef Hofmann will commence his piano recitals at Carnegie Hall on Nov. 18, he said. Bronislaw Huberman, the violinist, will start on a concert tour shortly and will play with the Philadelphia Orchestra next February. He estimated that the concert given on the Olympic would have cost $60,000 in the ordinary way of paying artists and that the seats were worth $10 each.

The Duncan sisters, who have made a success in London, returned on the Olympic and will appear in "The Heavenly Twins," which is being touched up by Guy Bolton under the direction of Sam H. Harris.

Three members of the Flonzaley Quartette, who with their instruments are making their nineteenth visit here, arrived also on the Olympic. They are Adolfo Betti, Alfred Pochon and Ivan D'Archambeau. The remaining member will arrive on the Mauretania within a few days.

Monckton Hoffe, the English playwright who is the author of "The Faithful Heart," now being performed at the Maxine Elliott Theatre, was a passenger on the Olympic. He will assist in staging his new play, "The Painted Lady," in which Fay Bainter is to star.

Mr. Hoffe, who was born in Ireland and has lived all his life in London, said that he made his first visit to New York twelve years ago, when his first play, "The Little Damosel," was produced. He said that theatrical conditions had improved in London this season, as the damp, raw weather in the Summer had kept many people in the city instead of going to the country and the seashore.

ACCUSES MRS. HANTON OF LURING WIFE AWAY

Cos Cob Artist Tells Police New York Woman Also Seeks His Children.

Mrs. R. L. Hanton, who lives in the fashionable apartment house at 25 Fifth Avenue, and who figured in the newspapers a few weeks ago when she paid a bill to a taxicab company in Greenwich by sending to the firm 42,000 pennies, was accused yesterday by Roger C. Pierrotti, an artist, of Cos Cob, Conn., of luring his wife away from him and of trying to complete the wrecking of his home by endeavoring to part him from his children, too.

So convinced was Pierrotti of Mrs. Hanton's ability to win his whole family away from him that when he learned yesterday that she was on her way to Greenwich with Mrs. Pierrotti, who had left her home in the morning in a huff, he called the police.

Pierrotti told the authorities that a lawyer who accompanied his wife and Mrs. Hanton to on their late afternoon visit would shoot him if he did not give up the children. An earlier complaint from him had brought Mrs. William A. Stevens, a probation officer. When the police were told that Pierrotti feared for his life, they sent John Grosier, a policeman. There was a scene but it ended by Mrs. Hanton departing and Mrs. Pierrotti consenting, at least for the time being, to stay with her husband and the children.

Pierrotti said his wife met Mrs. Hanton five years ago and that their friendship had ripened to such a degree that their youngest child Amelia, now 4 years old, was called Lavinia for a time so that she might bear Mrs. Hinton's own given name.

Representing herself to be a woman of great wealth, rs. Hanton, according to Pierrotti, insisted that she must assume the care and rearing of his family. As a result he took a cottage at Brighton Beach with the children, while Mrs. Pierrotti remained in New York with Mrs. Hanton. Mrs. Hanton also agreed, he said, to rent a studio for him at 17 Fifth Avenue, a few doors from her own home, and gave him a check for the rent of the studio but subsequently he had to make good both the check and interest.

Millinery has been invaded by the great vogue of gold and silver effects in headwear! However, she surrenders only too willingly when she sees the smartness and distinction of her captors. For what can surpass the metallic chapeau in beauty?

And none of this will surprise you at all when you see how thoroughly irresistible are the chic metallic turbans we offer. What will surprise you, however, is the low price at which they are offered—only $9.89!

They are remarkably clever in design and lend a charming air of youth to the wearer—the close-fitting lines in the ear-cap effects are well conceived. The materials are unique—many French brocade ribbons of great richness that cannot be duplicated.

4,000, in our annual Thanksgiving month sale

This sale is made possible only by the co-operation of one of our shirt-makers. One of the "top" men, who never made a shirt for a sale, in the popular sense. We are his largest distributor. And he recognizes that by periodical favors to our customers such as this.

30 per cent. are imported madras of fine quality—from Tootles, Broadhurst, Lee & Co. and Wm. Anderson.

400 are of white English broadcloth.

A fine lot of shirts to greet the new month. As fine an opportunity as a man could wish for to re-stock his wardrobe for the winter. Plus the saving!

More than 100 patterns

Each pattern in several color effects—lavenders, blues, greens, grays. Plain stripes. Cluster stripes. Russian cords. Mercerized cotton stripes. All white. All sizes, 14 to 17. Three sleeve lengths.

BOMBING IN DUBLIN, BATTLE IN GALWAY

CAPTURE 80 NATIONALISTS

Government Forces Lose In a Four-Hour Fight—Railway Station Burned.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

DUBLIN, Oct. 31.—It would be risky to regard the almost national absence of crime in Ireland, such as during the few last week-ends, as an indication that a reign of peace has begun. That such a calm is a portent of storm was evidenced last night in a deadly attempt to blow up the headquarters of the Criminal Investigation Department in the congested thoroughfare near the Westland Row church and railway station, whence people entrain for Kingstown, Holyhead and London. Had the attackers succeeded in exploding four mines they laid, the calamity would have resulted in an appaling loss of life and property. This desperate attempt makes one fearful for the last month of the Provisional Government's tenure of office. It certainly justifies the Government's precautions in guarding the Government offices at Merrion Street and the seat of the Government at Leinster House. The only newspaper referring to the outrages is The Freeman's Journal, which states:

"A more contemptuous indifference to the life and property of the inhabitants could not be exhibited by a hostile invading army. But it is only a climax to a long series of such incidents in a city of which the civilians, including women and children, have been the only victims. Does De Valera who has once more formally assumed responsibility for the actions of his military supporters, really think the cause of a republic is served by such methods? If Mr. De Valera has any authority over the miners and bombers, which there is much reason to doubt, he ought to show that he intends to exercise that authority here and now."

DUBLIN, Oct. 31 (Associated Press).—A fierce fight took place today at Clifden, forty-five miles northwest of Galway, between national soldiers and a force of irregulars. Eighty of the nationals were captured with rifles and ammunition after a ten-hour battle. One of their barracks was burned to the ground, and another was blown up by a mine.

In Southern Ireland the campaign of destruction continues. The railway station at Mallow, one of the most important centres of the Great Southern and Western Railway system, was set on fire during the night and now is a mass of ruins.

IRISH REBELS WARN PRESS.

They Demand Recognition as Republicans and No Question Marks.

DUBLIN, Oct. 31 (Associated Press).—The follwers of Eamon de Valera in the new phase of their activity against the Free State Government have taken a novel step, warning the Dublin newspapers to disregard the censorship regulations and describe the de Valerites in the future as "Republicans" instead of "Irregulars," and to avoid the use of quotation marks in referring to the military ranks of their officers.

The warning says a penalty of £1 will be imposed for each offense, and that "more drastic measures" will be taken if these offenses are persisted in. Two of the newspapers have already complied with the demand.

GEDDES SEES PREMIER KING.

Confers in Ottawa on Canadian-American Affairs.

OTTAWA, Ont., Oct. 31.—Sir Auckland Geddes, British Ambassador to Washington, and Premier W. L. Mackenzie King of Canada, conferred at the Government House today on questions affecting the United States and Canada.

Ambassador Geddes spent the afternoon quietly. Tonight he was the guest of the Government at a dinner at the Country Club.

ASK CONTROL OF PACKING.

Argentine Cattle Men Want Government to Manage Meat Industry.

BUENOS AIRES, Oct. 31 (Associated Press).—The cattlemen of Argentina, whose industry is once more in a critical condition, want the packing business nationalized and a special law enacted which would enforce Government control of packing houses. These projects, along with the creation of a bureau to control the meat industry and the passage of an anti-trust law, were advocated last night in resolutions unanimously adopted at a large meeting attended by many stock breeders.

"The tyranny of nine packing houses" was strongly denounced at this meeting by the principal speaker, Pedro Pages, a well-known breeder. By statistics shown on a movie screen during his talk, he tried to prove that rulings ruinous to meat prices had resulted from manipulations by the packers. He declared their contentions that the existing depression was due to post war conditions and to decreased demand were disproved by official British and Argentine statistics showing that Great Britain consumed more meat from Argentina in 1921 than during any previous year.

RUM GRAFT INQUIRY GETS AFTER POLICE

and the work he has done on the investigation, and the report that Gaston B. Means is aiding him could not be confirmed.

It also became known that Means had previously figured in the investigation of the disappearance of the whisky from the Republic Storage Warehouse. As the story goes in official circles he was about the first man sent here from Washington to make an investigation. Suddenly he was recalled. No official explanation has been forthcoming for this change. Subsequently other investigators came here from Washington and carried on investigations independent of those directed by Zone Chief John D. Appleby and which have resulted already in a number of arrests and the recovery of some of the stolen liquors.

Director Day and his chief enforcement officer, John S. Parsons, completed their work for the Federal Prohibition Department yesterday. Today E. C. Yellowley, chief of the general agents of the country, will take charge as Director, and G. J. Simons, who has been a divisional chief, will become chief enforcement agent. Other changes are to be announced today by Mr. Yellowley. Mr. Day said yesterday he expected to leave within a few days for Europe.

about downtown offices—

43 Exchange Pl.
Wall St. Exchange Building

A VACANCY is rare in 43 Exchange Place—a splendid building, well maintained, between Broad and William Sts. with a Wall St. connection.

For a broker, lawyer or investment house who will act quickly, there exists right now the opportunity to secure space. Suite 701-2-3 is available—1600 square feet fronting on Exchange Place, with Lee Higginson & Co. and Carlisle Mellick & Co. as business neighbors. It is a daylight suite, and is partitioned and well arranged, ready to be occupied.

RIGHT in the heart of the marine insurance district at the easterly end of the financial district, this 1,600 square feet of highly desirable space on the ground floor of the building of the Canadian Bank of Commerce is now available as a unit, or it will be divided. It is just one block from the New Cotton Exchange, on the corner where Beaver, Hanover and Exchange Place converge. There are a few select small office units of from 300 to 500 square feet also available. This is an ideal location for cotton or marine insurance brokers, or other business requiring a downtown location.

68 William St.
Corner of Cedar St.

THIS splendid building owned and occupied in part by the Royal Bank of Canada, stands at the southern end of the insurance district. Tenants in this building include some of the best known insurance, financial and legal houses downtown. Their established standing indicates the character of the building, and its attractiveness as headquarters for firms or individuals seeking distinctive quarters. There are 3000 square feet in the 4th floor which will be divided into small communicating units.

On the 5th floor, there are 4500 square feet, with 20 windows, ideal for an insurance or casualty company, or an investment house whose clients are largely grouped in the financial or insurance sections.

EX-KAISER PREPARES RARE GIFT FOR BRIDE

His Wedding Present Will Be a Hohenzollern Diadem and a Pair of Earrings.

WORTH 800,000,000 MARKS

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Oct. 31.—The ex-Kaiser is giving his bride a magnificent wedding present. It consists of a diadem composed of no fewer than 700 diamonds, set in platinum. All the stones are of great beauty and the smallest weighs half a carat. Accompanying it is a pair of diamond earrings. The combined value is said to be 800,000,000 marks.

The gift is the subject of a severe attack by the Socialist newspaper Vorwärts, which condemns it as an unjustifiable extravagance at a time when many of William's former subjects are in bitter need.

One of the few remaining faithful journals states, however, that the diadem long has been in the possession of the Hohenzollern family and is only being reset. Against this Vorwärts declares the stones have been ordered from a leading Berlin jeweler.

The ex-Kaiser himself has chosen the text of the sermon to be preached at the Sunday ceremony by the former court chaplain, Dr. Vogel. It is the thirteenth verse of 4th thirteenth chapter, First Corinthians, which reads:

"And now abideth faith, hope, charity, these three; but the greatest of these is charity."

Copyright, 1922, by The Chicago Tribune Co.

BERLIN, Oct. 31.—Officers of the famous regiment of Cuirassiers, which for centuries protected the Queen of Prussia and later the Kaiserin of Germany, today offered their services to the ex-Kaiser's bride-to-be.

In white gala uniforms they mounted watch over the grave of the ex-Kaiserin and now they want to escort the ex-Kaiser's second bride to the wedding in Doorn.

The new "Queen of Prussia" will wear a diadem from the Hohenzollern treasures which was remodeled at Frankfort and Berlin. The Kaiser drew the model, using the traditional diadem of the Hohenzollern Queen and having two wings, which were made from his own jewels.

DOORN, Holland, Oct. 31 (Associated Press).—The question has been raised in the Belgian Chamber whether the Dutch authorities were cognizant of the fact that former Emperor William of Germany in an official document was permitted to assume titles he no longer possessed. Reference was made especially to the registrar's announcement of the approaching marriage of the former monarch, which, when posted, read:

"His Majesty, Friedrich Wilhelm Victor Albert, Emperor, and King Wilhelm II., no profession, domiciled in Doorn, has given notice of intended marriage to her serene Highness, Herminie, &c."

The Burgomaster of Doorn meets the objection by stating that William is described by right of birth as Emperor and King, but that he is no longer Emperor or King of Prussia. Moreover, the Burgomaster contends, it is outside his province to test the accuracy of the descriptions which intending bridegrooms choose to apply to themselves.

Preparations at the former Emperor's residence are being hurried for the reception of the new mistress. Much costly furniture salvaged from various imperial castles in Germany is being furnished up, while magnificent Gobelin tapestries, gifts from European rulers, are being used to cover the whitewashed inner walls of the large semicircular gate of the lodge where the civil ceremony will be performed.

LONDON VIEW OF MEMOIRS.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Oct. 31.—The Daily Chronicle, reviewing the ex-Kaiser's memoirs, says:

"Ex-Kaiser Wilhelm has written a book and his given himself away. At least, this could well have been said of him, that as the imperial head of a State he did, to use a theatrical expression, fill the bill. He looked the part and acted—even overacted—the part. The imperial purple, the glittering armor, the constant sword rattling, the feudal rhetoric of his imperial patter, if one may be forgiven the term and posture, were all part of a consistent and impressive character piece.

"The Kaiser of the memoirs is a very different being. He is meek, patient, altogether misunderstood, much wronged, yet a long-suffering, almost saintly, figure. All the swank has disappeared. We can hardly identify him with the sabre-rattling monstrosity that agitated the whole people for forty years with his speeches and action. The new rôle, it must be confessed, does not suit him. It is, as it were, the King of Grimm's Fairy Tale without his clothes, and what a puny thing this naked figure of fallen grandeur reveals itself to be. The most astonishing of all is his utterly imbecile credulity."

As an instance of his credulity, The Chronicle points out the ex-Kaiser's acceptance of the alleged secret treaty between the United States, Britain and France in 1887 whereby it was agreed they would range themselves against Germany in the event of war.

"The yarn is as precious a piece of nonsense as was ever invented," says The Chronicle. "The ex-Kaiser accepts it as gospel truth. Here at last is proof. Who dare now speak of Germany's war guilt?"

The Chronicle concludes:

"To non-Germans this strange autobiography has a pathological, even a pathetic, interest. To his readers the ex-Kaiser reveals himself as a Simon Tappertit, a vain, silly, posturing atomy of a man. To himself he is sublimity itself, the greatest of Hohenzollerns, omniscient, prophetic, a superman, the chosen instrument of divine will."

SHANTUNG COMMITTEE SITS.

China-Japanese Body Expects to Do Most of Its Work by Dec. 1.

PEKING, Oct. 31 (Associated Press).—Not only will the foreign post offices in Shantung be abolished by Dec. 1, but within a year they will be suppressed throughout China, except in the South Manchurian railway zone, according to a member of the Chino-Japanese Shantung Commission.

The commission has started a series of sittings at the Foreign Office here, receiving the reports of sub-committees, which have been making investigations preparatory to the return of Kiao-chau to China. Only two committees have completed their work. Three others remain to be heard. It is expected that the commission will hold daily sessions.

Both the Chinese and Japanese Foreign Offices hold the view that the main duties of the commission will be finished in time for Japan to evacuate Kiao-chau as scheduled Dec. 1. Minor details will be left for further discussion.

DR. SLATTERY TAKES OFFICE AS BISHOP

MANY CLERGY AT SERVICES

BOSTON, Oct. 31.—The Rev. Dr. Charles Lewis Slattery was consecrated Bishop Coadjutor of the Protestant Episcopal Diocese of Massachusetts in Trinity Church this forenoon with services attended by several hundred clergymen and laity from this and other dioceses. Bishop Slattery, who for several years has been rector of Grace Church in New York, will take over much of the active work of the diocese heretofore performed by Bishop William Lawrence.

The consecrators were Bishop Lawrence, Bishop Beverly T. Tucker of Southern Virginia, and the Right Rev. Samuel G. Babcock, Suffragan Bishop of Massachusetts. Dr. Slattery was presented for consecration by Bishop Edwin Stevens Lines of New Jersey and Bishop William T. Manning of New York.

In the procession into the church were the participating bishops, 208 clergy from the Massachusetts diocese and 65 clergy from other dioceses. The vestries of Grace Church, New York; Christ Church, Springfield, and St. Andrew's Parish, Ayer, at all of which Dr. Slattery had served as rector, and the cathedral at Faribault, Minn., of which he is a former Dean, also were represented.

After the sermon by Bishop Lawrence, Dr. Slattery left his attending presbyters, the Rev. Dr. Harry P. Nichols, rector emeritus of Holy Trinity Church, Harlem, New York, and the Rev. George Winthrop Sargent, and proceeded to the chancel rail in company of Bishops Lines and Manning. After the presentation the Litany was read by Bishop Logan Herbert Roots of Hankow, China, and at the conclusion of the questions and answers of the consecration ritual Dr. Slattery put on the episcopal habit and the Bishops present took part in the laying on of hands.

Admitted to the Sanctuary.

Dr. Slattery then received a Bible and was admitted to the sanctuary. Celebration of the Holy Communion concluded the service.

Visiting Bishops who took an official part in the service included Bishops Thomas H. Davies of Western Massachusetts, Arthur W. Moulton of Utah, William F. Nichols of California, James De Wolf Perry of Rhode Island, Phillip M. Rhinelander of Pennsylvania, Wilson R. Stearly of Newark, N. J.; Chauncey B. Brewster of Connecticut, Theodore D. Thurston of Oklahoma and Julius W. Atwood of Arizona.

The powers and duties of a bishop and the problems confronting him were dwelt upon by Bishop Lawrence in his sermon. He spoke particularly of the question of intellectual convictions, the problems of youth and the relations of a bishop to the poor and needy.

"A man consecrated bishop," he continued, "is an administrator to the Church in which he is consecrated. At the same time his office does have a broader significance, that of brotherly love and fellowship with all Christians; and who knows how soon the solvent of God's spirit of truth and love may melt away the present barriers and enfold us in closer sympathy and action? * * *

Defines a Wise Bishop.

"He is a wise Bishop who knows his own limitations and lets others, better scholars, abler interpreters than he, strike out into paths of research and discovery. He will give to all those who are honest and in earnest cheer and sympathy. For this, and because he does not from time to time blurt out his latest convictions, he may be called a conservative or a trimmer; so have all the greatest statesmen in their day. * * *

"The deepest-dyed criminal in State prison and the purest saint outside, the hardened man of industry and the high-minded citizen, each and all come within the loving thought and care of the bishop."

Bishop Lawrence then gave a hearty welcome to Bishop Slattery, in which he said:

"You come back to Massachusetts, to Boston and Cambridge, to which Phillips Brooks first bade you as a boy. You have a hearty welcome, and we hail your return in gratitude in the name of our Master, Christ. Your welcome comes not only from the members of your own Church, but of all the churches, for we are Christian brethren here, separated at some points, but all respecting, loving each other in the spirit of our Saviour."

THREE KILLED IN WRECK.

Several Others Are Injured When Express Crashes Into Circus Train.

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 31.—Three persons were killed and five others seriously injured today when Southern Pacific Passenger Train No. 109 crashed into the rear of a special train carrying the C. A. Wortham shows, at Adeline, La., about nine miles west of Franklin.

The dead are: William G. Jones and Homer V. Jones, brothers, of San Antonio, Texas; R. L. Metcalf, Louisville, Ky.

The injured are: Mrs. William G. Jones, wife of one of the men killed; Mrs. Irene Murphy, Charles Flohr, Frederick Miller and Charles Jamieson. The addresses of the last four are not known.

All of the killed and injured were members of the Wortham shows. Several other people on the show train received minor bruises and scratches. No member of the crews of the two trains was injured.

Both trains were west-bound. One of the passenger coaches used on the rear of the show train as a caboose and four others as sleeping quarters, were reduced to kindling wood. The locomotive of the passenger train buried itself in the rear coach, causing the four cars in front of it to telescope.

According to testimony as a coroner's inquest today, the show train was backing into a siding at Adeline when the accident occurred. The bodies of the three men were shipped to their homes tonight from Franklin. The injured are being treated at Patterson, La., where they were taken following the accident.

The show train was on its way from New Orleans to New Iberia, where the show was scheduled for today.

WESTERN UNION CHARGE.

Did Not Allege Payments to Conceal Overcharges, Lawyer Says.

Referring to the arrest of Walter L. Hopkins, Secretary of Wynkoop-Hallenbeck-Crawford Company, printers, on the charge of giving an illegal gratuity to an employe of the Western Union Telegraph Company, as published yesterday in THE TIMES, Joseph W. Eagan, lawyer for the telegraph company, who was quoted in the article, said he had not suggested that gratuities were given for the purpose of concealing overcharges or approving excessive bills.

"What I said was that one of our employes had confessed to accepting a fee or gratuity from Mr. Hopkins for furnishing information from the Western Union files," he said. "I never said or suggested anything which might be construed to mean that I or any official or employe of the Western Union believed that gratuities were given for the purpose of concealing overcharges or approving excessive printing bills. Those statements are as far as I know without any foundation."

"Would you try it on?"

DO YOU hesitate for a fraction of a second because you know that your under-things will not do justice to your reputation for taste—or because it is hardly fair to a beautiful gown to try it on over a slip which can't hang straight and smooth over badly-tailored underwear?

For SUPREME COURT JUSTICE for New York and Bronx Counties

William Harman Black

Group 9, Line 4

William Harman Black nominated by the Democratic Party.

Retained as Special Corporation Counsel in 1909 in litigation against the Subway Conduit Companies, the largest accounting suit ever tried in New York, involving over thirty million dollars.

Had entire charge for the United States Government in 1921 of the great Shipbuilding cases, involving many millions.

Represented the City since 1917 as Special Counsel in charge of Ashokan and Schoharie Water Supplies litigation, saving the City nearly half a million dollars.

During the war, Vice-Chairman of the National War Labor Board of which William Howard Taft and Frank P. Walsh were Chairmen, passing judgment upon over one thousand controversies involving issues between capital and labor.

THE NEW YORK CITY BAR ASSOCIATION IN ENDORSING HIS CANDIDACY SAID:

"Mr. Black is 54 years of age. He studied at the Columbia Law College 1890-1.

"He was Commissioner of Accounts under Mayor McClellan, 1904 to 1905. He was Deputy Attorney General of the State of New York in the proceedings against the American Ice Company. He has been Special Counsel for the City in the Subway Conduit litigation and in important condemnation proceedings. He rendered services as First Assistant and Acting District Attorney during a period of about four years. He has published several books upon legal topics.

"For a brief period he was Special Assistant to the Attorney General of the United States in charge of the litigation against the American Sugar Refining Company.

"In his private practice he has had retainers of an important character.

"Mr. Black has a wide and long experience at the Bar and is a competent and industrious lawyer. Mr. Black is a gentleman of high character and agreeable personality.

"He is a member of the Association of the Bar, New York County Lawyers' Association and the New York State Bar Association. He has never before been a candidate for public office.

"After obtaining information from reliable sources your committee begs leave to report that it is of the opinion that Mr. Black would make a competent and satisfactory Justice of the Supreme Court."

There are three vacancies to be filled in the office of Justice of the Supreme Court. Both the Democratic and Republican parties have united in renominating Mr. Justice Irving Lehman and Mr. Justice Edward J. McGoldrick for two of these vacancies, so that the single contested place is that for which Mr. Black is a candidate.

We respectfully urge voters, irrespective of party, to vote for William Harman Black as well as for Justices Lehman and McGoldrick. His name will be found on the ballot in Section 9, Line 4.

"The greatest car I have ever driven"

says famous race driver

"I have driven twenty-one times across the American continent in cars ranging in price from $600 to $16,000. My last trip from Indianapolis to Los Angeles in less than six days in a Marmon Speedster permits me to state, without qualification, that it is the greatest car I have ever driven. To any one willing to secure, in my opinion, the nearest to perfection in motor cars, I recommend the Marmon."

OWNERS of the Marmon—the Foremost Fine Car—obtain the finest form of transportation at the lowest cost per mile.

A certified audit shows the average cost to owners of 1922 series Marmons in New York and vicinity to be $4.35 per month per car. We will be glad to show these figures to anyone interested.

The recent introduction of Standardized Service, a revolutionary feature, should still further lower these figures. And it enables the owner of any recent series Marmon to know in advance exactly how much time and expense any repair will require.

FIND NEW EVIDENCE IN MONTANA KILLING

Doctors Develop Facts Contrary to Inquest Testimony as to Mrs. Carleton's Death.

HER HUSBAND IS AROUSED

Says She Confessed Her Love for Dr. Christler, but That Rector Had a Spell Over Her.

HAVRE, Mont., Oct. 31 (Associated Press)—Following finding by two Havre doctors this afternoon that the bullet which killed Mrs. Margaret Carleton in the double killing here last Friday morning ranged downward through her body at a sharp angle, instead of directly in and slightlyy upward, as was testified at the inquest by Dr. Carl Foss, civil authorities were prepared tonight to make further investigation of the tragedy.

Prosecutor Max Kuhr stated that the development warranted a new investigation and said that further evidence was expected. He was called to attend the post mortem examination of Mrs. Carleton's body as soon as the discovery of the bullet's course was made by Dr. W. F. Hamilton and Dr. A. E. Williams.

The examination was made at the request of Mrs. Carleton's mother, Mrs. Joseph Pyle of Butte, Mont.

The bullet was found by the physicians in the muscles beside the spinal column.

Neither Dr. Hamilton nor Mr. Kuhr would comment on the possibility of a self-inflicted bullet following from the path of the one which killed Mrs. Carleton.

At the request of Mr. Pyle, the home of Dr. Christler, who was killed at the same time and place with Mrs. Carleton, was opened this afternoon. Local authorities and a number of newspaper representatives with Mr. Pyle examined contents of drawers, suitcases and trunks in an unsuccessful effort to find evidence that the gun which discharged the fatal shots was the property of the Christlers.

Because of unexpected developments in the investigation today into Mrs. Carleton's death, Mr. and Mrs. Pyle did not present to Mr. Kuhr the list of questions they formulated late last night, dealing with his official attitude toward the investigation and asking what had become of the diamond rings Mrs. Carleton had been wearing the evening of the shooting.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Oct. 31.—Mrs. Margaret Carleton, who with the Rev. Leonard J. Christler was found shot to death in the Christler home at Havre, Mont., last Friday, had confessed her love for Dr. Christler to her husband, Frank E. Carleton, former Judge of the District Court at Havre, Mr. Carleton declared tonight in a signed statement to The Associated Press.

"I can no longer remain silent in the face of the startling statement of Bishop Faber given to The Associated Press that 'I believe as a result of the investigation I have made of the tragedy which occurred in the Christler home early Friday morning and after questioning those who knew about it, that if this women had been able to work her will on Mr. Christler he would be alive today, unfaithful to his wife, but still living,'" the statement said.

"This attempt to make it appear to the world that Margaret threw herself upon this man and that he tried to remonstrate with her and lead her into a spiritual path has goaded me into expression.

"I wonder did his reverence know when he made the statement above referred to, that this pastor, who, it is now claimed, maintained only a friendly and ministerial interest in the Carleton family, had written letters to Margaret Davenport, my wife's maiden name, and sent them care General Delivery?

"Let it be well understood that in making this statement I intend to cast not the slightest reflection or condemnation upon my wife, for no one knows as well as I do the influence which this man held over her and which could reasonably be termed hypnotic.

"I have known of Margaret's love for this man for several years, and it is only fair to her to say that she confessed it to me. I will not further violate her confidence, but I do want to state unqualifiedly and unreservedly that it is a fact that this preacher had led her to believe that he returned that love."

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Ill., Oct. 31.—Halting from weariness and with the heavy veil which she wore only partly concealing the tired look in her eyes, Mrs. Margaret Christler, widow of the Rev. Leonard Christler of Havre, Mont., tonight again took up her vigil in the baggage car which is bearing the body of her husband east for burial.

She has not slept since Mrs. Margaret Carleton shot the "Bishop of all outdoors" and then committed suicide. Mrs. Christler persistently refuses to rest. Since the coffin was loaded into the baggage car of the Oriental Limited at Havre it has not been out of her sight. Mrs. Christler left Havre with the body three days ago. Despite the fact that she had remained in the baggage car during the two-day journey, she refused to be separated from the coffin and rode in the hearse which carried it to St. Chrysostom's Episcopal Church, at Dearborn and Goethe Streets. The Rev. Norman Hutton, pastor of the church, attempted to prevail upon her to rest, but she refused and all last night and all today she sat beside the coffin.

At 5 o'clock this afternoon when the coffin was taken into the La Salle Street Station preparatory to being loaded on a New York Central train for Waterloo, N. Y., she was in close attendance, and as the truck was wheeled down the platform she walked behind, apparently pushing it. She was assisted into the baggage car and a moment later, when four baggagemen were having a little trouble in getting the box through the door, she sprang forward and assisted in the task.

JUDGE DE VRIES RESIGNS.

Leaves Court of Customs Appeals After 35 Years' Public Service.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—Judge Marion De Vries resigned today as Judge of the United States Court of Customs Appeals to take up the practice of law after a public service of thirty-five years. As a member of the Court of Customs Appeals Judge De Vries has introduced many reforms and helped frame four tariff bills, being consulted on the technical and administrative work by the tariff-framing committees of Congress. His recent work was the writing of the "elastic provision" in the new tariff law.

Parts of the tariff act of 1922, together with the act creating the Court of Customs Appeals, and reorganization of the Board of United States General Appraisers, represent the work of Judge De Vries during his twenty-one years devoted to the improvement of the customs service. He was Assistant District Attorney in California for five years and served in Congress two terms.

President Harding also accepted today the resignation of Dr. George Otis Smith as Chief of the Geological Survey. It is understood that this action was taken so that Dr. Smith can give his entire services to the work of the Coal Commission, and after that work is completed he will be reappointed to his old position.

Just a simple luncheon but—even at simple luncheons the charm of a good china service cannot remain unnoticed nor can the deficiencies of a mediocre service be overlooked. The china service that you select to live with, day after day and year after year, should be a thing of enduring beauty.

JOSIAH WEDGWOOD, who first fashioned the models of Wedgwood china, is dead and gone these six score years, but the beauty he created lives on and will live on for centuries.

THIS famous pattern of the Wedgwood Potteries at Etruria has a semi-formal air to commend it. The classic simplicity of its form, the typical Wedgwood fluting and the rich and harmonious decoration combine to make this Wedgwood dinner service one that will grace almost any occasion. It is a service of which you will never tire, and its price, for 103 pieces, is $150.00. It is always available in open-stock at Ovington's, so necessary replacements are always to be had.

DEATH FOR SIGNERS OF SEVRES TREATY

HADI PASHA IN SWITZERLAND

Truce With the Nationalists Will Defer Abdication of the Sultan.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Oct. 31 (Associated Press).—The Turkish Nationalist Government at Angora has passed sentences of death upon the Turkish signatories of the Treaty of Sèvres and the members of the Cabinet of ex-Premier Damad Ferid Pasha, whom it accuses of being Anglophile.

Hadi Pasha, who with Riza Tewfik Bey signed the treaty, has left Constantinople for Switzerland, which is also the refuge of Damad Ferid Pasha.

Abdication of the Sultan is temporarily out of the question. A truce has been arranged with the Nationalists whereby his status will be held in abeyance until after the conclusion of peace in the Near East.

This information was given to The Associated Press by the Chief of Staff representing Rafet Pasha, Turkish Nationalist Military Governor of Thrace, who for four hours yesterday was closeted with the Sultan in his palace.

The Sultan proposed to Rafet that the Angora Assembly be dissolved after the conclusion of peace, to be followed by a modification of the Constitution. Rafet advised the Sultan to hand over representation to the Lausanne conference to the Nationalist delegation.

Rafet reproached the Sultan for his unfriendly attitude toward Anatolia, whereupon the Sultan countered by mentioning the military occupation of Constantinople.

Ismet Pasha, the Turkish Nationalist Foreign Minister, together with Dr. Riza Nur Bey and a suite of experts will leave Angora Thursday for Switzerland to represent his Government at the Lausanne peace conference. The Nationalist delegation will proceed directly to Switzerland, going by way of Smyrna, and is expected to reach Lausanne on Nov. 11, two days before the opening of the conference.

Hamid Bey, the Nationalist representative here, has protested to the Allied High Commissioners because an invitation to the Lausanne conference was extended to the Sublime Porte. The invitation to the Near East Peace conference was delivered to the Sublime Porte last Friday at the same time it was extended to Hamid Bey.

The Sublime Porte, in a telegram addressed to Mustapha Kemal Pasha, has asked whether it will be agreeable to the Angora Government if the Sultan's Government is represented at the conference. The message points out the advantages of such representation, which it is declared would give Turkey two votes instead of one.

Field Marshal Ali Riza Pasha, Minister of the Interior in the Sultan's Government and a strong Monarchist, threatened to resign if Angora were consulted in this matter. He was dissuaded by his colleagues, who informed him that the Sultan had promised Rafet Pasha to defer to all the wishes of the Angora Government with regard to the Turkish representation at Lausanne.

ANGORA, Oct. 31.—In his opening speech at the Turco-Russian economic conference here, the Soviet Ambassador, M. Araloff, said that Russia was the first foreign power to accept the Turkish Nationalist Government's abrogation of the capitulations or extra-territorial rights formerly accorded to foreigners in Turkey.

LONDON, Oct. 31 (Associated Press).—The British Minister in Sofia has been instructed by the Foreign Office to notify the Bulgarian Government that the allied powers will not object to presentation by Bulgaria at the Lausanne peace conference of her arguments in favor of an outlet to the Aegean Sea.

The Foreign Office telegram says Great Britain and France have already expressed their willingness to hear Bulgaria's case, and that there is no reason to believe that Italy will dissent from their attitude. It is explained that this does not mean that Bulgaria has been invited to the conference proper, but that she shall have representatives on hand when the question of her Aegean aspirations comes up.

ROUND-WORLD PARTY REACHES PARIS IN CAR

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Oct. 31.—The curiosity of Parisians was aroused this morning by a strange outfit which invaded Paris and paraded the boulevards. It was a mud-spattered, road-worn little automobile. It might have passed unnoticed but for its unusual decorations. The Stars and Stripes fluttering in the breeze told the people it was American, while conspicuous inscriptions imparted the additional information that the vehicle was "Wanderwell Unit II.," that it was traveling around the world to win a wager—and maybe a million dollars in royalties for pictures filmed on the road.

The party, consisting of Captain W. Wanderwell; the Misses Helen Raeburn, Anna Moak and Annie Bryan—acting, respectively, in the capacities of official recorder, camera expert and mechanician—started around the world two years ago from New Orleans, together with a second car piloted by Mrs. Wanderwell and containing Miss Wanderwell as camera expert, Miss Haven as recorder and Mechanician Al Reed.

The purpose of the journey is to cover the maximum distance and visit the greatest possible number of countries. The victorious crew will win the film rights. The conditions are that the American flag must never be pulled down in any circumstances and the crews must earn their own livelihood as they go along by lecturing and writing. The women of the party must during the whole period wear male attire and undertake not to get married.

After two years of traveling in North and South America, the party a few weeks ago reached Europe. Having crossed the Atlantic in a tramp steamer, they landed in England, successfully evading the immigration authorities by simply walking through the dockyard. They then proceeded to London, where the unsuspecting police registered them as aliens, thinking they had landed as regular passengers. The passport authorities subsequently raised a storm and talked about deportation, but Scotland Yard let the matter rest.

The party is now touring France. Later they will proceed eastward through Europe, later going to Africa and Asia.

HARDING CABLES YOSHIHITO.

Congratulates Japanese Emperor on His Birthday.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—President Harding today sent a cablegram to Yoshihito, the Emperor of Japan, congratulating him on the occasion of his birthday anniversary. The message read:

"I take pleasure in extending to your Majesty cordial greetings on this birthday anniversary, with assurances of my own high regard and good-will."

The godet and the tiered skirt are synonyms for chic, and Jenny combines them in black rep with wide godets of white broadcloth, fastened with an ornament of ivory and tortoise-shell. The tiers are bound with braid, and the costume is one of the newest things imported by a famous New York house for immediate wear by one of its patrons. This number of Vogue is devoted to the fashions actually worn at the moment by the inner circle of New York society, and actually purchasable in the New York dressmaking houses and shops that they patronize.

It contains 19 pages of such fashions in frocks, wraps, suits, furs, hats and accessories—all particularly suited to the American type of figure and carriage, and many of them with prices.

In addition, there is an amusing article on the smart hunting season at the French chateaux, a charmingly-written discussion of the etiquette of travel and visiting, and eight pages of early Christmas gifts chosen for the wise woman who really enjoys her holiday season because she does all her shopping a month ahead—by mail.

You could live without that New York Winter Fashions Number, of course. But—can you think of anything else that could be bought for thirty-five cents that would give you half the pleasure? And as to being practical—isn't knowing what you want before you go shopping, one of the most practical things in a feminine world? Naturally. Tell your newsdealer you want the New York Winter Fashions Number. Do it now.

Don't trifle with constipation —if you expect to be healthy!

Constipation "knocks-the-spots" out of men, women and children! Yet, it is about the last thing that the average person tries to correct—until it is too late!

Eliminate constipation and the slightest constipation symptoms—QUICKLY! Once constipation gets a strangle-hold on your intestines your body is thrown open to diseases. Bright's and diabetes are sometimes caused by constipation. Hardening of the arteries, most cases of rheumatism and numerous other diseases also are known to have their inception in constipation, which also causes premature old age: dulls brains and makes sufferers sluggish.

As dangerous and annoying as constipation is; as terrifying as its possibilities are, yet you can permanently relieve it with Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumbled! Bran is not a "remedy," but it is nature's own food—roughage—that acts on the eliminative passages in nature's way, sweeping, cleaning, purifying! Your physician will indorse Kellogg's Bran for constipation.

We guarantee that Kellogg's Bran will relieve the severest case of constipation IF IT IS EATEN REGULARLY—at least two tablespoonfuls daily; in chronic cases, eat it with each meal.

And Kellogg's Bran is delicious—its nut-like flavor appeals to the most fastidious appetite. Use Kellogg's Bran as a cereal or sprinkle it over your favorite cereal; or, it can be used to make delightful raisin bread, buns, pancakes and a host of good things—and all the time working for health. Buy Kellogg's Bran at grocers.

Do You Know All Your Good Prospects?

Do They Know You?

THE most valuable asset a business can have is a wide acquaintanceship. It would be a wonderful thing for your business if every logical prospect for your line knew your firm, knew what you made or sold, and all of its good points.

Few concerns can truthfully make these claims. In fact, only a few can rightly claim they know all the concerns they ought to do business with.

This is all wrong! Today especially, when there are three sellers to every buyer—when you are wishing you had more customers instead of more goods—it is very wrong.

First, you ought to be absolutely sure that you know every well rated concern you have a good right to sell.

Next, you ought to take immediate steps to see that they know all about you—what a fine house you are—what a good line you handle—what excellent values you offer.

—telephone Gramercy 6363
—write Rapid Addressing Machine Co.
—or, visit us at 34 West 23d Street

And let a Belknap Service Man explain Belknap Service in full—from our 98% Guaranteed Lists of All Trades to ways and means of reaching the concerns on those lists—easily, effectively, economically and profitably.

Important: When he is working with you, please remember he is a Specialist not a Salesman. His mission is to help you, not to sell you. Listen to him attentively; answer his questions frankly; volunteer any information you think he ought to have. In other words help him to help you, if you really want help.

Belknap Systems of Addressing are proving life savers for all sorts of concerns in all kinds of business today

By removing the expense, time-loss and drudgery from all forms of addressing work, a Belknap System enables you constantly to keep your prospects posted about you—and encourages them to send you orders.

Many concerns who were timorously wondering what 1922 had in store for them—after taking a lot of unnecessary punishment in 1921—are now facing the future with new faith in themselves, their line, their trade, and the country.

And with unbounded respect for the particular Belknap System which enabled them to turn vigorous broadsides of direct selling effort on all the worthwhile concerns capable of handling their lines—resulting in a fresh grip on and mastery of what before that was a bothersome situation.

Don't make the mistake of thinking you can't afford a Belknap System of Addressing. If money means anything to you, you can't afford not to have one.

You are wasting its cost times over without ending—in leaks and losses due to old-fashioned methods of handling all sorts of addressing work, to say nothing of the profits you are losing on account of the sales which a Belknap System can't make for you until you own and operate one.

Phone Gramercy 6363, and ask a Belknap Service Man to call. Booklet on request

BURNED FACTORY CALLED A 'FIRETRAP'

But Building in Which One Was Killed "Was Within the Law," Officials Say.

RUSTON BEGINS INQUIRY

All the Persons in Brooklyn Structure Accounted For—Eight Were Injured.

The factory building at 126 to 142 Thirteenth Street, Brooklyn, where fire on Monday caused the death of one person and the injury of eight others, was a fire trap, but as far as the investigating officials could learn yesterday, everything was within the law," according to District Attorney John E. Ruston, Ralph E. Hemstreet, his chief assistant, and Fire Marshal Thomas Brophy.

Firemen searching the ruins of the five-story factory yesterday failed to find other victims of the fierce fire that left the immense building a charred shell in less than two hours. An investigation by the police of the Fifth Avenue Station revealed that eleven persons were in the building when the fire started and all have been accountd for. The police have received no word of persons missing because of the fire.

Mr. Ruston and Mr. Hemstreet spent nearly all night at the scene of the fire and returned to it in the morning. Mr. Ruston said late yesterday:

"There is no doubt that the building in its antiquated construction was a fire trap, but as far as Fire Marshal Brophy and myself have been able to learn, all fire regulations have been complied with. This fire tends to give to the belief that the most stringent laws cannot relieve an imminent fire hazard and make the old wooden structures safe places of employment for a large number of people. I realize the panic that seizes one when flames are approaching, but still I cannot understand why the fire escapes and fire tower in the rear of the building were not used. That is a point that must be cleared up. If the doors leading to the fire escapes and tower were locked, such condition was criminal negligence of a very grave kind under the circumstances. If possible, this matter will be cleared up at once."

It was definitely established yesterday that the blaze started on the third floor, occupied by Freedman Schachter as a waist and blouse factory. It is thought that one of the operators in the pressing department may have left an electric iron without turning off the current when he left the place.

Mr. Hemstreet said that he was particularly interested in the condition of the fire tower)" at the rear of the building. This is a cement structure running the entire height of the building enclosing steel stairways. The landings at each floor are protected by steel doors.

"If we find that the victims did not use this escape because of panic there is nothing to be done," said Mr. Hemstreet. "If, however, we find there was some reason why it could not be used then it will be time for us to take action. I have learned indirectly that some of those on the top floor tried to use this tower they saw flames shooting into it from one of the lower floors and they were forced back into the main building. We are anxious to find out whether such a condition did or did not exist."

It was learned yesterday that Eugene Feraten, who was burned to death, had been relieved from duty for Monday by his employer, Louis Weinstein, because of a court case in which he was interested. He went to the court and when he found that he would not be required to remain all day he obtained permission from the judge to leave on the ground that he had business to attend to. He at once returned to the factory.

Fire Marshal Brophy said yesterday that he had discovered nothing suspicious as to the origin of the fire.

MRS. CHAMPION'S CASE GOES TO JURY TODAY

Texas Woman Accused of Murder in Cleveland Says Fatal Shots Were Accidental.

CLEVELAND, Oct. 31 (Associated Press).—Testimony was concluded and summing up arguments by the State opened late today in the first-degree murder trial of Mrs. Mabel Champion, charged with the slaying of Thomas A. O'Connell, carnival promotor, of New Haven, Conn., in a restaurant here last July. The case is expected to go to the jury late tomorrow.

"This girl is from Texas and shoots from the hip," declared Prosecutor Stanton in his address to the jury. This statement was objected to by defense counsel, who declared there was no evidence supporting "the hip shooting." The Court sustained the objection.

The State sprang a surprise in its rebuttal testimony by offering the blood-covered clothing of O'Connell as evidence, and through Captain Daniel Stanton, firearms expert of the Cleveland Police Department, Prosecutor Ruffin demonstrated that the death shots could not have been fired at close range, as the defense contended.

During the introduction of this evidence Mrs. Champion showed her first emotion in the whole course of the case. She turned her face away as the clothing was presented, and as the prosecutor described the shooting she buried her face in her hands.

Attorneys for Mrs. Champion declined to summon rebuttal witnesses, declaring they were "willing to let the case rest."

As a witness in her own behalf when court opened today, Mrs. Champion admitted she fired the shots that killed O'Connell, but claimed the gun she held was discharged accidentally in the attack upon her husband by O'Connell.

Mrs. Champion told how she and her husband drove up to the restaurant about midnight, after motoring throughout the evening, and were accosted there by O'Connell, drunk and staggering, who pleaded with her husband for a drink.

The defendant admitted that her husband, Ausley Champion, carried a bottle of whisky with him and that he gave one of three men in front of the restaurant a drink. She said she pleaded with her husband not to enter the restaurant when one of the men in the group informed her the man who repeatedly asked for a drink was "Eddie Collins," and that he "was dangerous when drinking."

Mrs. Champion testified that she implored her husband to drive away from the restaurant in the belief that the men would disperse. Returning later they entered the restaurant with Mr. and Mrs. Guy Williams, the couple who were seated at the Champion table when the fatal shots were fired.

"Did you intend to shoot O'Connell," her attorney asked.

"Oh, no, sir," she replied.

1,250 PUPILS MARCH FROM BURNING SCHOOL

Blaze in Attic of Utrecht High Building in Brooklyn—Excited Parents Crowd Streets.

Fire in the attic of the New Utrecht High School, a two-story and attic structure on Eighty-sixth Street, near Eighteenth Avenue, Brooklyn, forced 1,350 children and 46 teachers to the street yesterday. They got out in one minute, according to Dr. Harry A. Potter, Principal. No one was injured.

The firemen fought the flames for 25 or 30 minutes, and confined them to the attic. The other floors were drenched with water.

A pupil discovered the fire. He saw smoke coming from a stockroom in the attic and ran down to the office of the Principal on the first floor. Dr. Potter sounded the fire alarm and the school fire drill signal. The response of the pupils and teachers was instant, and the fire apparatus arrived quickly.

Dr. Potter said that the cause of the fire had not been ascertained, and that he has started an investigation.

Word that the school building was on fire spread rapidly through the neighborhood and parents and other relatives of the pupils soon crowded the streets around the building. Reserves were called from the Bath Beach police station who formed fire lines and reassured the anxious parents that every one was safely out of the burning structure.

Examination of a number of electric wires running through that part of the building in which the flames were first discovered revealed nothing indicating that the blaze originated in a short circuit.

QUIET IN VLADIVOSTOK.

Foreigners Are Reopening Their Shops In View of Reds' Moderation.

TOKIO, Oct. 31. (By Associated Press).—Virtually every town in Korea and Manchuria has its quota of Russian refugees from Siberia, who have fled before each advancing wave of Red control.

Many are destitute, all are without homes and nearly all are plodding toward either Mukden or Harbin, hoping that somewhere on friendly soil the remnants of their army will be gathered for another blow at the Soviets.

The troops of the Far Eastern Republic are seizing all arms in Siberia held by civilians, but freedom of personal movements is not abated, and so far no muzzle has been placed on the press.

Encouraged by the forebearance of the Reds, the Japanese and other foreigners who have prepared to flee from Vladivostok are re-opening their shops, while banks which had closed are operating again.

Premier Koborieff of the Far Eastern Republic, has left Chita for Vladivostok, where he will establish himself as head of the Siberian Government.

The new régime at Vladivostok has declared null and void all concessions granted to foreigners by its predecessors, the Merkulov and Dieterichs Governments.

Contact

What is it?

When is it established?

One of the useful words of modern business is "contact." In an electrical sense, the word means the meeting of points in such a way as to permit the passage of a current between them.

In business, "contact" means the frequent meeting of buyer and seller in such a way as to increase acquaintance and confidence.

The time of salesmen is largely employed in keeping up contact. A lot of time is lost this way, because, while contact is necessary, much of it can be established without personal visits, and most of it can be maintained without personal visits.

Direct advertising does it. Letters, booklets, folders, broadsides, and other mailings can be prepared that will go to every buyer and prospective buyer. If intelligence is used in their preparation, they can convey the current of a better understanding to more people, more frequently than is possible with individual calls.

After you have read and admired a dozen mailings from a firm, you know that firm and its policies better. It is not a stranger to you. The salesman who calls finds contact already established. The flow of communication is already at work.

Better Printing is not a theory. It is a practical thing and, applied to commercial mailings, is a proved success.

Better Printing is the result of the work of Better Printers and Better Paper. It is not new. All good printers know ways to help you establish and maintain contact with more people. Get in contact with a good printer.

DAMASK CAPTURES MANLY MEMORIAL

Greentree Stable's Jumper Wins Feature Event at Inauguration of Pimlico Meeting.

KNOBBIE FINISHES FIRST

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Oct. 31.—Before a gay crowd of 20,000 spectators who helped to inaugurate the Autumn racing season at Pimlico this afternoon the Greentree Stable's Damask captured the $10,000 Manly Memorial Steeplechase and proved himself one of the high-class timber-toppers. At the end of the two miles and a half journey Damask gained the verdict by a nose from W. G. Wilson's Lieutenant Seas, while Mrs. F. Ambrose Clark's Minata was third among the eleven starters. The race was worth $8,100 to the winner.

The Pimlico season opened auspiciously, for the day was bright and warm and the snug plant was filled to capacity. A good card had been arranged, with the steeplechase as the feature event. The victory of Damask was popular, for though this is his first season in cross-country racing, he was well supported by those who patronised the mutuels.

Damask demonstrated the class which had made him one of the top flight handicap horses in flat racing. Under a well-judged ride through the early stages by Barret Haynes the son of All Gold had the most speed for the last furlong. J. S. Cosden's Musty and Howard Maxwell's Decisive made the early pace in the race, but were never able to draw far away from the field and after making two circuits of the course they were utterly through.

As they dropped back Lieutenant Seas moved up and appeared to have a commanding position, for he was running strongly. Damask did not begin to crowd the leaders until reaching the back stretch for the last time, when he got into third position, and going around those in front of him gradually moved up until he was only two lengths from the leader as he cleared the last jump. Once on the flat he outgamed Lieutenant Seas, but did not establish his victory until the last jump.

Four Jumpers Go Down.

Four horses went down during the course of the running and two of the riders received rather serious injuries. Pierce, who had the mount on Harlocker, suffered concussion of the brain after his fall at the clubhouse fence, and Kleeger on Courteous suffered a fractured collarbone when his mount went down.

The Pikesville Purse, a dash of six furlongs which brought out some of the top-notch juveniles, resulted in the most surprising upset of the afternoon when E. R. Bradley's Boys Believe Me got home in front of Crochet and Rigel and paid $58.70 for the usual $2 investment. The public had placed its faith on August Belmont's Osprey and T. W. O'Brien's Shamrock, both of which were well back at the finish.

Boys Believe Me was close up to Crochet, which made the pace to the furlong pole, where she weakened when put to a drive. Shamrock ran a good race and moved up stoutly at the head of the stretch, but tired badly when it appeared he was about to catch the leaders. Osprey was next to last in the large field and had little chance with the break. He was pinched back at the start and then knocked off his stride and bothered to show any speed.

Trainer George Odom, who saddled Osprey, had another disappointment in the sixth race when Robert L. Gerry's Emotion once more failed him in a test at a mile and a furlong. She finished second, half a length back of G. Konigswald's Comic Song, which made all the pace and lasted to withstand the challenge of the Gerry filly. Trevelyan was third among the four starters. Emotion moved up and appeared to have caught the leader, but hung badly in the last sixteenth.

Knobbie Comes Back to Win.

The Rancocas Stable carried off the winner's share in the Arlington Handicap, a six furlong dash that brought out some of the best sprinters. Knobbie came back to the races fresh and won a close verdict from Mainmast, with Little Chief, also from the Rancocas Stable, third only a head away. Dry Moon, Prudery and Dinna Care among others trailed home behind this trio. Knobbie displayed his best speed but was ridden out by Sande to hold the fast diminishing lead.

MULDOON GIVES OUT BOXING AGENCY PLAN

O'ROURKE AND BUCKLEY HIT

Must Return Licenses If They Are to Deal With Boxers—Scale of Pay Recommended.

For the purpose of disproving the opinion that his recommended boxing agencies might have a monopoly on ring engagements under the State Athletic Commission and to clarify any misconception of his plan to create agencies through which boxers can be booked for bouts, Chairman William Muldoon yesterday made public a set of regulations under which the boxing agencies must conduct their business. The main purpose in issuing his regulations, Chairman Muldoon said, was to dispel the theory that the commission will control the proposed agencies and to emphasize the fact that such agencies will have no monopolistic tendencies.

One of the regulations announced by Chairman Muldoon following the weekly meeting of the commission would eliminate the only existing agency or compel its directors to abandon their present direct associations with professional boxing. The rule provides that "no members or workers in any agency may be licensed as 'managers' with this commission, nor may they have any official connection with a club, either as matchmaker or in any other capacity; nor may they have contracts with any boxer of any nature."

Under this rule the agency recently announced as under the joint direction of Tom O'Rourke and Jim Buckley would be disqualified as an operating enterprise, or O'Rourke and Buckley would be compelled to return their licenses to the commission. Chairman Muldoon said that O'Rourke now is licensed as a manager of boxers, having applied for and received a managers' license when his license as matchmaker lapsed with the inactivity of the Republican C. O'Rourke resigned as a Commission Deputy to assume the post of matchmaker of the new club, which has a permit to conduct boxing bouts at the Polo Grounds. Buckley, Chairman Muldoon said, is licensed as the matchmaker of the Pioneer A. C.

Must Not Operate as Managers.

The proposed agencies are under no circumstances to operate in the capacity of managers and the contracts for bouts will be signed by the boxers and clubs involved. A percentage scale of compensation is recommended in the announced regulations under which the agencies would receive 10 per cent. of a boxer's pay up to and including $1,000 for a single bout, 5 per cent. for bouts arranged at between $1,000 and $5,000 and 3 per cent. for bouts arranged at figures above $5,000.

The regulations, which Chairman Muldoon specifically announced as tentative and subject to change, follow:

Outline of plan on which boxing agencies must formulate their method of doing business:

1. When contracts are made for boxers to perform at clubs, the contract is to be made as between the boxer and the club management.

2. Agencies must not use the name of "manager" in doing their business, either by correspondence or in signing agreements.

3. When an agency furnishes a boxer to a club it must be understood that the connection herein established with the boxer terminates with this engagement.

4. No members or workers in any agency may be licensed as "managers" with this commission, nor may they have any official connection with a club, either as matchmaker or in any other capacity, nor may they have contracts with any boxers of any nature.

5. This commission will insist that club managements and boxers fulfill their agreements with booking agencies.

6. In the matter of remuneration a booking agent may receive a percentage from the boxer and the club management, and in all cases the amounts of these percentages must be approved and fixed by this commission.

7. No money is to be paid to boxers simultaneously with the expiration of the contract. In all such cases moneys must be paid at the club the day following, between the hours of 10 A. M. and 2 P. M., unless otherwise ruled for exceptional reasons.

Suggestions for compensation: Boxer to booking agent not to exceed 10 per cent for a bout arranged for $1,000 or less; 5 per cent. for a bout calling for $1,000 to $5,000; 3 per cent. for bouts above $5,000.

Club to pay a percentage on all bouts that are arranged on a flat money basis, in other words, the commission on star bouts to be fixed.

Chairman Muldoon elaborated on the provisions of his tentative regulations in discussing the projected agency idea. "I expect through the agency proposition to eliminate the manager from boxing," said Chairman Muldoon. "The majority of them are to be regarded only as parasites. As such they furnish influences which retard rather than advance the sport. I think this agency idea will eliminate an objectionable element from the sport and thus pave the way for even greater prestige and recognition for boxing.

Idea Misunderstood in Some Quarters.

"The idea, I see, has caused confusion and has been misunderstood in some quarters. I expect that. It follows everything that is new. Right here I want to emphasize that there will be no monopoly of boxers or boxing, no control of boxers by agencies and no control of agencies by the commission. The boxers simply will register with an agency, supply all correct information as to name, age, weight and record when applying for a bout, and will pay a percentage to the agency for securing the bout. This financial detail will all be worked out definitely later. For the present the regulations which have been tentatively adopted, will serve to guide us.

"I think the idea is a good one and one that will prove popular as it becomes understood. Of course, I do not expect a rush of agents to race into the situation. People must familiarize themselves with the conditions before opening a business of this sort. Then, too, if anybody expects to start in the business with the idea of making a lot of money quickly, that individual is in for a surprise. Many of the boxers now are under contract to managers and these contracts are binding. It is when these contracts expire that the agency idea will get a real test. In the meantime we must prepare for that test."

Chairman Muldoon announced that he had revoked the boxer's license of Henry Campi, a middleweight boxer, who was disqualified in the semi-final bout at the Broadway Exhibition Association last Monday, for hitting his opponent. Panama Joe Gans was hailed before the commission as a result of his disqualification for an alleged foul in a bout in Brooklyn last week. The negro welterweight was let off with a reprimand.

Chairman Muldoon took occasion to announce that he will sanction a bout between Jack Dempsey and Tom Gibbons for the former's world's heavyweight championship only if Gibbons beats some other good heavyweight before entering the ring against the champion. Gibbons, Chairman Muldoon said, is twenty pounds lighter than Dempsey, and cannot afford to concede this weight advantage to the champion. Chairman Muldoon suggested a bout between Gibbons and Bill Brennan as a sort of elimination trial to produce an opponent for Dempsey. If Brennan is not available, Chairman Muldoon said, Gibbons should engage some other heavyweight of recognized ability.

Bennett Makes New Motorcycle Record from Coast to Coast

A new motorcycle record for a transcontinental run from Los Angeles to New York was established late yesterday when Wells Bennett of Portland, Ore., holder of a number of speed marks, reached his destination in the actual running time of 6 days, 15 hours and 13 minutes. His time was 7 hours and 39 minutes faster than the record established a month ago by Erwin G. "Cannonball" Baker of Los Angeles, who covered the distance of 3,296 miles in 6 days, 22 hours and 52 minutes. Bennett, who also holds the world's 24-hour and 1,000-mile records, left Los Angeles last Tuesday at midnight and crossed the finish line at 6:14 P. M. yesterday.

Comparison of Ring Rivals Who Meet in Title Battle

Following are the measurements of Jack Britton, the champion, and Mickey Walker, challenger, who will box for the world's welterweight title this evening in Madison Square Garden:

BRITTON TO DEFEND HIS TITLE TONIGHT

Local boxing followers are promised a remarkable spectacle tonight at Madison Square Garden—the spectacle of the ring sport's oldest active exponent defending a world's championship title. Jack Britton, veteran of over 570 battles in a career extending over eighteen years, will defend his world's welterweight title against Mickey Walker, Elizabeth, N. J., pretender to the championship. The men are scheduled for fifteen rounds. The contest will be fought at the recognized welterweight limit of 147 pounds at 2 o'clock this afternoon. A decision in Walker's favor, or a victory by a knockout or on a foul for the Elizabeth boxer, will automatically change ownership of the title.

Britton and Walker have clashed before. In a meeting last year in New Jersey the pair boxed twelve rounds without an official decision. The majority of newspaper decisions following this battle were in Walker's favor, a condition which encouraged Walker to camp on the trail of Britton for a title bout to a decision. In their last meeting Britton floored his rival in the first round but the contender rallied strongly thereafter and accumulated enough points to appear entitled to the unofficial decision.

In tonight's battle Britton will enter the ring the favorite. The champion is older than his prospective rival, it is true, but, contrary to the general rule, Britton's boxing ability does not appear to have been affected by the advancing years. In his remarkable string of battles since taking up the sport Britton has developed a wonderful store of boxing knowledge until he is today regarded as one of the cleverest and most effective defensive boxers in the ring, a cool ring general, possessing flashing speed of the hands and feet, unerring accuracy as a puncher, and with power enough to command respect for his blows. These qualifications are responsible for the conviction of Britton's admirers that he will retain his championship title against Walker.

Walker is accepted as a dangerous contender for the title. He has the natural strength of youth, good physical development, and is a shifty boxer with a dangerous punching power. The Elizabeth boxer has the championship incentive to spur him on when he enters the ring against Britton. This is expected to induce Walker to his supreme effort. The challenger lacks nothing in confidence, despite Britton's admitted skill as a boxer and the champion's ring generalship. Walker is confident that his youth, strength and boxing ability will overcome Britton's advantages in boxing skill. Both boxers are reported in tip-top shape, down to the required weight and ready for the fray.

A semi-final bout, scheduled for twelve rounds, will bring together Eddie Fitzsimmons, Yorkville welterweight, and Sailor Friedman of Chicago. In a six-round bout Eddie Goodrich will tackle Red Cap Wilson. Johnny Gannon will oppose Charley Goodman in the opening four-round battle.

JOHNSON KNOCKS OUT VIDAS IN TWO ROUNDS

Iowa Heavyweight Stops Rival With Right to Jaw in Pioneer A. C. Bout.

The name of Joe Vidas, Philadelphia heavyweight, was added to the list of knockout victims of Floyd Johnson, Iowa heavyweight, last night at the Pioneer A. C. The men clashed in what was to have been the principal bout of ten rounds at the East Twenty-fourth Street Club. Vidas succumbed to the heavy punches of the Iowan in the second round, after exactly 1 minute and 50 seconds of action in the fatal session. A terrific right to the jaw, following a rapid-fire assault to the face and stomach, brought about the defeat of Vidas and gave Johnson one of his easiest victories since coming East.

Johnson was not forced to extend himself to gain this latest triumph. He demonstrated superiority over the Philadelphian from the time the men squared off at the opening gong. After a short session of one-sided sparring in the first round, Johnson floored his rival for a count of nine. Two powerful rights to the jaw, delivered in rapid succession, sent Vidas crashing to the ring floor. Johnson fought furiously to end the battle in the opening session, but Vidas weathered the storm. Soon after responding to the bell in the second session Johnson unloosed an assortment of blows to the face and body and then crashed over a decisive right to the jaw which ended hostilities. Vidas tried to regain his feet at the count of seven, but toppled back on the canvas again and was counted out. Both boxers weighed 195 pounds.

In the semi-final bout of ten rounds Jack Douglas, west side heavyweight, gained the decision over Eddie Josephs of Staten Island. Douglas floored Josephs in the third round for a count of nine and accumulated a clear margin on points thereafter. Silent Furler, negro heavyweight of Philadelphia, gained the decision over Joe De Costa, Brazilian, in the first ten-round bout.

CORRY AND GAFFNEY LEAD.

Take First Place From Goullet and Kockler in Six-Day Race.

CHICAGO, Oct. 31.—Frank Corry and Lawrence Gaffney took the lead in the six-day bicycle race here tonight after an hour's sprinting, deposing Alfred Goullet and Ernest Kockler, the latter of Chicago. The leaders had 118 points to their credit while the team in second place had piled up 102.

The riders had covered 870 miles at 10 o'clock tonight, the forty-eighth hour of the race which will end next Saturday night. Fourteen of the fifteen teams that started last Sunday night were still in the grind tonight, although three of them were a lap behind the field. Freddie Hill and Morence Declerck, the Belgian, were in a bad smashup during tonight's sprints, both being knocked unconscious. After a rest they were able to continue.

New Baseball Park for Kansas City.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 31.—The Kansas City Club of the American Association will open the 1923 baseball season in a new park, according to an announcement made today by George Muehlebach, President of the club. The new park will cost $250,000, he said.

CHAMPION DEMPSEY PLANS TRIP ABROAD

Receives Offers of $250,000 and $125,000 for Bouts in England, McKetrick Says.

Jack Dempsey is contemplating another visit to Europe. The world's heavyweight champion, it became known yesterday, plans to leave here in January unless something develops in the meantime which requires the titleholder's attention here. Dempsey says he is eager to defend his title against anybody permitted to enter the ring against him.

Dempsey now is engaged on a theatrical tour which will end on Dec. 24 in San Diego, Cal.; but he declares he is tiring of the life before the footlights. He craves action in the ring. He has a natural preference for boxing in this city, or at least in this immediate vicinity, for it is in the metropolitan area that he can make the most money.

If Dempsey is prevented from boxing here, either through the lack of available opponents or the impossibility of holding a desirable match, Dempsey plans to journey to England for ring battles.

Dan McKetrick, Eastern representative for the champion and the latter's manager, Jack Kearns, made the foregoing statements yesterday on behalf of the champion. McKetrick further declared that Dempsey now has under consideration two enticing offers for bouts in England next Spring. The offers were contained in letters which McKetrick yesterday admitted receiving from different promoters.

One of the two proposals seeks to induce Dempsey to make the trip to London for the purpose of defending his title against Battling Siki, the Senegalese who gained the world's light-heavyweight title through his knockout of Georges Carpentier. The champion, McKetrick said, has been offered $125,000 for this match. The offer, however, is contingent upon Siki defeating Joe Beckett, English heavyweight champion, in London on Dec. 7.

The other offer is for a bout in London against Harry Wills, New Orleans negro challenger for the heavyweight title, who is considered the only formidable rival of the champion. According to McKetrick, a London promoter has offered Dempsey $250,000 for a bout in London against Wills.

McKetrick declined to disclose the identities of the two London promoters who, he said, were seeking to engage Dempsey. To the disclosure of the amount offered Dempsey in each proposal McKetrick added that each promoter had stipulated that he would assume the burden of the English income tax for the champion and would pay all of Dempsey's expenses. This explanation McKetrick advanced in order to show that Dempsey would receive every penny of the $125,000 and $250 000 without being compelled to make any tax rebate. McKetrick said he had forwarded the letters containing the offers to Manager Kearns, in order that the communications might reach the champion's manager in Toledo.

"I don't know exactly what Dempsey's plans are following his theatrical tour," said McKetrick. "If he is expected to remain here seeking bouts these two offers from English promoters may cause him to change his program. He had planned to visit Europe again and intended to sail next month; but the theatrical work interfered. Dempsey's tour closes on Dec. 24 and he intends to spend Christmas and New Year's at his home in Los Angeles. If there is any prospect for a championship bout here, Dempsey undoubtedly will come East after the holidays. If no bout is in sight, then it is altogether likely that he will sail for Europe some time in January."

McKetrick denied any knowledge of attempts to arrange a bout between Dempsey and Tom Gibbons for Madison Square Garden. He said he had received no direct word that Promoter Tex Rickard contemplated such a bout.

DEMPSEY'S TRIP UNCERTAIN.

Kearns Says Champion May Stay Here if Siki Comes to U. S.

CHICAGO, Oct. 31.—Jack Dempsey and his manager, Jack Kearns, had made their plans to invade Europe the first of the coming year until Kearns read in the newspapers this morning that Siki, the battling Senegalese, was coming to America. Now the Dempsey trip is in doubt.

Kearns has received an offer from a syndicate of London business men for Dempsey to meet the winner of the Joe Beckett-Siki fight in London on Dec. 7. There were also offers of theatrical engagements for Dempsey in Europe.

Dempsey's trip abroad still is on if Siki is beaten by Beckett, in which case Dempsey will meet Beckett, Kearns said. If Siki wins and comes to America, Dempsey's trip probably will be cancelled, Kearns added. Dempsey will join Kearns here on Thursday.

BYRNE CALLS MEETING.

Met. A. A. U. Registration Committee to Hold First Session Nov. 9.

The Metropolitan A. A. U. Registration Committee will hold its first important meeting at local A. A. U. headquarters on Nov. 9. Notification of the meeting was sent yesterday to the committee members by Stephen A. Byrne, Trinity Club, who has succeeded Jacob W. Stumpf as chairman. In the announcement of the meeting, it was stated, several important matters will be discussed. The coming session will be the first under a new arrangement whereby the committee will hold meetings regularly on the first Thursday of each month during its term of office.

Billiard Results

By defeating Pasquale Natalie, 125 to 103, at the Fourteenth Street Billiard Academy last night James Maturo entered the semi-final round of the tournament to decide the Eastern professional pocket billiard championship. Maturo had a high run of 28 and Natalie 27. The semi-final matches will be contested today. This afternoon Arthur Church will play George Clark and this evening Charles Grogan will meet James Maturo.

Playing off a tie to decide first place in the three-cushion tournament which has been in progress in Doyle's Billiard Academy for the last month, James Rose defeated Herbert McKay last night by the score of 25 to 23. In the pocket billiards tourney Harold Shuler defeated John Hampton, 65 to50. Herbert Hall was the winner over Edward Pugh in English billiards, the score being 250 to 241.

Playing against Tadao Suganuma, the 19-year-old Japanese expert, at the Roppe-Peterson Billiard Club last night Willie Hoppe averaged 50 in a 300-point exhibition at 18.2 balkline. The former world's champion ran out in six innings. He defeated Suganuma 300 to 52. Hoppe made a high run of 146 and another unfinished cluster of 133.

Sidney Brussel easily defeated P. J. McGowan in the balkline tournament at Lawler Bros. last night. The score was 150 to 85. Brussel averaged 5 5-29 and had a high run of 34, which tied the high run record for the tournament. McGowan averaged 3 1-28 and had one run of 17.

Roger Conti defeated William H. Hahn by 400 to 60 at the Recreation Billiard Academy, Brooklyn, averaging 40 in the 18.2 balkline exhibition game. The winners' highest run was 150. Edgar T. Appleby will be Conti's opponent tomorrow night.

Dr. T. W. Tuggie was the victor in last night's game in the three-cushion billiard tournament for the Cranfield Trophy being played at the Cranfield Academy. He defeated Harry Towils, 25 to 12, in sixty innings.

In an exhibition match at Daly's yesterday afternoon Jake Shaefer, world's 18.2 balkline champion, defeated Ben Saylor, 400 to 19. Schaefer's high run was 104 and his average 100. In the evening he again defeated Saylor, 400 to 78. His high run was 224 and his average 36 4-11.

In the three-cushion Class A billiard tournament at Joe Thum's Academy last night Harry Frisch defeated Al Ackerman by a score of 35 to 21.

PRINCETON CLUB IS BEATEN AT SQUASH

COLUMBIA CLUB IS VICTOR

Triumphs Over Crescent A. C. by 6 to 1—Montclair Defeats New York A. C., 5 to 2.

With many of the players exhibiting close to midseason form, six teams yesterday afternoon started the race for the Class B team championship of the Metropolitan Squash Tennis League. The D. K. E. Club, Columbia University Club and Montclair Athletic Club were the winners.

The Greek leter team, which showed such marked improvement in last season's tournament, started where it left off, and beat the Princeton Club on the latter's court by the surprising margin of 6 matches to 1. The Columbia Club treated the Crescent A. C. to the same medicine, winning by an identical score, and Montclair took five matches to the New York Athletic Club's two. This was the debut in the league of the N. Y. A. C.

D. K. E. exhibited admirable staying powers in its match with the Princeton Club. Five of the winners for the Dekes lost the first game of their matches, and then came back strongly to take the next two. A sixth match was also extended into three games, but in this case H. S. Thorne, the winner, dropped the second game instead of the opener.

Thorne, playing No. 1 for his team, defeated O. S. Greene by scores of 15—11, 11—15, 15—8. Greene is a newcomer with the Princeton Club team this season. He has been a resident previously of Cincinnati, and learned his squash in that city at the University Club. Incidentally, he learned it extremely well, for he gave the versatile Deke a hard battle in every rally.

Ward in Hard Match.

E. L. Ward, Captain of the Dekes, had to work even harder than Thorne to add a point to his team's total. He defeated the Princeton team Captain, J. M. Denison, by the margin of only 1 point in the third game. The scores were 12—15, 15—12, 18—17. Nothing closer than that could be imagined, and Ward was fortunate to win against such persistent opposition. R. H. George, playing No. 2 for the Dekes, did a highly creditable job in downing Jarvis Cromwell. George was one of the five men who dropped their first games and then came from behind to win½ the others being Ward, C. B. Stuart, W. C. Becker and G. G. Davidson. Two of Stuart's games ran into extra points, the match being scored 16—18, 18—15, 15—11. C. McKibbin was the sole victor for the Orange and Black. He won in straight games from W. W. Taylor, 15—7, 15—9.

For the Columbia Club, Harold Kellock, R. B. Haines and W. D. L. Starbuck, the Nos. 1, 2 and 3 players, respectively, won their matches in straight games. H. G. Larson, A. S. Moses and W. M. Lee, in the last three positions, were forced into an extra game. A. S. Rothwell was the only Columbian to lose. E. P. Cypliot of Crescent defeated him by scores of 15—11, 15—7. The Columbia players seemed to be in unusually good practice for the opening day of the season.

The Montclair A. C. presented a team of which most of the players had had experience in last year's race, while of the N. Y. A. C. only M. M. Sterling, playing No. 2, and F. M. Loughman, No. 6, had figured in previous tourneys. Sterling has played for several seasons with the Crescent A. C. His first match under his changed allegiance brought him defeat at the hands of the veteran Frank A. Seller by 15—12, 18—15. This match was admirably played from first to last.

Piel Is Impressive Winner.

Gottfried Piel Jr. and R. E. Hughes played as the No. 1 men, and the former made an impressive debut in a victory by 15—11, 15—9. The N. Y. A. C. men are being well coached by William Ganley, who was formerly the professional at the Harvard Club and who is the lawn tennis pro at White Sulphur Springs and Seabright. Besides Piel, James Butler Jr. was a victor for the Winged Foot organization. He beat J. B. Halsey by 15—8, 15—5. The winners for Montclair, besides Seller, were J. G. Waldron, C. A. Hipkins, R. A. Luchars and W. B. Spencer. Waldron was extended to three games to defeat M. A. Bergfeld, and Spencer was also required to go the limit in his match with Loughman.

The summaries:

D. K. E. Club 6, Princeton Club 1.

H. S. Thorne, D. K. E., defeated O. S. Greene, Princeton, 15—11, 11—15, 15—8; R. H. George, D. K. E., defeated Jarvis Cromwell, Princeton, 9—15, 15—6, 15—8; J. C. McKibbin, Princeton, defeated W. W. Taylor, D. K. E., 15—7, 15—9; C. B. Stuart, D. K. E., defeated R. L. Farrelly, Princeton, 16—18, 18—15, 15—11; E. L. Ward, D. K. E., defeated J. M. Denison, Princeton, 12—15, 15—12, 18—17; W. C. Becker, D. K. E., defeated George Brackenridge, Princeton, 7—15, 15—12, 15—6; G. G. Davidson, D. K. E., defeated John C. Neely, Princeton, 8—15, 15—10, 15—3.

Columbia Club 6, Crescent A. C. 1.

Harold Kellock, Columbia, defeated H. R. Burroughs, Crescent, 15—4, 15—9; R. B. Haines, Columbia, defeated Donald Bellows, Crescent, 15—2, 15—10; W. D. L. Starbuck, Columbia, defeated N. F. Torrance, Crescent, 15—10, 15—8; E. P. Cypliot, Crescent, defeated A. S. Rothwell, Columbia, 15—11, 15—7; H. G. Larson, Columbia, defeated J. W. Ivins, Crescent, 10—15, 15—5, 15—2; A. S. Moses, Columbia, defeated J. C. Tredwell, Crescent, 15—11, 3—15, 15—10; W. M. Lee, Columbia, defeated C. W. Fyfe, Crescent, 15—6, 10—15, 15—8.

Montclair A. C. 5, New York A. C. 2.

Gottfried Piel Jr., New York, defeated R. E. Hughes, Montclair, 15—11, 15—9; Frank A. Seller, Montclair, defeated M. M. Sterling, New York, 15—12, 18—15; J. G. Waldron, Montclair, defeated M. A. Bergfeld, New York, 17—18, 18—10, 15—12; C. A. Hipkins, Montclair, defeated J. S. Casey, New York, 15—3, 15—1; R. A. Luchars, Montclair, defeated W. A. Dalton, New York, 15—9, 15—11; W. B. Spencer, Montclair, defeated F. M. Loughman, New York, 7—15, 15—8, 15—11; James Butler Jr., New York, defeated J. B. Halsey, Montclair, 15—8, 15—5.

President Harding May Attend the Army-Navy Football Game

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—President Harding is expected by Navy Department officials to be on the side lines when the football teams of the Naval Academy and West Point meet on Nov. 25 at Philadelphia in their annual game. Secretary Denby said today that he had urged the President to attend the game and that the President looked with favor on the proposal, final decision being dependent on the condition of Mrs. Harding. Efforts also have been made by naval officials to get the President to attend the Navy-Penn State game to be played Friday at American League Park here, but the Executive was said to be disinclined to deviate from his policy of attending no public functions of any kind during the convalescence of Mrs. Harding.

CANAPARY TO PLAY AGAINST ITHACANS

Former Blue and White Captain Takes Gehrig's Place in Columbia Back Field.

Scrimmage was omitted from the long drill which Coach Buck O'Neill prescribed for the Columbia University football team at Baker Field yesterday afternoon. With that exception, however, the team went through nearly every sort of possible practice for the big game with Cornell at Ithaca Saturday. There was a signal drill, dummy practice, some instruction in line blocking and much individual coaching in the course of the proceedings.

There is little doubt that O'Neill will make use of his most recent acquisition, Frank Canapary, against Gil Dobie's Big Red team, and from present indications the redoubtable former captain of the Blue and White will be used in the back field in place of Gehrig. The latter will not be dropped from the varsity as a result of the shift, however, but will take the place of Ken Scovil at guard. Canapary will unquestionably add strength to the offensive power of the Lions, and if he displays the same form that he did two years ago he will be a thorn in the side of the Cornell eleven. Besides his admitted ability in lugging the ball he is a sure and hard tackler, and will be of great value to O'Neill's secondary defense.

The Columbia team will leave for Freeville, N. Y., tomorrow night and will be quartered at the Republic Inn there until the day of the game. Six hundred seats have been reserved at the game for Columbia rooters, the majority of whom will leave here on a special train Friday night. Buses will also be run to Ithaca and these will leave the Heights at noon on Friday.

O'HEARN WILL PLAY QUARTER FOR YALE

To Start in All Remaining Games —Three Eli Cripples Back in Scrimmage.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 31.—Complete restoration to physical condition of three more of the members of Yale's football hospital list landed them on the varsity squad today, when the regulars were given the first scrimmage practice since the West Point game. Charlie O'Hearn, Eddy Bench and John Haas returned to the line-up and played in the backfield fully half of the afternoon.

The coaches have shifted their plans regarding O'Hearn, instead of reserving him for merely the Princeton and Harvard games. He will be started, it is expected, in every one of the four remaining matches of the season. Most of Yale's troubles on the gridiron this Fall have been caused by the lack of a quarterback, as O'Hearn, George Becket and Russell Murphy, who ran the eleven last Fall, have all been shelved by injury in the last six weeks.

O'Hearn and Newell Neidlinger will be assigned the field generalship rôle against the Brunonians. Neidlinger, who has played the position since the injuries of O'Hearn and Becket, was rested today. O'Hearn will be used in the scrimmaging tomorrow and Thursday, and the Yale backfield will be reorganized for the Brown game with Whitey Neale at left halfback, either Scott or Mallory at fullback and Captain Jordan at right halfback. Bench replaced Captain Jordan in the second half of today's practice. Haas succeeded Scott. Ted Wight replaced Neale and Dan Kelley played quarterback when O'Hearn retired.

In the rush line Danny Deaver was installed at right end. He was a regular in that position last year, but Tony Hulman has displayed superior football until the last fortnight, when Deaver's following the ball led the coaches to replace him as first string man. Mike Eddy and Dick Luman divided the matinee at left end, Ed Greene replaced Johnny Joss at left tackle, Lester Miller began the practice at right tackle, but was replaced by Jack Diller. Harry Cross was at the practice in street clothes, suffering from a severe cold. Phil Pillsbury replacing him at right guard and Phil Cruikshank retaining left. Lovejoy and Landis divided the afternoon at centre.

Two touchdowns were scored on the scrubs. The varsity started their march for the goal by grabbing the ball at the scrub 30-yard line, Jordan and Neale alternating in short plunges, mainly at tackle until the 5-yard line was reached, where Neale took the oval across by skirting end, and O'Hearn kicked a following drop goal.

DOBIE COACHES LINE.

Shows Ithacans Tactics Used by Columbia and Dartmouth.

ITHACA, N. Y., Oct. 31.—Another hard practice, devoted largely to defensive work, was on the Cornell program today, Coach Dobie giving the regulars and subs a demonstration of the tactics Columbia and Dartmouth usually employ. He devoted special attention to coaching the line.

The Red forwards were on their toes most of the time, ably assisted by the alert Ramsey, who is the key of the secondary defense. Hanson and Sundstrom, the tackles, loomed big in the day's workout and Dobie is relying heavily on their strength and football intelligence to diagnose and turn back the offensive efforts of Columbia and the big Green outfit.

The line-up was regular most of the time, but Dobie tried out Buckley and Kneen at ends, and he also brought Post into the fullback position and gave his substitute halfbacks, Whitstone and Wade, a brief workout.

MAT SEASON WILL OPEN.

Stecher Meets Cutler in Feature Match at Pioneer A. C. Tonight.

The wrestling season will be ushered in tonight at the Pioneer A. C., where the first of a series of professional grappling carnivals will be conducted. Three matches, each to be two falls out of three, under the rules of the State Athletic Commission, are scheduled for decision. The feature mat struggle will be between Joe Stecher, Nebraska heavyweight, and Charley Cutler of Chicago. This match is a return engagement. Six years ago Stecher gained a decision over Cutler in a bout in Chicago. The Nebraskan, whose scissors hold has gained him distinction as one of the leading heavyweight wrestlers in the country, is the favorite over Cutler.

Another match will bring together Nat Pendleton, former international amateur heavyweight champion, and Yusiff Hussane, Turk grappler. The third bout will be between Peter Jarvis, claimant of the middleweight championship, and Ed Fields.

PENN STATE LOSES ITS STAR TACKLE

Schuster Is Declared Ineligible Owing to Alleged Violation of Residence Rule.

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., Oct. 31.—Penn State's hopes for victory over the Navy on Friday received a setback today when it became known that Dick Schuster, star left tackle, was ineligible for intercollegiate competition for the remainder of the year. Violation of the one-year residence rule is charged.

SANFORD MAKES CHANGES.

Rutgers Football Coach Tries New Combination in the Line.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Oct. 31.—Things hummed on Nielson field here this afternoon, as Coach Foster Sanford, showing unmistakable signs of dissatisfaction with the Rutgers line, tried some new combinations. Captain Polhemus, the guard on the freshman eleven, was sent to centre on the varsity. Flanking Polhemus in the guard berths were Kingman, a regular, and Fuchs, the 225-pound sophomore, who, for the moment, succeeded Feller.

Among the new players being rounded up is Harvey Guein, a 6-foot 200-pounder from Dover High School. Although short on experience, Guein is long on football ambitions, and Sanford today put him under the special coaching of John Scudder. Guein aspires for a line position.

ANOTHER REFEREE REVERSES RULING

J. T. Clinton, Following Morice's Example, Changes Lehigh-Muhlenberg Score.

That week may be counted as lost in which a football referee does not discover several hours or days after a game that he had made a wrong ruling on a touchdown play. Billy Morice set the fashion when he reversed his ruling in the Columbia-N. Y. U. game, and J. T. Clinton follows in his footsteps by taking a touchdown away from Muhlenberg in last Saturday's game with Lehigh. However, the reversal does not deprive Muhlenberg of a victory; it merely makes the score in Lehigh's favor 26 to 0 instead of 28 to 7.

According to the story coming out of Bethlehem, Referee Clinton, who is a Yale man, voluntarily admitted his error on a play in the fourth period. Shortly after Lehigh had scored her last touchdown Muhlenberg got a first down on about Lehigh's 36-yard line. A forward pass was grounded, but a second one yielded 5 yards. A third pass also failed, and on the fourth down, with 5 yards to go, Witt fumbled on a running play, but recovered the ball himself, without, however, making the distance necessary for a first down.

Despite this, Referee Clinton waved the sticks ahead and gave Muhlenberg a first down, and the visiting team, continuing its offensive, ultimately scored a touchdown. The correct ruling, of course, would have given the ball to Lehigh on downs.

Navy in Consolation Game.

In the nature of a consolation game will be the battle between Penn State and the Navy in the Washington American League baseball park next Friday. Neither team did what was expected of it last Saturday, and both are waiting to smite the first team which happens along.

The game is being played on Friday for the reason that Holy Cross and Georgetown have engaged the field for Saturday, and the teams do not want to play the contest at Annapolis, where it was originally scheduled, because no admission can be charged. College football is not without its high finance.

Incidentally, the Navy and Penn State are far from being new rivals on the gridiron. They have met fifteen times, beginning as far back as 1894, when a tie game was played. In those days Penn State was not so powerful as now and lost three straight games, but came back to win three in a row. In the fifteen games the midshipmen have an edge, having won eight, lost five and tied two.

Norwich University, up in Northfield, Vt., has modest ambitions in a football way. At the present moment the Vermonters would be satisfied merely to score a point against an opponent, something they haven't yet succeeded in doing. The University of Michigan is at the other end of the scale; not a point has been scored against Yost's eleven, and no other important college team can boast of this distinction.

Exactly twelve teams have beaten all their opponents and have not even been held to a tie. The select group includes Harvard, Pennsylvania, Lafayette, Princeton, Cornell, California, Notre Dame, Iowa, Washington, Wisconsin, Dickinson and Massachusetts Aggies.

On the freshman team at Michigan is another Heston, nephew of Judge William Heston of Detroit, who was called "Willie" Heston when he was one of the great backfield stars of all time. The new Heston is named LeRoy. He is six feet tall, weighs 180 pounds, and, like his celebrated uncle, came to Michigan from Grant's Pass, Cal.

Sanford May Go to Yale.

At the Pennsylvania State banquet here on last Friday night, which was attended by dozens of prominent football men, there was a persistent report that Foster Sanford, the Rutgers coach, will go to New Haven next year as successor to Tad Jones. Sanford is a Yale graduate and has always been one of the alumni most active in football affairs. Of late years his activities have been confined to Rutgers; before that he was at Columbia in the days of the Blue and White's greatest pulssance. Those who heard the rumor Saturday were skeptical as to its accuracy.

Lovers of fine line play will do well to go to the Polo Grounds Saturday and see Lafayette. The Easton forwards have no equals in clearing out ahead of the backs, and the individual play is not only excellent, but there is cohesion and unity to the charge. Captain Schwab, All-American guard, is of course the best of the lot, but Deible at tackle and Conti, the centre, are close on his heels.

For a team which has won seventeen straight games Lafayette presents a simple attack, not diversified, but done smoothly and well. According to reliable testimony, Coach Sutherland has had a more varied offensive on tap for three years, but has never been so hard-pressed that he had to use it. However that may be, Lafayette's play will be smooth and well-oiled rather than intricate. Its most effective weapon is a criss-cross started from an unbalanced line, with the ultimate ball-carrier stationed behind the end of the long side. The play is well masked and generally ends in an off-tackle smash.

Nebraska, which, according to Steve O'Rourke, St. Louis University coach, could play Harvard on Thursday, Yale Friday and Centre Saturday and beat them all, will try to beat Syracuse in a single afternoon in the Salt City Saturday. Fred Dawson, one-time Columbia coach, is the Cornhuskers' tutor.

WOULD IMPROVE LINE.

Thorp Devotes Time to Strengthening N. Y. U. on the Defensive.

With three games within eight days scheduled for New York University's team, Coach Tom Thorp is devoting most of his time to perfecting the offensive play of the Violet eleven. In the practice session yesterday afternoon on Ohio Field he paid much attention to the improvement of the line in charging and driving. Bill Cosby, former star halfback of Colgate, is assisting Coach Thorp in drilling the varsity line in this department.

Three of the regular forwards did not participate in the workout. Captain Walter Taylor is still nursing broken fingers, but is being groomed to play in the Fordham games; O'Toole is recuperating from minor hip injuries, while Meyers, his running mate, was allowed to rest.

The Violet team may cause a surprise by their aerial attack against Trinity next Saturday, for Under Coaches McCarthy and Weinheimer yesterday had all available backs and ends engaged in a long drill in throwing and receiving forward passes. Thorp rounded off the practice session with line scrimmaging against Trinity formations.

HARLOW DRIVES SQUAD.

Special to The New York Times.

HAMILTON, N. Y., Oct. 31.—Realizing that Lehigh will be one of the strongest opponents on the remainder of the Maroon schedule, Coach Harlow sent the Colgate squad through a hard practice session today in preparation for the game at Binghamton Saturday. Scrimmage started at 4 o'clock and lasted until after dark, big arc lights being used to light the field.

Bub Townsend, the speedy back from Flushing, L. I., played a sensational part in the scrimmage, tearing off several long runs, and it is possible that he may displace one of the backs on the first eleven before Saturday.

N. Y. U. Freshmen Play Today.

The New York University freshmen will open their football season this afternoon with an informal contest with the Fordham yearling eleven at the Maroon's stamping grounds. The last-minute cancellation of a game scheduled for last Saturday against Stamford High School by the prep school officials accounts for the late start of Coach Wall's team.

Yale Invites Iowa to Play In Bowl Again Next Season

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 31.—Definite announcement that Yale has invited Iowa to play at the Yale Bowl next season was made here tonight. An answer from Iowa is expected soon. This invitation indicates conclusively that intersectional games are not barred by the so-called "triangular agreement," made by Yale, Harvard and Princeton.

Professor Clarence W. Mendell, Chairman of the Yale Board of Athletic Control, said tonight:

"We are very anxious to meet Iowa next year and are hoping that they will be able to accept the invitation. There have been reports that the Western Conference has barred intersectional games, but inasmuch as we haven't received any confirmation of this we are inviting Iowa to play us here again."

W. AND J. TEAM HAS ANOTHER HARD DRILL

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Pa., Oct. 31.—Head Coach Neale unexpectedly ordered another scrimmage for the Washington and Jefferson football team today. He announced yesterday that he would give his players but one hard session this week, but after the display of yesterday he decided to stage another battle between the varsity and the second team. He may have been prompted in his decision by the men coming through the Monday workout without additional injuries, but the main reason was that the varsity could not stop the second team, which used Lafayette plays.

Neale was pleased with the spirit shown by his regulars today, but not with the results of their defense against Lafayette's mode of attack. The regular varsity backfield was in the fray, and the line that will be used against Lafayette, with the exception of Crook, who is to play right end, was employed. Crook's injury is rapidly mending, however, and he will be in at the start of the game at the Polo Grounds. Perkins was used at left guard today, and Neale will probably start him there against the Maroon, although Haddon has until today been the coach's selection for the place.

Another piece of good news today was that Erickson has apparently regained his normal condition. West, the colored backfield star, however, is not in as good shape as he might be and will probably not start the Lafayette contest. If he does not, Futhey will replace him.

Snedigar, McLaughlin and Konvolinka were all on the field today in uniform, but did not participate in the practice.

PRINCETON VARSITY HAS EASY PRACTICE

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 31.—Princeton's varsity football squad started out in earnest here this afternoon to prepare for Harvard and Yale. All of the regulars who participated in the Chicago game Saturday were out on the field for the first time and indulged in practice. Johnny Gorman, the quarter who was slightly injured at Chicago, also was out today, although he did not scrimmage.

Practice consisted of training in punting, drills in unfamiliar plays, signal drills for all elevens and a long period of tutoring of the "omelettes" in Harvard plays and formations. While the varsity was having an easy day of it, with a great deal of blackboard talk and work in fundamentals the scrubs were being given a real workout. Phil Brasher, of the class of 1906, was on hand to assist the coaches in teaching the scrubs their new Harvard plays.

After a combination of varsity and second varsity had tried a couple of new plays, Coach Roper took a regular line-up and ran them through a long signal drill. This was followed by a dummy scrimmake. The team lined up as follows: Ends, Drews and Smith; tackles, Treat and Troup; guards, Dickenson and Howard; centre, Alford; quarter, Wingate; halfbacks, Cleaves and Bergen; fullback, Emery. Several of the first-string varsity players did not go into the drill at all. Crum, Baker, Gray, Snively and Gorman were on the field, but did not enter the practice.

Soon after practice began Tillson went in to relieve Smith at end. Roper also shifted his backfield after about ten minutes. Newby went in at halfback for Bergen, who was shifted to his old position at quarter in place of Wingate. Silis was given a chance at tackle, replacing Troup, and Stout went in for Tillson at end. Drews, a new man on the varsity team, played the other wing position all afternoon. Euwer also was rushed into the backfield for a few minutes of the signal drill, but otherwise had an easy afternoon.

Previous to the signal drill Roper took a portion of the line and backfield off to one side and gave them a half hour's practice on a few of the less familiar plays. A scrimmage will probably be on the program for tomorrow.

PENN RESUMES SCRIMMAGE.

Regulars Score Five Touchdowns Against Junior Varsity.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Oct. 31.—Penn's football team held its first scrimmage after the Navy game today and scored five touchdowns on the junior varsity players. Captain "Pos" Miller, Tex Hamer, Bob Grove and Rae McGraw were in the varsity backfield at the start. Johnson and Pruneret were at the ends; Graft and Thurman, tackles; Papworth and Sutherland, guards, and Dern, centre.

Fairchild and Ertresvaag, the regular ends, did not get into the scrimmage, as both are being given extra instructions by Coaches Hartman and Scarlett.

During the afternoon "Pos" Miller scored twice, while McGraw, Hamer and Sullivan each went over for one touchdown. Sullivan, Hamilton, Wittmer and Langdon were sent into the scrimmage after the first quartet had a long drill, and Dern then called signals from centre.

Clarke Craig reported for scrimmage, but Coach Heisman did not use him, although he took part in blocking practice early in the afternoon.

BOYNTON JOINS BENEDICTS.

Former Williams Grid Star Married to Miss Katherine Darby.

Special to The New York Times.

WILLIAMSTOWN, Mass., Oct. 31.—Announcement was made here today of the marriage of Ben Lee Boynton, former Williams football star and All-American quarterback a few years ago, to Miss Katherine Darby, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Fulton Darby of Steelton, Pa., where the ceremony was performed on Oct. 27. Boynton's home is in Waco, Texas, but since his graduation from Williams in 1921 he has been with the Bethlehem Steel Company.

HARVARD REGULARS CONTINUE HOLIDAY

Only Three Members of Varsity Eleven Report for Practice—Pinkham Promoted.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 31.—Only three members of the Harvard varsity eleven were dressed for football and out on Soldiers Field for work this afternoon, the other men who took part in the Dartmouth game either continuing their holiday or coming to the stadium in street clothes simply to keep in touch with what was going on. However, Dr. Richards says that the squad as a whole is in splendid shape to begin its November campaigning.

Every year about this time Harvard stages what is known to the players as "fight week," but there will be nothing like that this year, so the doctor says, as the eleven has had about all the hammering it is entitled to get during the season. The coaches would like to put the players through some work before the Florida game, but what the doctor says always goes on Soldiers Field.

This afternoon Roscoe Fitts still remained at end, being at left end on the third team. He was the only varsity man who took part in the dummy scrimmage between teams B and C this practice being a very thorough offensive drill and with plenty of kicking.

Pfaffmann, after playing quarter for a time on one of the teams, went to halfback and did the punting while for the other team Hammond got away some very fine kicks.

C. E. Pinkham, from Newton, who played there with George Owen, was promoted from the scrubs to the varsity squad today, and Owen worked with him on the first team's signals. Clark and Eastman did not report at all, and unless the latter's knee gets a lot better the veteran centre rush will not be used Saturday against Florida. Kernan, the sub centre, has advanced very rapidly.

The players had a long lecture in the locker building today before going to the stadium. The plans of the Princeton campaign were outlined, and for the next ten days every effort will be made toward the match with the Tigers. There probably will be scrimmages tomorrow and Thursday, but the hardest part of the work will be done by the subs, who probably will do most of the playing on Saturday.

It now looks as if Jenkins and Holder will be groomed for the Princeton game. Hartley, the right end, is not quite ready for hard play. The coaches apparently have not yet decided to return Fitts to the backfield, for if he could play as steadily at end as he sometimes does he would make a very fine end.

FEARS W. AND J. PASSES.

Coach Sutherland Drills Lafayette In Aerial Game Defense.

Special to The New York Times.

EASTON, Pa., Oct. 31.—That Coach Sutherland fears the aerial attack of the Washington and Jefferson eleven was demonstrated this afternoon by the manner in which he drilled his Lafayette squad in preparation for the game with the Presidents at the New York Polo Grounds Saturday. Virtually the entire afternoon was devoted to perfecting a defense against the reputed sensational aerial of W. and J.

The scrubs using the Washington and Jefferson formations and plays went through a dummy scrimmage with the varsity and gained considerable ground on forward passes. The run of seventeen consecutive victories has not made Lafayette overconfident.

Easton will be like a deserted village on Saturday. Because the Faculty has declared the day a holiday the entire student body and band will accompany the team.

It is the world made familiar by Fabre, "the incomparable observer" as Darwin called him—the insect world, in short. Or at least the Czechoslovakian Karel Capek and his brother Josef present it as such, with the aid of Owen Davis as American adaptor. Louis Untermeyer contributing poem parodies and Lee Simonson a gorgeous and highly original scenic investiture. With all due respect to this brilliant assemblage of talent, the impression persists that it is all rather a libel on the insects.

Somewhere these butterflies, beetles and ants must have been contaminated by the example of rather degenerate humans. The butterflies are Viennese, with something more than the levity and lasciviousness portrayed by Arthur Schnitzler, yet with no vestige of the moral perspective that gives substance and meaning to his satire. A number of ageing beauties amorously tempt a young poet who is infatuated only with his own imaginings, and then taunt one another with their failure. Surely Fabre would blink at this perversion of butterfly nature.

The world of beetles, "the marauders," is likewise traduced. Not that it is made too horrible. The worst atrocities revealed fall short of the lethal violence of the preying mantis who straightway murders and eats her harmless, necessary husband; or of that grisly water creature who lays her eggs upon the wings of her bridegroom so that he drowns and ripens into carrion in the nick of time to nourish the strong appetites of their young. These beetles of the Capek brothers practice murder in the manner of the human moron actuated by no motive but selfish gain and a delight in bloodletting. There is a mere hint of the cosmic purpose, the impulse of procreant nature, which inspires maternal ferocity.

The industrious, valiant ants are likened the the Prussian. They labor as if in a treadmill until the call to arms is sounded, when they march forth to slaughter under the inspiring influence of ant-patriotism. War correspondents, war workers and bond salesmen crowd the scene and add to the horrid picture of national sacrifice. The great conflict is waged for the possession of a roadway "between two blades of grass," with visions of "world domination" beyond.

We have here, in short, a bug-eyed view of the human race. The original title of "The Insect Comedy" has been changed to "The World We Live In." But the insects who thus represent the world are not the intensely striving if fantastic and remorseless creatures observed by Fabre, but a travesty conceived in the spirit of the wartime pacifist and peacetime hater of progress.

Through two acts a chrysalis gives forth cries of a creature striving to be born, a creature vibrant with a great new message to the world. When at last she comes forth she dances a brief measure and falls prostrate in death, her message unspoken.

In fairy countries, one is told, pessimism is a fashion much affected by the very young. Books and plays that have the reputation of inspiring their readers to suicide achieve the greatest vogue. Be it so. A nation that delights in Pollyanna has little ground for complaint. It need only be noted that one may take this mid-European pessimism too seriously.

And so we come back to the setting devised by Lee Simonson which is, we repeat, of marvelous beauty and originality, adroit in scenic device and harmoniously resplendent in color.

NEW INVENTION INSURES SECRECY OF WIRELESS

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES. Copyright, 1922, by The New York Times Company.

PARIS, Oct. 31.—The first perfection of apparatus for insuring the secrecy of wireless and telegraph messages was claimed today for a French electrical engineer, Edouard Belin, inventor of an instrument for transmitting photographs by wireless.

The apparatus is called "radio-cryptotele-stereographe," or "crypto-tele-stereographe," according to whether it is used for wireless or the ordinary telegraph. The instrument is unlike Marconi's to direct waves to a given point. It resembles in principle a modern safety lock. Sending and receiving instruments, each of which consists of six concentric disks, are perfectly synchronized.

The disks each contain a notch and can be moved at an angle in relation to each other. A lever falling into the disks causes rotation of the cylinder and leaves a given space between the notches to reproduce the message, which is received according to a code analogous to Morse's, but is reproduced in letters and figures.

To keep listeners-in from deciphering the values used between stations, a simple arrangement is added whereby false signals, which do not affect the cylinders, but which cannot be distinguished by outsiders from real messages, are being constantly sent when the instrument is not in use.

POSED AS MRS. FLAGLER.

Woman, Who Said She Was His Widow, Accused of Larceny.

Mrs. Zora Emma Flagler, who for many years has been representing herself as the widow of Henry M. Flagler, railroad magnate, was arraigned on a charge of larceny yesterday before Magistrate Sweetser, in West Side Court, and held in $300 bail for Special Sessions. When the prisoner recited with intimate details the history of the Flagler family, the Court got into touch with the offices of the Flagler estate and learned of the annoyance she had caused the family by masquerading here and elsewhere as the widow of Mr. Flagler.

Mrs. May Hyde, who conducts a rooming house at 21 West Eighty-sixth Street, appeared as complainant against Mrs. Flagler, who, she said, had come to her house, accompanied by an elderly man, and obtained rooms for several months. Mrs. Hyde asserted that Mrs. Flagler owed her $300, and that she later lodged a room at the home of Mrs. Anne M. Wilkinson, 134 West Eighty-fifth Street. Mrs. Wilkinson, Democratic district leader, testified that Mrs. Flagler ran up a bill of $70 and departed. She said she missed several articles after her roomer left. Mrs. Flagler admitted to Magistrate Sweetser that she had been sent to Auburn Prison for five years following her conviction in connection with a stock deal in 1913.

'DRESDEN CHINA GIRL'S $100,000 SUIT ON TRIAL

A jury in the Supreme Court yesterday began hearing the $100,000 suit of Maud L. Ceballos, an actress, who was known as Mona Desmond, "Dresden China Girl," when she appeared in the Weber & Fields shows, against Clifford R. HeHndrix, a wealthy broker. She alleged that he promised to marry her in 1919, and that relying on his promise she gave up a theatrical career and was "supported or in great measure by him." The suit was filed against Mr. Hendrix in May, 1920, on the eve of his marriage to Miss Eugenie M. Terry, daughter of Major John M. Terry.

Mr. Hendrix, who inherited a fortune from his father, Joseph Hendrix, at one time Postmaster of Brooklyn, stated at the time that Miss Terry knew about Miss Ceballos's claim, and said that he paid $3,000 to Miss Ceballos to release her claim.

Miss Ceballos testified yesterday that Mr. Hendrix told her he would marry her as soon as she had been divorced, that her husband dropped a suit he had brought against her, and that she then sued him and obtained a decree in August, 1919.

When cross examined, Miss Ceballos denied that she ever sued one Abraham Levy for breach of promise, but said that in 1903, when she was 22 years old, and had just come to New York from New Orleans, she met Levy at the old Hotel Cadillac, where she lived. "I didn't want to marry him, but sued him for jewels that I lent to him when he needed money," she said. She insisted that if her attorneys drew up papers in a breach of promise suit she didn't know it.

Testimony was introduced by Humphrey J. Fuller, attorney for Mr. Hendrix that in 1904 Miss Ceballos was married after midnight in a Philadelphia hotel to a young Princeton student named Fuller, who obtained a divorce from her in New Mexico. When asked if she did not retain the late "Abe" Rummel to sue Fuller's parents for $50,000 damages, she said she could not remember the amountof damages sought. She admitted that she was co-respondent in the suit in which Edna May got a divorce from her first husband, but did not appear in the case.

The trial will continue today.

HID ROYAL NECKLACE IN A LUMP OF BUTTER

Bulgarian Smugglers, Detected, Said Reigning House Was Thus Safeguarding Its Jewels.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Oct. 31.—A dispatch from Bucharest says that a necklace valued at 20,000,000 crowns, said to be the property of the royal family of Bulgaria, was discovered in a lump of butter by the police while they were searching the baggage of four merchants preparing to pass the border into Czechoslovakia.

If the smugglers' story is true there is more romance attached to the jewels than the manner of their concealment. According to the four prisoners, the necklace was entrusted to them by an agent of a member of the Bulgarian royal family in anticipation of a political uprising which might force the owners to flee the country. This is the first intimation that the Bulgarian royal family has been preparing against such a contingency.

VANDERBILT BARBER SUES.

Letter of Cornelius Jr. Praises Alienation Case Plaintiff.

Peter Marisca, who was the barber of Cornelius Vanderbilt Jr. for eight years, is suing Joseph Marino for $50,000 for alienation of the affections of Mrs. Marisca, it was learned yesterday when Marino, through counsel, applied to Justice Van Siclen in the Supreme Court, Brooklyn, for an order setting aside his arrest and imprisonment in connection with Marisca's suit. Justice Van Siclen reserved decision.

Frank L. Carrao, attorney for Marisca, filed an affidavit in which he said that Mr. Vanderbilt manifested interest in the case of his faithful barber by a letter he wrote recently. Part of the letter reads:

"I am deeply interested in his case and trust that if there is anything the authorities can do in order to help him in what I consider to be a just cause, they will let me know."

Mr. Carrao said his client was suing to recover for "the cruel and outrageous breaking of his home and heart."

TO BEGIN CUBAN MISSION.

W. P. G. Harding Starts Today for Financial Work There.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—W. P. G. Harding, former Governor of the Federal Reserve Board, who has accepted an invitation from the Cuban Government to assist in reorganizing the island's finances, will leave Washington tomorrow for Havana. He will be accompanied by his daughter Miss Margaret Harding, and Miss Alsa Mellon, daughter of the Secretary of the Treasury.

Mr Harding's appointment as special financial adviser to the Cuban Government has given rise to the belief at the Treasury that he may aid in the institution of a program of banking in the island similar to the Federal Reserve System in the United States. There were no official statements, however, on that phase of the mission.

HARDING TO SEE NEGROES.

Will Hear Plea for Extra Session on Anti-Lynching Bill.

BOSTON, Oct. 31.—President Harding will receive representatives of the National Equal Rights League, a negro organization, on Saturday to hear their application for an extra session of Congress to consider the Dyer Anti-Lynching bill, officers of the league announced tonight.

A petition for the extra session, signed by thousands of persons from fifteen States of the Union, will be presented to the President at the hearing, it was said. The Dyer bill, passed by the House, had not been acted upon by the Senate when Congress adjourned.

'Judy and the Bunch' Here Nov. 20.

"Judy and the Bunch," a musical comedy with music by Jerome Kern, lyrics by Anne Caldwell, and book by Miss Caldwell and Hugh Ford, will be produced at the Globe Theatre by Charles B. Dillingham on Monday night, Nov. 20. The cast will be headed by Fred and Adele Astaire, Joseph Cawthorn and Ray Dooley. Prior to the New York engagement the production will be seen for two weeks in Philadelphia.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

"The Monster" will end its engagement in the Thirty-ninth Street Theatre this week. It will be seen on tour.

Phyllis Povah has been engaged for "Hospitality," which the Equity Players will produce at the Forty-eighth Street Theatre.

The Duncan Sisters, who returned to New York yesterday on the Olympic, will be seen in a musical comedy written by themselves and Guy Bolton, to be produced by Guy Bolton.

The Shubert Vaudeville Circuit has taken over the Harlem Opera House, formerly a Keith theatre. It will be reopened as a Shubert house next Monday.

A Sermon in a Storm.

THE TOWN THAT FORGOT GOD, directed by Harry Millarde, from a scenario by Paul H. Sloane, with Bunny Grauer, Warren Krech, Jane Thomas, Harry Benham, Edward Denison, Grace Barton and others. At the Astor.

The film formula that calls for a "big scene" and then "a story" to go with it seems reduced to its simplest terms in "The Town That Forgot God," the Fox picture which opened at the Astor Theatre Monday evening. The "big scene" is a wind-rain-and-lightning storm. It is destructive. There is a great deal of wind, lots of rain and incessant lightning that terrifies the people in the story and hurts the eyes of the spectators in the theatre. But it's a teleological tempest. It is supposed to be sent by God to a town that has forgotten Him—and thus is revealed again the sermonizing propensity of the movies. They can't even have a storm without giving it a moral purpose.

The moral purpose is, of course, provided by the attached story, which is mainly about a little boy who is brutally treated by everybody in the town except his parents, who die young, and a half-wit carpenter, who expresses love by rolling his eyes. But the boy is faithful and devout, and in an epilogue is shown as the wealthy and happily married head of a large industrial organization, which may mean that the moral of the piece is that you needn't expect virtue to be its only reward. In other words: Be good and grow rich.

"Rain" Will Be Produced Tuesday.

"Rain," a play founded on Somerset Maugham's short story "Miss Thompson," will be produced at the Maxine Elliott Theatre Tuesday night by Sam H. Harris. Jeanne Eagels will head the cast. John Colton and Clemence Randolph are the authors.

By RICHARD ALDRICH.

The Philadelphia Orchestra.

The Philadelphia Orchestra's second program given at its Carnegie Hall concert last evening was a diversified one, ranging from Schubert's "Rosamunde" overture and Schumann's C major symphony to an entr' acte from Mussorgsky's opera of "Kovantchina" and Stravinsky's youthful indiscretion called "Fireworks"; while as soloist was presented Mme. Sigrid Onegin, the new mezzo soprano, who will appear in the German operas at the Metropolitan Opera House this season.

The orchestra showed itself in its most admirable form in the way of tone, brilliancy and precision, and its playing roused great admiration. The performance of Schumann's Symphony brought back to the concert stage a work that in recent years has almost disappeared from it; for conductors when they play Schumann's symphonies at all now favor the first and the fourth. The adagio of this one should alone be enough to keep it from anything like oblivion—surely one of the most heartfelt and beautiful of the composer's utterances.

It was played with a surging and self-contained passion, welling up in noble tone, lovingly phrased by the first oboe, who has so much of its melodic burden to carry. The scherzo scintillated with a delicate brilliancy, and there was a pulsing life in the first and last movements; yet perhaps not all the warmth of feeling that might have been there.

The orchestral interlude from Mussorgsky's opera of "Kovantchina" is a briefly impressive tonal picture that perhaps needs its connection with the opera to produce all the gloomy and fateful effect. The continued figure played by the double basses is singularly impressive and the melody which is sustained above it a most characteristic product of Mussorgsky's sombre inventino.

Mme. Sigrid Onegin disclosed herself at once as an artist of distinguished gifts in voice and in dramatic expression. It is a powerful and darkly colored mezzo soprano, used with more skill than is common in singers of her class, with a good command of phrase and discerning declamation; a voice well equalized throughout its range.

Unfortunately, Mme. Onegin did not give herself much opportunity to show her powers of interpretation and musical insight.

She sang "The Lament of Andromache," from Max Bruch's cantata, "Achilles," a piece of dull declamation, and two of Richard Strauss's songs, "Hymnus," written with an orchestral accompaniment, and "Muttertändelei," for which an orchestral accompaniment has been provided. Neither belongs among the composer's most valuable songs, and, while they gave the singer opportunity for sonorous declamation, they called forth little warmth of feeling. But Mme. Onegin disclosed qualities that will give her appearance on the operatic stage an interest out of the common.

Wendling String Quartet.

The Wendling String Quartet, though it had been announced for only one concert of its own in New York, gave a second yesterday afternoon in the Town Hall. It played the new quartet by Leo Weiner that gained the prize of $1,000 offered by Mrs. Coolidge for the Berkshire Chamber Music Festival this year, and followed it with Hugo Wolf's "Italian Serenade" and Schubert's posthumous D-minor quartet.

The new quartet by Weiner confirmed the good impression of it gained at the first performance at Pittsfield in September. It is a gloomy composition; and gloom, under the circumstances the time and the place of its composition, should not be unexpected. But the composer has ideas; he has expressed them skillfully, with coherence and impressiveness. The music says something; and while it is not extreme in following the innovations of the newer age, it speaks in a contemporaneous idiom.

Mr. Wendling and his colleagues gave an excellent performance of this work, as they did at its first performance in Pittsfield.

SINGER AND PIANIST HEARD.

Griffes's Music at Miss Howell's and Miss Drury's Recitals.

The name of the late Charles T. Griffes was twice honored in yesterday's Aeolian Hall recitals, his song, "Time Was When I in Anguish Lay," being introduced in Dicie Howell's soprano program in the afternoon, while last night Norma Drury played his piano impression of "The Fountain of Aqua Paola."

Miss Drury, a last season debutante, who is now 16 and wears her hair down her back, played one other American composer's work, the "Sonata Brolca" of MacDowell. She is maturing in strength, judgment and imagination, qualities that marked her playing of MacDowell's lovely scherzo, a more heavy-handed scherzo of Brahms and the B-minor prelude of Rachmaninoff.

Miss Howell, absent a year since she sang for two seasons here, gave not only Griffes's air but also a novelty, "Sundown," dedicated to her by R. Huntington Woodman, and a "Mexican Love Song" arranged by Frank La Forge. She sang classic and modern pieces in Italian, English, German and French, with no great variety of tone, but always vocal discretion and good taste.

John Barrymore to Be Seen Nov. 16.

Mme. Sorel to Give Five Plays.

Mme. Cecil Sorel, the French actress, whose forthcoming appearance here was recently announced, will be seen at the Thirty-ninth Street Theatre during the week of Nov. 13. She will present five plays during week: "L'Aventuriere" on Monday and Thursday nights; "Le Misanthrope" on Tuesday and Friday nights; "Le Duel" Wednesday afternoon; "Camille" Wednesday night and Saturday afternoon, and "The Taming of the Shrew" on Saturday night.

"The Love Child" to Open Nov. 13.

"The Love Child," by Bataille, will be produced at the George M. Cohan Theatre on Monday night, Nov. 13, by A. H. Woods and Charles L. Wagner. The play has been adapted by Martin Brown, and the cast will include Janet Beecher, Sidney Blackmer and Lee Baker.

MUSIC NOTES.

Admiral Hilary P. Jones, whose flagship, the Maryland, is at the Navy Yard, Brooklyn, will be a guest with the Commandant of the yard, Admiral C. T. Vogelgesang, and eighteen other naval officers stationed in and around New York at the concert of Sousa's Band on Sunday night at the Hippodrome.

Boyd M. Hanchett, Emma Steiner, Augustus Post, Frederick Tracy, the Traub Trio and others will appear Thursday evening under the auspices of the Board of Education Public Lecture Service in the hall of the Washington Irving High School.

Jane Manner begins with Chekhov's "The Bear Guide" on Thursday morning a series of readings with music at Aeolian Hall.

Walter Yres will appear Friday evening at Aeolian Hall in a recital of G. M. Baker's "Pressent da Riedit."

A FEW WORDS ABOUT A YOUNG WOMAN AND YOUR MONEY

Miss Louella O. Parsons is the motion picture editor of The Morning Telegraph. Her business for quite some years has been to study and judge the values of motion pictures.

Most motion picture editors have the fortune of addressing a casual audience, but Miss Parsons speaks to the motion picture trade. By her position, she is accepted as an advisor and judge for the motion picture exhibitors. Men invest tens and probably hundreds of thousands of dollars on this young woman's judgment.

The very fact that she continues in her position many years is proof that her judgment is exceptionally keen and accurate. Her judgment is proven by hundreds of thousands of dollars through the years. Perhaps in spending your money for entertainments, you will be concerned in her interesting remarks:

I took to see "One Exciting Night" a man who confesses to ennui when he is forced to look at the "movies." He said he had an engagement, but would look at one or two reels.

"Don't be offended," he begged, "when I leave, because I have an important business appointment."

"It's all right," I assured him. "I have an idea this isn't up to the Griffith standard anyway."

"Your engagement," I gasped. "I forgot. You'd better hurry, perhaps you can make it."

"My engagement be hanged," he said. "If I had an appointment with President Harding, I wouldn't leave this theatre. The most important thing in my life is to learn who murdered Johnson."

The amusing part—I, who have seen thousands of films, felt the same way. Only a few weeks ago, in a mental cross-examination, I had accused myself of having seen too many pictures and here I was, sitting on the edge of my chair, breathlessly waiting the next development.

"One Exciting Night" is the best medical prescription I know. It will take you out of yourself and make you forget you ever had a trouble. It is so absorbing, if you invested your fortune and lost every penny you would forget it once you entered the Apollo Theatre.

Even at the risk of being thought a low brow, I maintain David Wark Griffith has never made such an enjoyable picture. Finer things, yes. More artistic and delicately wrought, yes; but for comedy and satire par excellence, and with thrills, this, in the vernacular of the day, is the daddy of them all.

Mr. Griffith has furthermore given us an innovation. "One Exciting Night" is the first picture of its kind I have ever seen, and I have seen many in my time. Just when one feels the suspense is more than he can bear, along comes a delicious bit of comedy that brings a laugh and relieves the atmosphere.

The picture is so good—it seems too short. And beauty is by no means conspicuously absent. Carol Dempster is lovely enough to satisfy the most esthetic soul.

Without being conscious of having done so, Mr. Griffith has given the screen something entirely new. He has made it possible for a mystery play to be presented in motion picture form and still retain its surprises and its unexpected denouement at the end.

Never in the history of motion pictures has there been a melodrama so full of thrills, suspense and everything that makes for 100 per cent. interest.

"One Exciting Night" has all the satire of "Bulldog Drummond," with the situations of "The Bat" intensified.

Comedy—bushels of it. Romeo Washington is as amusing a character as I have ever seen on the screen.

If you have a sneaking feeling "pictures ain't what they uster be" trot down to the Apollo and disabuse your mind of this rank disloyalty. This one is better. And in addition to getting back your motion picture respect, you will have the best time you ever had.

Remember Miss Parsons has her position because she can give a summing up which business men accept to invest tens of thousands of dollars. Doesn't your money deserve the same kind of advice?

VOCALION

November Records Out Today

PLAY ON ANY PHONOGRAPH

NOVEMBER—and Jack Frost's finger sweetens the pumpkin for the Thanksgiving pie; the gobbler sings his swan song, and Vocalion Red Records—the liltiest, gayest numbers of all the seasons, call the world to dance. And for those who love to sit in the fire-light to music there is "Good Company" in "Dream Faces," "Ben Bolt," and other friends of many Thanksgivings ago—as lasting as Vocalion Red Records.

NEW YORK, WEDNESDAY, NOV. 1, 1922.

ENDING THE CAMPAIGN HERE.

Governor MILLER'S vigorous campaign culminates in this city, the stronghold of his opponent. Naturally, he dwells particularly on the policies which are of vital concern to the city—rapid transit and the Port Authority, in regard to both of which a long series of fictions has been circulated industriously. On these two cardinal issues the Governor makes unanswerable arguments. In his reference to the minor and remoter matter of mitigated prohibition he is less fortunate. The State Democratic platform insists "upon Congress enacting such modification of the Volstead act as shall legalize, subject to the approval of the State of New York, the use of beer and light wines under such careful restrictions as were imposed by the law passed in New York in 1920." Governor MILLER makes this curious translation:

> The alluring hope is held out by the Democratic platform and by the Democratic candidate for Governor that if he is elected the people can have light wines and beer. He knows, you know, every intelligent citizen knows, that whether he is elected or whether I am elected it can have no influence whatever upon that question; that the Governor of this State and the Legislature of this State cannot, if they would, give the people of this State light wines and beer.

No such "hope" is held out, so far as the ordinary reader can discover. Only Congress can modify the Volstead act; and it is possible that a new definition of intoxicating liquor and the permitted use of beer and light wines may be long postponed or may never come. Meanwhile, if the majority of the people of any State want the Volstead act so modified, they should have an opportunity to say so. From such referendums Congress might learn the prevailing public opinion, favorable or adverse, on prohibition.

Ohio will vote Yes or No next week on a constitutional amendment authorizing the sale of beer and light wines. That vote will be a register of public opinion. If the affirmative wins, Congress and the country will have had notice from Ohio. No immediate change of the law can be expected. Yet the vote will be something more than a "gesture." In this State there is no referendum and can be no direct vote. There are other and much more important issues. Plenty of Wets will vote for Governor MILLER, who is not a prohibitionist, but believes in the enforcement of the Prohibition law. Mr. SMITH will likewise enforce that law if he is elected. There is no issue between straight prohibition and modified prohibition. For a variety of reasons a variety of people will vote for or against Governor MILLER and Mr. SMITH. The election of either of them will allow no clear conclusions to be drawn as to the sentiment of New York about modifying the Volstead act.

On the momentous and instant subject of rapid transit Governor MILLER is right, while Mr. SMITH has been compelled to take water and go wrong by political exigencies and in complaisance to the Hearst-Hylan platform and the City Hall legend. The unification and expansion of the rapid transit system, with a permanent and genuine five-cent fare, will be furthered by the election of Mr. MILLER. The election of Mr. SMITH will cause a return to the old muddled, wasteful, do-nothing way. So the orderly and continuous development, according to a scientific plan, of the Port of New York, will have to be interrupted, blocked, abandoned in the event of Mr. SMITH'S election, because he is committed by the Democratic platform and by his own utterance to the appointment by the Municipal Administration of two of the three New York State members of the Port Authority, which can take no action save by concurrence of at least two of the New York members. The course of Mayor HYLAN toward the Port Authority plan is known to everybody. If Governor MILLER is not re-elected, both rapid transit and port development will be knocked into a cocked hat.

DE VALERA'S TWO HORSES.

The so-called Army Executive of the Irish Irregulars undertook the other day to set up, by proclamation, a little Parliament of their own, and again put forward Mr. DE VALERA as the President of the civil branch of their Government. The best comment on this proceeding was made by Mr. DE VALERA himself in the letters of his which fell into the hands of the Free State authorities, about the middle of September, and were published by them. Writing to a member of his faction, he said: "The task of riding two such horses as the party and the army will be too much for any Executive." He remarked that the arrangement would be such as to place all the public responsibility upon the civilian President, but to give him no voice and no authority." He added: "If I do not get the position made quite clear, I shall resign publicly."

In a later letter DE VALERA gave an outline of the political situation in Ireland as he saw it. He said that he could not agree to the Republicans setting themselves up as the legitimate Dail Eireann. His explanation was illuminating:

> ROBT O'CONNOR'S unfortunate repudiation of the Dail, which I was so foolish as to defend even to a straining of my own views in order to avoid the appearance of a split, is now the greatest barrier that we have. Because, even if we had the allegiance, we have not the military strength to make our will effective. We cannot, as in the time of the war with the British, point to authority derived from the vote of the majority of the people. We will be turned down definitely by the electorate in a few months' time, in any case, because if challenged we could not as a Government refuse to let the people decide by vote as between the two Governments. If the people were to be given the decision, that would mean the worst of all—turning down the republic.

After this it is not surprising that opinion in Ireland, even among the Republicans, was that DE VALERA had made it impossible for himself to hold hereafter any position of authority. The latest use of his name by the Army Executive can be intended only as a flourish, preliminary to something else. He has, for practical purposes, ceased to be even a convenient figurehead in Ireland.

THE RISING CURVE OF MURDER.

The statement that murder is on the increase in the United States, no chief of police, no prosecutor and no criminologist will dispute. There were 9,500 "unlawful homicides" in this country last year, according to a report made on Aug. 10, 1922, by the Special Commission on Law Enforcement of the American Bar Association. The average per day was twenty-six. In the previous year there were at least 9,000 such homicides. The curve of murder goes up, not down. In the first nine and a half months of this year there were 101 "unlawful homicides" in Philadelphia, as compared with the same number during all of 1921. Lieutenant WILLIAM J. ELSHAW, in charge of the "homicide squad" there, says that the records of both New York and Chicago show a much greater increase in proportion to population. It is his opinion—it is everybody's opinion—that the laws governing the sale of firearms are inadequate. Ninety per cent. of the homicides in the country are done with the pistol. It is proposed to introduce in all the State Legislatures a uniform bill dealing with the possession and sale of pistols that should make sane regulation practicable. The United States Revolver Association has suggested as a model the bill introduced in the Senate by Mr. CAPPER of Kansas on Sept. 27, for the District of Columbia. In commending it the association says:

> The object of the bill is to make it possible for the law-abiding citizen to possess a pistol or revolver for protection of life and property, and at the same time provide penalties sufficiently severe to deter criminals from using such weapons.
> The bill in question, after defining a "pistol or revolver" as any firearm "with barrel less than twelve inches in length," provides in the second section that the commission of, or the attempt to commit, a crime with a pistol for which the user has no permit shall be punished with imprisonment for not less than five years in addition to the punishment imposed for the crime. What would the effect be in many cases but a minimum sentence for the crime? Section 3 gives the Judge the power to double or triple the penalty for a second or third offense, and for a fourth the defendant may be sentenced to "perpetual imprisonment." Thus, if there were a fourth futile attempt to kill with a pistol or revolver, the defendant, having served three long terms before, would be shut up for the remainder of his life. To state the case in this way is to show how drastic the third section is. By the terms of this bill "no unnaturalized foreign-born person" shall be allowed to have a pistol—although he might need it to protect his person or his property. How can this be defended? The carrying of a pistol on the person or in a vehicle must be for cause and licensed by a Police Court Judge. Sales are to be carefully regulated and recorded with the Superintendent of Police. There must be no sales to minors. Obliterating the number or maker's name on a revolver, or possession of a revolver with the marks of identification removed, is to be severely punished. Evidently the Capper bill will need revision. Laudable as its object is, it cannot serve as a model. But what about the administration of justice in this country, which the report of the Special Commission on Law Enforcement condemns as lax and lenient?
> Crime flourishes because criminals escape punishment, and criminals escape punishment because there are so many avenues of escape open.

Moreover, sympathy for the criminal is expressed in maudlin sentiment and mollycoddling. In Canada the punishment is made to fit the crime. The ratio of homicides there is much lower. By all means let there be fire-arms regulation and enforcement, but prosecutors and Judges must do their whole duty or the number of murders in the United States will be altogether too great.

POLITICAL BANKING.

In the Middle West there is a movement for agricultural credit through governmental assistance. That marks perception even by the farmers that they do not need more Government currency, printed money, as they formerly sought greenbacks. Events abroad have taught the lesson that too much money is worse than too little. It is still necessary to drive home the truth that governmental interference with credit is hardly less undesirable. It is to be remarked that the proposals referred to are made at the time when the War Finance Corporation favors assistance to the farmers in other ways. Director MEYER said in Montana a few days ago that the corporation had assisted farmers only through assistance to bankers who had overlent to them, and that the corporation a permanency was not suitable to the banking structure of the country.

Commerce provides itself with its own banking currency through production and distribution of goods. So should agriculture. The attempt of the farmers to invade the field of commercial credit through mandatory discrimination in their favor is an attempt to evade the law of supply and demand for both agricultural products and credit. It is not the province of the Government to regulate prices or credit. That is a function peculiarly belonging to banks. Government action being justified only to prevent unfairness. Those who want more deposit currency should provide themselves with it through production and the markets, rather than through credit of a more or less fiat nature.

The farmers are no doubt suffering. More of their products are selling close to prewar prices than are selling above the general level, and there are few exceptions to the rule that manufactures which the farmers require cost more in agricultural products than they should. The reason is not deficiency of agricultural credit, but the necessity of paying industrial wages kept above the normal level. In other words, postwar readjustments are irregular, and wage earners profit where others lose, including the farmers. The bringing of prices to a proper relation with one another is what the farmers most need. In the matter of credit more has been done for the farmers than for any other borrowers.

THE CHINESE EASTERN.

By way of washing its hands of the business of reforming the world, the State Department announces that we have got rid of our last connection with the Chinese Eastern Railway. The interallied commission which has been sitting at Vladivostok since 1919, and the interallied technical commission at Harbin, have been dissolved. We now proclaim to the world in general, and to China in particular, that we are through with this form of supervision, but shall nevertheless continue to keep an eye on the Chinese Eastern, reserving all rights and specifically that of getting our money back.

Luckily, we have no great amount of money in this road; for though its technical management has been well spoken of in the last year or two, it is sore beset by politics. The Chinese Eastern was built in the later '90s as the direct outlet of the Siberian line to Port Arthur and Vladivostok; the longer route to Vladivostok, all in Russian territory, was opened later. During the recent revolutions that road has been closed much of the time, though the Far Eastern Republic now promises that regular express service from Vladivostok to Moscow will soon be established again. Still the Chinese Eastern will remain the shortest route from the Baikal region to the sea.

The Russian Government built the road with money borrowed from France. China contributed nothing but the right of way; no small contribution, of course, since Russian troops patrolled it—and virtually ruled Northern Manchuria—till the revolution; but, after all, the railroad was chiefly responsible for the upbuilding of Manchuria and the opening up of great areas for emigrants from overcrowded China. When the Russian revolution was followed by the Allied occupation, these two boards, now dissolved, undertook the supervision of the road. Actual operation was in the hands of Russian executives; the finances were controlled by the holding company, the Russo-Asiatic Bank, in which since the revolution the interests of the French who lent the money were predominant. The interallied commissions had little to do with the management of the road, but their moral influence was considerable. They kept off other people whose hands were itching to get hold of the railroad.

What is to take the place of this protective supervision? Our note to China piously recites the resolutions of the Washington conference, in effect telling the Chinese to be good to the railroad and adding that further discussion of its affairs will be conducted through "the proper diplomatic channels." In this case, the proper diplomatic channels are of about as much use as an exchange of Christmas cards. The principal factor in Northern Manchuria at present is CHANG TSO-LIN, who can usually be reached and influenced only through highly improper channels. The whole Far East is interested in the free and unhampered operation of this road, but most of the people who are dealing with it—aside from the French owners and the practical Russian railroad men who are now operating it—are thinking chiefly of its political value. In ordinary course China will not recover the line till 1977. In the meantime, it is of more importance to Siberia than even to China; and in this as well as some other Asiatic affairs the Far Eastern Republic seems to offer more hope than any other principalities and powers of the vicinity.

FATHER VAUGHAN.

If Father BERNARD VAUGHAN had risen to his peculiar fame during DISRAELI'S life, he certainly would have figured in one of the latter's novels. The attractions of his personality were manifold. Member of a family which furnished several eminent Catholic ecclesiastics, he enjoyed the advantages of social position, of eloquence, and of wide reputation as a moral crusader. The fact that he was a favorite in fashionable society did not diminish his welcome among the poor in labors for whom he spent himself. With positive convictions concerning many social evils and political dangers, he made of himself a public teacher whose voice carried far. During the war he identified himself with the most intense national sentiment in England and in this country, and by his fervid utterances reached the height of his public service and of his repute. Altogether, there was a long-maintained fascination about him which makes his death seem to render the world less picturesque and piquant for the time being.

ALIBIS AT PARIS.

The Quai d'Orsay honors us by an explanation of French Near Eastern policy, intended solely for American consumption. To correct a "most unjust and most unfortunate" impression, the French Government tells us that France never lost sight of the interests of the unfortunate Christians of the Near East. Since the Paris press has been contending that these unfortunate Christians were really criminals and ruffians of the worst sort, this solicitude is both surprising and touching.

Further, it appears that the sole purpose of French policy was to avoid war. The terrible things that might have happened had a Turkish army landed in Thrace are ably depicted by the Foreign Office. Bulgaria, Jugo-slavia, Rumania, Russia would all have been drawn in had a Turkish army got into Thrace. Therefore the French prevented a war by persuading MUSTAPHA KEMAL to keep out of Thrace temporarily. The abuse piled on Mr. LLOYD GEORGE for putting a fleet and an army in the way so that the Turks could not land in Thrace, even if they tried, is not mentioned in this curious theory of the way to prevent war. The Turks were determined to get what they want, so by all means let us avoid war by letting them have it.

By a similar policy France could have avoided war in 1914 at the cheap price of consenting to the occupation, more or less "temporary," of Toul and Verdun. If French policy was right in 1914, it was wrong this Summer at least, on the premises now advanced by the Quai d'Orsay. The difference can be harmonized only by considering certain factors such as Anglo-French economic and colonial rivalries, which are not mentioned in the nice little story served up to the American public.

ILLS THAT THE FARMER'S FLESH IS HEIR TO.

An ill-natured attack upon Capper's Weekly is made by The Journal of the American Medical Association. It accuses the great organ of the farmers of advertising all kinds of discredited and harmful patent medicines and ridiculous cure-alls. It quotes from the Weekly the editorial statement that it "stands for making prohibition world-wide" and then points to the fact that it freely advertises nostrums whose chief patent ingredient is alcohol to the extent of 15 to 18 per cent. It is needless to extend the list.

This exposure of a paper that calls itself "The National Weekly of a Great Nation" may have some force from the medical or social point of view, but it entirely overlooks the political. Senator CAPPER'S repeated descriptions of the horrible way in which the farmers are oppressed and robbed would inevitably shock their nervous system, fill them full of aches and pains and vague alarms, and lead them to look about eagerly for infallible remedies for their ills. This is where Capper's Weekly comes in. Having caused or heightened the ailment, it steps forward with a cure. One of its favorite nostrums is offered to "weak men." Wouldn't Kansas just naturally be full of farmers who felt weak after reading some of Senator CAPPER'S denunciations of Wall Street criminals? Then there is the inevitable systemic depression which follows interference by the courts with Senator CAPPER'S benevolent plans for making the agricultural regions blossom like the rose. One of his bills the Supreme Court held unconstitutional. Just now in Chicago a Judge has temporarily enjoined the enforcement of another of his laws to make the farmers happy. Is it any wonder that they feel the need of bracing themselves up with a stiff horn, and are glad to be told by Capper's Weekly where they can get a comforting patent medicine with 15 per cent. alcohol in it?

There is no reason why Capper's Weekly should be specially picked on. The practices complained of are common to publications of the sort. Farmers are traditionally an easy prey to the vendors of patent medicines. Long ago Mr. HAMLIN GARLAND pictured to us a traveling agent leaving his wagon in the road and going to hold up before the plowman at the end of his furrow a large black bottle, with the remark that "this here bitter" was exactly what the man needed. Capper's Weekly is only following a long standing and approved custom. Why charge its proprietor with inconsistency?

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Gas Heaters Have Their Perils.

Careful attention is due, especially this year, to the case of the young husband and wife who were asphyxiated Sunday night in Yonkers. Their deaths at first looked like murder, and a most mysterious one, for they showed no signs of violence and their little apartment had not been robbed. Investigation disclosed, however, that they were victims of the products of combustion, a gas range and a gas heater having been found still burning when the neighbors broke into the flat.

Both of these popular conveniences were in good order, and there had been no escape of gas in the ordinary and familiar sense of that phrase. In reality, of course, there had been an escape in great volume of a gas quite as dangerous as is illuminating gas in its unconsumed state, and this peril is not understood, or at any rate is ignored, by many people, including no small fraction of the multitudes who have now resorted to gas heaters in their several forms.

Important improvements have been made in recent years on the old-fashioned "gas log"—improvements in efficiency and in appearance—and as coal savers they are to be commended warmly. It should not be forgotten, however, as the unfortunate COHENS did—if they ever knew—that in all these devices there is a potential danger, and that they are not safe, as too many people think, simply because they are well connected with the source of gas supply, and no gas comes out of them except when it is burning.

The burning itself produces other gases that are fatal to life if breathed in quantities at all large, and the quantities soon become large in any room not well ventilated. Bathrooms, in cold weather, are apt to be tightly closed, and therefore none of the gas-burning devices should be used in them without intelligent precautions frequently to renew the air and to permit the escape of the carbon oxides.

Gas heaters should be connected with a chimney, if possible, and the best and safest of all positions for them is well within a real fireplace. The smaller ones, if in a big room, with windows and doors not too well sealed, are not likely to do immediately serious harm in any case, but even then there is some risk to health.

Of Course Her Rights Survive Her.

That animals can inherit property from decedents, just as human beings do, is a principle that often has been upheld by the law, at least to the exent of allowing them to enjoy for life advantages in the way of board and lodging for which provision has been made for them in wills. Just what compulsion there is on executors to carry out such bequests is a little dubious, but cases in which the bequests have been neglected are few.

A different and more difficult question has been raised in Chicago—does the admitted interest in an estate which dogs have pass to their progeny? One set of heirs say no and another set say yes, and there is the basis for a quarrel as pretty as could be desired.

But, after all, puppies want so little and they make such a large return for what they get! The heirs who begrudge to the offspring of Trixie, evidently a most estimable dog, the support that the mother inherited must be quite without hearts.

Criticism Wholly Undeserved.

Reasons for finding fault with Mayor HYLAN have been found by THE TIMES once or twice, perhaps oftener, in the past, but none the less eagerly does it hasten to defend him as against the too irritable lawyer who made such a vehement protest because a letter received by the lawyer's wife from the Mayor was signed "Yours sincerely."

It was only a campaign letter, anyhow, urging the election of a Supreme Court Justice in whose success at the approaching election his Honor is interested, and to have put at the end of it, even in addressing one whom the unnecessarily indignant husband describes as "a married lady," the conventional assurance of sincerity and ownership—that was all right because custom makes it all right, as it can make anything.

Of course, the Mayor is not "hers," but what of that? Neither is everybody "dear" to the writers of the innumerable letters that begin with that affectionate word, followed by a name. Just the same, the "dear" must be used except in writing to an avowed and admitted enemy, and "yours," if not quite as nearly inevitable as "dear," is not much less so, and "sincerely," whether it means anything or not, does no harm.

Therefore it seems to THE TIMES that the Mayor was scolded most unjustly. But he won't mind it—much. He has been scolded before, and always he has continued to prosper, politically and otherwise. An undeserved scolding is a little different from some of the others, and therefore may be a little harder to bear, but it will not be intolerable. The Mayor's retort to it is both good-natured and convincing.

A Managing Woman Will Be His.

Princess HERMINIE of Reuss quotes with seeming pleasure the Crown Prince's description of her as "a woman who knows how to manage people," meaning that she will succeed in the difficult task of managing the man who knows that he is no longer the Kaiser, but continues, so far as he can, to act, and to expect other folk to act, as if he still were in his former position.

But what will the indubitable Lord of Doorn say when he hears that in his son's opinion the bride-to-be has a talent for management and will exercise it on himself? By nature managerial on his own account and to a degree more than ordinary, the prospect must fill him, if not with alarm, at least with a wild surmise.

In ideal unions, husband and wife manage each other, more or less, but it has to be done adroitly—in reality, not in seeming. The Kaiser never was at all tactful in concealing his determination to manage everybody and everything, and he probably never will be. As the Crown Prince took only a week to discover the Princess's talent in this direction, the Kaiser soon will be even better informed on the subject, and then, if loud rasping noises are heard coming from the most interesting house in the little Dutch town, they will indicate that—well, that at last, as the vernacular hath it, "the Kaiser is getting his."

Protection and Wages.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In your editorial, "Evading the Main Issue," you assert that a minimum wage is economically unsound and you call attention to the objections of many working women to "protection" (personal, not economic), they regarding it as injurious interference. Logic and justice might be on the side of your contention if wage earners had the right to purchase the necessaries of life at naturally competitive prices; but with protection accorded to manufacturers, enabling the latter to get fictitious prices for their output, is it any more than fair that laws should be enacted to compel a wider distribution of the benefits of protection?

Presumably it would also be unsound to limit by law the earnings of protected industries to a maximum percentage and it would be objected to as further interference. Such a limit would cause a still wider distribution of the earnings of protected industries—earnings greatly augmented by the interference of protection.

By itself either proposition could logically be regarded as unsound, but during the era of high protection is not some device, designed to offset the burdens of the cost of living based upon fictitious prices, justifiable? Or would it be more sound to compel the wage earner and consumer to bear the burdens artificially imposed upon them till the millennium of taxes based upon the necessities of the Government is reached? However much one should believe in the justice of the principle of taxation for revenue only (as I do), I think it must be conceded that a sudden reversal to that policy would bring chaos, and the enactment of relief legislation occasionally, intended to effect a wider distribution of the benefits of protection, might tend to gradually bring about ultimate justice in taxation.

Making Lawbreakers.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Well-to-do native Americans of the so-called middle class have always considered themselves its constant law-abiding element. They have claimed that criminals, except for an occasional embezzler of trust funds, come from the poorer class, cursed by the eternal cycle of poverty, drink, crime, or drink, crime, poverty, in whatever order. The middle class have never been tempted to break the law, because the law has not seemed burdensome.

Then came the Traffic law and the Prohibition law, and many hitherto law-abiding Americans, forbidden to do what they want to do, break these laws and pass thereby into the criminal class. We may as well cast aside our superior attitude and admit that we all have our resistance points, beyond which we become lawbreakers. But it is a sinister outlook when so many native Americans throw aside their tradition of obedience to law. S. P. BURNHAM.

LOQUITUR ARBOR.

Where are they gone?
The cardinal and the mockingbird,
The oriole,
That poised upon
My topmost branches to pour out their soul,
Full, full, and clear,
In melodies that heaven might have heard
And lingered in its course to hear—
Where are they gone?

My leaves are fallen and my birds are fled—
Summer is dead!
Around my root they have burned the dry grass black,
And gray clouds gather at my head.
Will Summer and the birds come back?
Where are they sped?
Will the burned grass grow green;
And—heard—unseen—
Among its stems the crickets spin their thread
Of slender song like my birds overhead?
Is Summer dead?

Summer is gone, and all the birds are flown;
The wind calls through my boughs alone;
No tilted wings are there;
No song is blown
Down golden, sunlit ladders of the air!
And yet my branches are not wholly bare!
Hidden among them, lest
I should despair,
The birds have pledged me with a nest—
An empty nest,
But the full pledge of the returning guest,
And of returning Summer, green and fair!

Summer is gone; the birds are fled;
But, with their nest built in my heart,
I know but for a Winter they depart—
They are not dead!

THE TRANSPORTATION ISSUE

Why Democrats and Independents Should Vote for Miller.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

By far the most important issue of the present Gubernatorial campaign is that of the development of the transportation system of Greater New York. Such development is the crying need of the city if its business and life are not to be strangled by the lack of proper facilities for communication. This matter is of first importance not only for the residents of the city but for the whole State, whose interests are closely bound up with the prosperity of the great city. In the policy to be arrived at to meet the crying needs of New York the names and the prejudices of national parties should be put to one side.

I myself fought through the Civil War as an anti-slavery Republican. I went out of the party in 1884 under the leadership of good, old-time Republicans like Carl Schurz and George William Curtis in order to bring about the defeat of Blaine. I have since that time classed myself as a Democrat or independent. I gave my vote two years ago for Governor Smith. I consider that his election today would be a misfortune because he has been willing to accept the nomination with a platform which is directly opposed to the interests of the city and of the State.

If Smith becomes Governor he is under obligation to the Tammany power, which consented to his nomination, to bring to a close the work of the Transit Commission. This would mean the waste of good work that has already been done toward securing proper transit facilities and throwing the whole subject into anarchy. Mayor Hylan's vague schemes must, as has been clearly shown, result merely in multiplying the fares while securing no adequate return. The Transit Commission, while deriving its authority from the State, is, without question, fully representative of the interests of the city, and its members are all citizens of the city. They have rendered invaluable service in getting into shape a systematic and workable plan for remedying the present mortifying condition of the transportation of the city.

It is time that the people who have to travel in rush hours should be spared from the barbaric conditions of the trains at that time. The State undertook this work because the officials of the city had shown themselves incompetent to take care of it. These officials have, from the outset, done what they could to hamper and block the work of the commission. The voters of the State have good grounds for re-electing Governor Miller, because he has rendered good service to the whole State. To the voters of the city the Governor's re-election is, as said, of first importance because it is only in this way that there is any hope of securing in the near future the transportation upon which the life of the city depends. Democrats and Independents should give their votes for Miller.

TAPS AT BELLEAU WOOD.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Let me enter a hearty second to the suggestion of Ernest Poole that instead of a monument to our American dead at Belleau Wood a bugler be kept there each evening to sound taps. The more one reflects the more one is impressed by Mr. Poole's idea, its novelty and its beauty. In the minds of many thousands of thoughtful Americans, not all of them soldiers, the sound of taps on the night air awakens memories that reinstate far better than could a mute monument something of that exalted spirit in which our country entered into and carried on the war. To these minds, who would like to apply that spirit to life itself were it humanly possible to sustain such an attitude, even the imagined notes of taps sounding "over there" its nightly requiem would prove an inspiration. How could we more vividly keep alive our sense of gratitude to our dead and our consciousness of that which they symbolize than by the audible sweetness of the bugle notes in taps? FRANK E. MORRIS.
New London, Conn., Oct. 30, 1922.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

All honor to Mr. Ernest Poole for this suggestion. I hope it will materialize. What could be more impressive than taps over the graves of our American soldiers? F. A. WINTER,
Civil War Bandmaster and Bugler.

Significance of Reich.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The derivation of the German word reich was discussed in your issues recently by two experts. They dispute my statement that reich is merely a non-political term, like county or township, and claim that it implies autocratic rule and has "imperial associations." As a matter of fact the question at issue is not what reich may have denoted in the dim past, but what Deutsches Reich means today.

In this respect the attention of the learned gentlemen is called to the word pflanzenreich (plant-reich), the German expression for the sum total of vegetation. Does to their minds German plant life lay itself open to the suspicion of a desire to be ruled over by a king because it has the word reich in its name and because the English equivalent of pflanzenreich is vegetable kingdom? It is at this kind of absurdities that those must needs arrive who claim that the use of the word reich (mistakenly translated empire) in the name of the present day German Republic is expressive of a secret longing on the part of the German people for a second coming of the Kaiser.

Stick to Quality.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The Tariff bill is now law. Prices are bound to advance. In some lines, the increases will be immediately noticeable. In others, not for six months or a year. Manufacturers and merchants who have laid in stocks will be able to stave off price a little longer.

Rising prices mean an inevitable protest on the part of the public. This protest will tempt some to cut quality, in order to keep prices down. We shall probably see a return of that class of merchandise called "plunder merchandise," which was so prevalent in the recent inflation era. I want to urge buyers to avoid plunder merchandise. No money was ever saved by buying an article from which some necessary part or quality has been removed. And there will always be a sufficient number of manufacturers and merchants with ideals and backbone sufficient to adhere to quality, through hard times and good. The public's safest course is to deal only with merchants and manufacturers whose reputation is firmly established and jealously guarded.

LEGISLATION FOR ANTI-VIVISECTION

NO EXPERIMENTAL SURGERY

The University of California and Stamford University in Opposition to the Movement.

At the approaching election in California there is to be submitted to the voters of the State a law which, if passed, would prohibit the performance of any operation on, or the administration of any drug to, any human being or animal except for the benefit of that particular human being or animal. The result would be the attainment of the anti-vivisection ideal in the way of legislation.

The Regents of the University of California, by President David P. Barrows, and the Board of Trustees of Stamford University, by President Ray Lyman Wilbur, have issued a statement and an appeal of which The Journal of the American Medical Association says:

"The sanity, logic and clear presentation of this document is a notable contrast to the confused, ecstatic, emotional outbursts of the hysterical females and sinistral men who support the measure. It is the opposition of the rational against the irrational; of the scientific mind against the muddled brain; of the practical leader of men against the unpractical, uncaring 'reformer.' Our world is what it is today chiefly because of the advances made through scientific investigation. Unfortunately, the clean, healthful, protected life means little to the short-haired women and long-haired men who have nominated themselves to lead this agitation against progress. The document of the educational leaders of California is an appeal to those persons in the community who can see straight."

"The advance of sanitation, modern medicine and physiology, nutrition, the teaching of biology and the protection of our industries and agriculture all rest on animal experimentation. The control of the epidemic diseases of man and of animals, the management of surgical operations and of childbirth, and the certification of milk, food and water supplies would be impossible without the knowledge gained by such studies. In fact, the present-day protection of the public from diseases, which is vital to our community life, rests on animal experimentation. The University of California and Stanford University are vitally interested in the defeat of this initiative measure, since its passage would be a State-wide calamity.

"Not only would it stop the research work now going on in the medical schools, hospitals and laboratories and in the Bureau of Animal Industry, but it would damage the market for meat and California's food products and markedly reduce the confidence of visitors coming into the State. If California could not certify to its food and water supplies, could not guarantee protection against contagious diseases, could not provide certified milk, the effect on agriculture and industry in the State would be disastrous. The near collapse of the olive industry, due to the poisoning of a few people in Eastern States, and the way in which the industry was saved by the researches carried on in the laboratories of the two universities, indicate the imperative necessity of freedom for the universities in animal experimentation. California food, instead of being looked to as an example of purity, would be shunned.

"The initiative measure would make it impossible to test with birds for deadly gases in the mines of the State. It would stop the manufacture of serums for the prevention of hog cholera, the preparation of vaccine for anthrax and the various other products that are required for the protection of our industries in agriculture and that annually save millions of dollars and prevent great mortality among domestic animals. Under the act, operations on various farm animals could be carried on without anæsthetics to increase the palatability of foods, but no animals could be used in experimental work if the information obtained is for the benefit of a person or of the human race.

"We feel that no worse attack on the welfare of the State and on the right to seek the universities to seek and teach the truth could be made. Every man, woman and child, every unborn babe, every domestic animal in the State, would be affected if this measure becomes a law. It strikes at all. It is unnecessary special legislation, due to prejudice and misinformation. No one will tolerate cruelty to animals. The present laws of the State are drastic and sufficient to control any abuse. We know that there is no cruelty to animals in the laboratories of the universities. Those are in charge of men and women of the highest character who are unselfishly working to better the lot of their fellowmen and to advance the interests of their community and of the State. Anæsthetics are always used for animals in the laboratory in exactly the same way that they are used by surgeons in the operating rooms.

"We urge upon the citizens of the State the imperative necessity of defeating this initiative measure."

STATE CROSS FOR FRENCH

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Oct. 31.—Colonel Arthur Little of New York will confer the State's Conspicuous Service Cross on New Year's Day in the shadow of the bleak, shattered trees of the Argonne Forest, upon six officers of the French Army, who helped train the old fifteenth New York negro regiment, now the 369th. Colonel Little sailed for Europe today.

The foreign officers who will receive official recognition are General Gouraud, General Hely Olssel, General LeGallais, General LeBoucq, Captain André de Fouquieres and Lieutenant Tessier.

Authority has been asked from the War Department by J. Leslie Kincaid, Adjutant General, to authorize Colonel Little to confer on the same day on the group of officers the national Distinguished Service Cross. It is understood that this permission will be forthcoming.

The old Fifteenth Infantry was detached from the American Expeditionary Forces and assigned to duty with the French Army with orders to report to the defense of the Eighth Corps D'Armes. On April 6, 1918, the regiment took over a front line sector on the edge of the Argonne Forest and fought with a stubborn valor, which combined with the splendid record made in the great offensive of the Meuse-Argonne, led to a French citation as a unit.

The 369th is the only National Guard regiment in this State authorized to wear the Croix de Guerre upon the colors. The President of the French republic is to be the guest of honor at the ceremonies.

SALON NOT READY ON VARNISHING DAY

PASSING OF FADDISTS SEEN

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Oct. 31.—Varnishing Day of the Autumn Salon today seems for some unknown reason to have taken the organizers somewhat unawares, for this morning a large number of pictures were still unhung. This lack of consideration on the part of the artists toward both the public and critics, and incidentally toward themselves, is unfortunate because the result may well be to cause pictures which might merit notice to pass unmentioned in the press. The first impression caused by a visit to today's Salon may be summarized as follows: The painters again appear anxious to produce more finished works of art than during the last decade or two. That is to say, judged from a purely technical point of view, they seem to have spent considerably more time than hitherto on the pictures sent in for exhibition.

It may be asked what that fact can matter to the public whose task merely is to admire, condemn and criticise favorably or adversely. But the fact is that it is by no means a matter of indifference, for it denotes a healthy trend and saner spirit on the part of the "young" artists, whom certain persons have been pleased hitherto to designate as "fauves," or wild beasts. Indeed this return to sanity has been noticeable during the last two or three salons, when really "wild" exhibits have been reduced to a negligible quantity.

This gradual swing of the pendulum has now reached a point at which it has become noticeable to the general Paris public who are beginning to show a far greater tendency to understand the aims of modern art and to sympathise with them. The handful of cubists who still seek to decompose the human form appear behind the times instead of fondly imagine, of filling the role of precursers. Soon, no doubt, they will appear quite old-fashioned, as old-fashioned as those who today think they have discovered something new, when denouncing colors according to methods employed by the early impressionists.

Once one begins to mention names one runs the danger either of committing a mere catalogue or treating them unfairly. Nevertheless a few artists whose works help to give the present Salon its character may be picked out. To the familiar names of Matisse, Vandongen, Segonzac and Duffy must be added two one Japanese, the other Chinese whose exhibits stand out prominently for their remarkable qualities. There are Jakovleff and Fugita, the former of whom spent several years in the Far East and recently visited the United States, where his work aroused much attention in art circles.

Americans are well represented, the exhibitors including such well-known artists as Cameron Burnside, P. L. Bruce and Foster Baily. Americans also are best represented among landscapes, excellent work being seen by Bion Barnett, Paul Burlin, L. O. Dudley, Mrs. Anna W. Brown, Harold English, Miss Ethel Mars, Orville H. Peck and Florine Stettheimer. There is also a good portrait by Harold W. Brown, Arthur Frenk and Myron C. Nutting, while R. B. Hostater and R. W. Johnson show very fine nudes and Otis Oldfield and Miss Ivy Troutman have good figure studies.

GIVE HALLOWEEN DANCES.

Hotels and Restaurants Are Gaily Decorated for the Occasion.

Hotels and restaurants held special Hallowe'en dinner and supper dances last night. One of the largest parties was held in the ballroom at Delmonico's by the New York League of American Pen Women and the American Society of Reconstruction; the proceeds from the dinner and dance to be used in the patriotic and philanthropic work of these organizations. Just at midnight, when the floor was crowded with dancers, the lights were dimmed and a number of weird figures appeared to entertain the guests. These later proved to be members of the organizations in Hallowe'en costumes.

A gay costume ball took place at the Westchester-Biltmore Country Club in Rye, N. Y., following a dinner earlier in the evening.

At the Biltmore Halloween was celebrated with the first Tuesday night dinner dance in the grand ballroom.

At the Ambassador there were a number of entertaining parties at the Hallowe'en dinner dances, including Mr. and Mrs. Albert B. Boardman and Mr. and Mrs. Gerald W. Hanes.

The supper dance at the Belleclaire was held in the newly opened dining room, decorated for the evening with jack o'lanterns and Autumn leaves. Mrs. E. Payson Merwin and Dr. J. R. Alvarez were among those having a number of guests.

Many attended the dinner and supper dances at the Waldorf-Astoria and Montana and on Park Avenue at Sherry's and Pierre's, Halloween was also fittingly celebrated.

LIPTON CUP FOR FISHERMEN.

Offers Trophy for Races to Be Held on Gloucester Anniversary.

GLOUCESTER, Mass., Oct. 31.—Sir Thomas Lipton has agreed to give a cup to the winner of the fishermen's races to be held off this port next August as a feature of Gloucester's three hundredth anniversary celebration. A letter to this effect was received today by Fred W. Tibbetts, Chairman of the Celebration Committee. The famous yachtsman, who wrote from Chicago, has also informed the committee that he will come here to present the cup in person.

The races will be open to all genuine fishing vessels and will be "without fuss or frill," the committee announced.

NO RISE IN MILK PRICES.

October Rates to Rule in November, Borden President Announces.

Patrick D. Fox, President of the Borden's Farm Products Company, announced yesterday that the company had decided to hold its milk prices for November at the same level as October. Three months ago, he said, the dairy company increased their price to the consumer a half cent a quart, but the company absorbed the increase, depending on greater volume of business to overcome the deficit. Grade B will be 15 cents a quart; Grade A, 18 cents.

"It is usual at this time of year for the company to be forced to raise its prices because of seasonal conditions in the dairy industry," Mr. Fox said. "We are trying to stabilize milk prices as much as possible. Increased consumption by the public has aided materially in this effort."

SOCIAL NOTES

New York.

Axel F. Wallenberg, the Swedish Minister, and Mrs. Wallenberg arrived on the Olympic and will be at the St. Regis for a few days before going on to Washington.

Mrs. Joseph Earle Stevens entertained the Princess de Braganza at a small luncheon at Pierre's yesterday. Mrs. Frank B. Keech also entertained there for Mr. and Mrs. David Wagstaff.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred C. Bedford, who spent the Summer in Glen Cove, L. I., are at the Ambassador before opening their apartment at 270 Park Avenue.

Dr. and Mrs. Wickliffe Rose and their daughters, Miss Dorothy T. Rose and Mrs. Ethel Rose Jackson, have returned from Canada and have opened their apartment at 40 East Sixty-second Street.

Mme. da Gama, wife of the Brazilian Ambassador to England, arrived on the Olympic and is at the Plaza for a stay of several weeks.

Sir Thomas Lipton was the principal guest at a dinner given last evening at the Plaza by Dr. Robert Good.

Miss Dorothy Richardson Arents, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Arents Jr., is a débutante of the coming season and will be presented on Dec. 21.

Mrs. Adrian Iselin gave a luncheon for Mrs. H. B. Duryea yesterday at Sherry's.

Mrs. George B. St. George is in charge of New York Day at the opening of the rodeo in Madison Square Garden on Saturday, given for the Argonne Association of America. Mrs. H. S. Durand, Mrs. H. J. Pell, Miss Annette Tilford and Miss Lucile Baldwin are assisting Mrs. St. George in the sale of boxes.

Newport.

The Service Club at Fort Adams was gay with autumnal decorations last evening, the occasion being the Halloween dance given by Colonel William R. Doores and the other officers and their wives for their friends in Newport and the naval colonies. The committee in charge of the arrangements was Major William H. Allen, Major Gooding Packard and Lieutenants C. S. Danny and Lyman L. Lemnitzer.

Mr. and Mrs. Jerome C. Borden closed their Summer home on Ocean Avenue yesterday and returned to Fall River for the Winter.

Mrs. Craig Biddle has left for New York, closing her Newport season.

Rev. Dr. Stephen S. Wise Performs Ceremony in the Italian Garden at the Ambassador.

The marriage of Miss Louise K. Straus, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. W. Straus of this city, and Seward William Ehrich, son of Mrs. S. W. Ehrich of this city and Paris, took place yesterday evening in the Italian garden at the Ambassador Hotel. The Rev. Dr. Stephen S. Wise performed the ceremony.

The bride, whose father gave her in marriage, carried a shower bouquet of white orchids, lilies of the valley and orange blossoms. Mrs. Herbert Spencer Martin was her sister's matron of honor, and the other attendants were Miss Harriet Straus, the bride's younger sister, and Miss Mildred Stern.

Howard Eric Ehrich was his brother's best man, and the ushers were Harold Ehrich, Herbert Spencer Martin, Arthur Seligman, Adam Gimbel, Robert Blumenthal and Robert Blum, Theodore Lilienthal and Stanley Brown. More than 300 guests attended the wedding, which was followed by a reception and dinner, with dancing later in the Louis XV. ballroom.

Mr. and Mrs. Ehrich are sailing for Europe today on the Paris, to be away two months. On their return they will make their home at 2 East Seventy-third Street.

Triple Wedding in New Jersey.

FATHER VAUGHAN, NOTED JESUIT, DIES

He Had Been Ill for Some Time and Suffered Stroke on Visit to Lord Fitzalan.

CAUSED STIR HERE IN 1910

Copyright, 1922, by The New York Times Company. By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Oct. 31.—Father Bernard Vaughan died this morning at the Jesuit College at Roehampton. His last words were: "I am not very well, but I am in His hands as I've always been."

Father Vaughan had been suffering for some time from diabetes and heart trouble. He had a slight stroke while visiting Lord Fitzalan at Derwent Hall recently and was so ill he received the last sacraments. Rallying for a time, he was taken to Roehampton, the scene of his first pastorate.

"I want to finish where I began," he said. "I have come back to the nursery."

He was lodged near the chapel, from which it was easy to wheel him in the garden. The young Jesuit novices paid the great preacher every attention, but he refused to see any of his many old friends from society who called. "It is better now," he explained, "that I should be only with my own friends in the priests' home."

Insomnia had been one of his chief troubles and he had refused to take drugs for it. Early today he told the college chaplain he had not been sleeping very well. At 6:15 o'clock he partook of holy communion. Then he went back to his room. He almost immediately became unconscious and passed away.

He will be buried in the cemetery of the college in accordance with his wish.

Caused Stir in America.

When Father Vaughan, who was known as the friend of King Edward and the "Scourge of Society," sailed for the United States in 1910, it was announced by cablegram that his mission was "to help Americans find God." On the voyage across the Atlantic he became the storm centre of a suffrage meeting aboard ship, at which he presided and spoke deprecatingly of "women marching to the polls when they ought to be at home minding their babies."

As soon as he landed in New York City he caused a stir in church circles by asserting that Protestantism in America was dying and that Catholicism was the only hope of the American republic. The Presbyterian Ministers' Association lost no time in taking cognizance of his utterances and adopted resolutions in which they said that "Father Vaughn's pronunciamento needs no refutation."

When I spoke of Protestantism being in decay," Father Vaughan replied, "I was speaking not of Protestantism as a spiritual power, as a power capable of building up a spiritually, supernaturally minded people, as a power capable of erecting a temple to God in the human soul....

"But the ministers say to me, 'Have you seen our great and glorious republic? Have you seen our skyscrapers? Our railroads? Our bridges? Our tubes? Our halls of commerce?' Of course I have. I was down in Wall Street this morning. I put my money on the right horse, too. I reply: 'What proof is there in all this material wealth that Protestanism is a living, spiritual power? Why the deader it is as a spiritual power, the more likely are all these material things to be accomplished.'"

The views entertained by Father Vaughan were as striking as his speech was bold. He held that it was bad enough for a "woman to go wrong," but that it was "far worse for a man to go wrong." "A cradleless home and a creedless church," he declared, "are the two greatest evils of the day. He was strong in his denunciation of "woman's craze for undress," and he made war relentlessly upon socialism and "race suicide" in England.

In one of his most famous sermons he asserted that the "up-to-date parents of the present generation would scorn such a father as his. His father, Colonel Vaughan of Courtfield, Hertfordshire, was one of twenty children, and Bernard himself was one of fourteen. Of Father Vaughan's thirteen brothers and sisters, all but two brothers went into the church. One of the brothers became Cardinal Archbishop of England and four others were nicknamed in priestly circles "Thoughts," "Words," "Deeds" and "Omissions."

Began His Career in Manchester.

Father Bernard Vaughan was born Aug. 20, 1847, at Stonyhurst, where he was educated, in one of the oldest Catholic colleges in England. Eighteen years of his life were spent in Manchester, where he participated in the civic as well as religious activities of the community, and was beloved for his work among the poor and respected as a scholar, lecturer and preacher. In the slums of Manchester he will repeat the story of Father Vaughan's being discovered cooking dinner for the hungry children of a mother who had to go to work.

His work among the poor was continued in Westminster and the East End of London, whither he went in 1901 to take charge of the Jesuit Church in Farm Street. He became the companion and friend of the children of the streets, and for their benefit he organized clubs, concerts, bazaars and other entertainments. But he lost no opportunity to attack the evils of the time.

Just before he came to the United States in 1910, a popular dancer in London is said to have so won the admiration of King Edward that he summoned her to his box and asked if there was anything he could offer to show his appreciation. The dancer, with ready wit, replied:

"Your Majesty, the head of Bernard Vaughan on a dish."

King Edward is said to have been a close friend of the priest, whom he often congratulated on his sermons. Indeed, it was said to have been on the advice of King Edward that Father Vaughan instituted libel action against a London publication, The Rock, which had attacked him. It resulted in a large award to Father Vaughan, who refused an offer to compromise the suit when the publishers were willing to make their apology apply to the Jesuit Order, which Father Vaughan held was in reality the object of their attack.

He was cathedral preacher at the Eucharistic Congress held at Montreal in 1910. The next year he lectured in various parts of the United States and Canada, later crossing the Pacific to speak before Waseda and Imperial universities of Tokio. Before leaving for China he addressed the House of Peers and ladies of society.

While in New York in 1912 he gave a series of sermons against socialism. In the war his fervid utterances brought down upon him the attacks of his brother Jesuits in Germany. It was his contention that the Germans "did not play the game" in fighting the World War.

On the first anniversary of America's entry into the conflict this message by Father Vaughan was flung across the sea:

"We congratulate with all our hearts the champions of the rights of mankind—the American people."

Mormonism shared with socialism the fire of Father Vaughan's denouncing oratory. At times he would warn England of her decreasing birth rate and caution against race suicide. Three years ago he assailed the fashions then prevailing in women's gowns. When the Irish hunger strikers came into prominence he contended that they were deliberately committing suicide.

He was the author of several books, some of the more recent being "Socialism from the Christian Standpoint," "What of Today?" "The Menace of the Empty Cradle," and "The Worker's Right to Live."

MANY HONOR MEMORY OF LYMAN ABBOTT

A memorial service was held last evening in the Madison Avenue Presbyterian Church, at Seventy-third Street, for Dr. Lyman Abbott. It took the place of a public funeral. Dr. Abbott died Oct. 22 last, and the funeral was held privately from his home.

There were addresses by the Rev. Dr. Henry Sloane Coffin, pastor of the Church; the Rev. Dr. Karl Reiland, rector of St. George's Episcopal Church; the Rev. Dr. Newell Dwight Hillis, pastor of Plymouth Congregational Church, Brooklyn. Dr. Abbott and his family in recent years attended Dr. Coffin's church. Dr. Abbott was an associate member of St. George's, and his daughter, Miss Betrice Abbott, and the wife of the rector were classmates in Vassar College. Dr. Abbott was pastor of Plymouth Church the eleven years between the pastorate of Henry Ward Beecher and Dr. Hillis.

The vested choir of Union Theological Seminary led the music. Dr. Abbott lectured regularly to the seminary students in his home until shortly before his death.

David Mannes, an intimate friend, played three violin solos, accompanied by the organ. As an opening hymn the congregation sang "For all the Saints Who From Their Labors Rest." Before the address by Dr. Coffin the hymn was "God of the Living in Whose Eyes." The closing hymn was "How Firm a Foundation Ye Saints of the Lord." Dr. Coffin and Dr. Reiland offered prayers, the latter pronouncing the benediction.

In the front pews on the right of the aisle were the members of Dr. Abbott's family, including Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence F. Abbott, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest H. Abbott, Dr. Theodore J. Abbott, Mr. and Mrs. Francis Jordan and Miss Beatrice Abbott. On the opposite side were eighty members of the staff of The Outlook, of which Dr. Abbott was editor.

"Measured by the number of people he reached, Dr. Abbott was unquestionably the greatest teacher of religion of this generation," said Dr. Coffin. "The simplicity of his style made him popular with all audiences. He was especially a teacher of ministers."

JUDGE TAYLOR SAYS HE WAS APPROACHED

Declares a Mistrial in Landlord Case—Friend's Name Used, He Asserts.

Saying that an effort had been made to influence him, County Judge Franklin Taylor of Brooklyn yesterday declared a mistrial in the action of the 350 Stone Avenue Corporation against the tenants in the house at 352 and 354 Stone Avenue. Judge Taylor said that some one had approached him, using the name of a personal friend who is in politics, and had sought to influence his decision in the case.

"The one who approached me did so without the consent or knowledge of the man whose name was used," said Judge Taylor. "However, inasmuch as the approach has been made, I do not feel that it would be right for me to preside any longer at this trial. I therefore have declared a mistrial and directed that the case be placed on the calendar for Nov. 20, when Judge McLaughlin will hear it."

The action was brought to dispossess the tenants for the ostensible purpose of converting the building into offices. It was brought out during the trial that the Directors of the Municipal Bank in Pitkin Avenue were also Directors in the 350 Stone Avenue Corporation, Judge Taylor is a Democrat, and was elected last Fall.

SWOOPING AIRMAN TRACED.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 31.—Action will be taken against Clarence Chamberlain, the aviator who swooped in circles just over 75,000 people in the Yale Bowl last Saturday.

The New Haven police have been looking for him since the game, but were unable to learn his identity until today, when he applied at Hartford for entry into the aviation meet there Nov. 10. His entry, which included a dozen airplanes, was refused by the Chairman of the Hartford Aviation Commission because of the danger in which it was felt that he placed the football spectators Saturday.

Harold Woodcock, Yale graduate athletic manager, said tonight that steps would be taken against Chamberlain, but their nature had not been decided. Major R. E. Hoyle, head of the Yale Artillery Battalion, said that he favored placing the matter before the Aero Club of America, which, he believed, would attempt to prevent future occurrence of that kind over the Yale Bowl.

VAUDEVILLE SUIT DISMISSED

Hart's $5,250,000 Action Against Keith and Others to Be Appealed.

The equity suit instituted by Max Hart, vaudeville manager, for triple damages amounting to $5,250,000, against B. F. Keith and other defendants, for alleged violation of the Sherman law, was dismissed, yesterday, by Federal Judge Mack.

The plaintiff charged that the defendants had excluded artists employed by him from certain circuits for the purpose of stifling competition. In dismissing the action, the court, it was explained, followed the precedent established in the baseball anti-trust litigation, to the effect that the traveling of theatrical performers and their transportation in interstate commerce was only incidental to the main issue, the giving of vaudeville entertainments. Lawrence H. Laxman and Martin W. Littleton, counsel for Mr. Hart, it was stated would appeal directly to the United States Supreme Court. Besides Mr. Keith, the defendants named in the action were the Vaudeville Exchange, the Orpheum Circuit and the Excelsior and Vaudeville Collection Agencies.

INJUNCTION HALTS WEDDING

KANSAS CITY, Kan., Oct. 31.—Judge Belden obtained a temporary injunction in the Wyandotte district court today to prevent his wife from giving her consent to the marriage of their daughter, Josephine Frances Belden, 14, to Dewey Holt, 22.

The two were to have been married today. The invitations were out, the trousseau was ready and the wedding cake was baked when the injunction was granted.

Mr. Belden charged that Holt, twice divorced, would not make a good husband for a 14-year-old girl.

The Beldens were divorced in 1912 and the mother received custody of the daughter. November 11 was set for the hearing on the injunction.

WOODHOUSE DENIES SON'S WIFE'S CLAIMS

Is First Witness Called in Daughter-in-Law's $1,000,000 Suit Against Husband's Parents.

Special to The New York Times.

BURLINGTON, Vt., Oct. 31.—That Mr. and Mrs. Lorenzo E. Woodhouse of this city and New York cut off their son, C. Douglas Woodhouse, without a cent and with the threat that he never would receive any money so long as he lived with her, is the claim of Mrs. Doris Stevens Woodhouse, who is suing her husband's parents for $1,000,000 in an alienation case, which was opened in the Chittenden County Court today.

The morning was occupied with the drawing of the jury, which consists entirely of farmers. Attorneys for the defense include C. H. Darling, ex-Assistant Secretary of the Navy; W. A. Bullard, United States District Attorney; J. J. Enright, United States Commissioner, and Guy M. Page. Warren F. Austin appears for the plaintiff.

Lorenzo E. Woodhouse was on the stand this afternoon, and was questioned as to his holdings in banks. He developed that he had homes on Long Island, in Chatham, Mass., and other places, as well as in New York and Burlington.

Mr. Woodhouse disclaimed any knowledge of interfering with his son and daughter-in-law. He denied that he had refused his son a position in his bank when the latter had applied for one after he was married.

The witness denied that Mrs. Lillian Hendricks McClellan of Washington and New York had been introduced to his son by his parents and that the attentions of Douglas to Mrs. McClellan had been encouraged although the Woodhouses knew their son was married at the time.

Mr. Woodhouse also denied the claim of the plaintiff that when Douglas was ill with typhoid pneumonia and Mrs. Woodhouse was taking care of him in a hospital at Long Branch, N. J., the parents went to see him, and, on ascertaining that young Mrs. Woodhouse was in the room, the elder Mrs. Woodhouse had left, while her husband had ignored the young bride. The witness said he visited his son many times, but saw no one in the room but the nurse.

Mr. Woodhouse was on the stand when the court recessed until tomorrow morning.

OLD-TIME ACTOR DIES.

John P. Hill, Who Played With Booth, Collapses in Subway.

John P. Hill, a Civil War veteran and an old-time theatrical manager and actor, collapsed on the shuttle platform at the Grand Central Terminal on Monday, and died while being carried to an ambulance. He was 76 years old and had been in ill health for a year.

Mr. Hill was one of the best known members of the G. A. R. and for years had been Quartermaster of U. S. Grant Post, No. 327. In 1921 he was elected commander of the post, but returned to the office of Quartermaster at the expiration of his term as commander.

In his early days he was a trapeze performer and later appeared in plays with Booth, Barrett and McCullough. He was for fifteen years stage director of the Hyde & Behman vaudeville house in Brooklyn and at different times had been manager of the Harris Theatre in Pittsburgh and the Imperial Theatre in Providence.

Mr. Hill was the founder of the Elks Lodge in Detroit and an organizer of the lodge of that order in Erie, Pa. He lived at 52 Willoughby Avenue, Brooklyn, and left a widow and a daughter, Mrs. Laura H. Breyer.

The funeral services will be held at U. S. Grant Post Headquarters, 489 Washington Avenue, Brooklyn, tomorrow evening.

Funeral Service for John B. Pine.

In keeping with a memorandum left by him, funeral services for John B. Pine, for fifty-two years clerk of the Board of Trustees of Columbia University, held yesterday in St. Paul's Chapel at the university, were of the utmost simplicity. One of the requests made by Mr. Pine was that there be no pallbearers, and there were none. He requested that "Stand, Columbia" be sung, and this was the only music at the service. Nicholas Murray Butler, President of the university, headed the trustees, administrative officers and Faculty members of the university who gathered in the chapel to pay last respects to their long-time associate.

Matthew J. Whittall Dies.

WORCESTER, Mass., Oct. 31.—Matthew J. Whittall, head of the Whittall Carpet Mills and a former member of the Governor's Council, died today at his home in Shrewsbury aged 70 years. He was a native of Kidderminster, England, but came to this city in 1871 and built up the largest individual carpet mill in the country. He was also interested in many other business enterprises and at the last convocation of the Supreme Lodge of the Masonic fraternity in Cleveland he was made a 33d degree member of the order. During the past Summer he visited Kidderminster and presented his boyhood parish with a memorial chapel.

Mrs. Kahn Dies of Her Injuries.

Mrs. Edith Grace Kahn, wife of Maximillian Kahn, investment broker of 2 Rector Street, died yesterday in Lenox Hill Hospital as the result of injuries received in an automobile accident near Coxsackie,, N. Y., a week ago. She was a daughter of Dr. H. C. Brannon, who is now in Florida, and was born in Wheeling, W. Va., 39 years ago. Her cousin was Alvin Macauly, president of the Packard Motor Car Company, of Detroit. Mrs. Kahn lived at 221 East Sixtieth Street.

Warren L. Sawyer Dies Suddenly.

Warren L. Sawyer of Stamford, Conn., a corporation lawyer and Secretary of the Clinton Chemical Corporation of Irvington, N. J., died in Irvington General Hospital yesterday a few minutes after he had been seized with an attack of acute indigestion. Mr. Sawyer was taken ill while reading the by-laws of the organization. He was 52 years old.

T. H. Ince's Father-in-Law Dies.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Oct. 31.—Henry W. Kershaw, aged 66, father-in-law of Thomas H. Ince, motion picture producer, and father of Willette Kershaw, actress, now appearing in London, died here last night. He was formerly a newspaper man in St. Louis, Mo., later general auditor for the Missouri Pacific Railroad and more recently auditor for the Inces.

POLICE CAPTAIN AUER DIES.

For Ten Years He Instructed Recruits in Law and City Ordinances.

Police Captain Philip W. Auer, who was until recently instructor in the Police Training School, and who was probably the best known captain on the force, died yesterday after a short illness at his home, 424 West 146th Street. When Captain Auer was promoted to a captaincy a short time ago he was sent to take charge of the West Forty-seventh Street Station. He retired after being there a few weeks. For ten years he had acted as instructor in law and ordinances of the city, of which he had an extensive knowledge.

Hundreds of men now in service passed under his tutorage and for that reason Captain Auer was, perhaps, personally known to more policemen than any other single individual in the department. He had a pleasing personality and the gift of making friends, and he won the affection of the young men whom he instructed.

Captain Auer was born in 1871. He became a policeman in March 1896, a sergeant in September, 1905, and a lieutenant five years later.

SUES SHIPPING BOARD ON BLACKLIST CLAIM

Captain Haagensen Alleges He Was Punished for Refusing to Aid Grafting.

ASKS $1,000,000 DAMAGES

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Oct. 31.—Captain B. T. Haagensen, for thirty-four years a sea captain, filed suit for $1,000,000 damages against the United States Shipping Board Emergency Fleet Corporation and the Munson Steamship Lines of New York, in the United States Circuit Court here today. Captain Haagensen alleges that he has been blacklisted as a result of his refusal to take part in a graft conspiracy through which, he claims, officials of the two defendants have collected great fortunes.

The captain's troubles began, his bill sets forth, when he was ordered by C. S. Mallory, assistant manager of the Munson Steamship Line, to be on the lookout for irregularities and graft during a South American voyage of the steamship Bibbco, of which he was in command in April, 1921.

The Bibbco reached Buenos Aires the latter part of June and was met by a Mr. Young, of the United States Shipping Board, "who sent for Captain Haagensen and requested him to sign bills for lighterage charges amounting to $7,000 for the last voyage of the Bibbco."

Captain Haagensen refused, on the ground that he knew nothing about the bills, and was told by Young that, whether he knew anything about the lighterage charges or not, he wanted them signed. Young told the captain to take the bills aboard and have them signed by the second mate as well as himself, the complaint says.

The plaintiff alleges that he consulted the logbook of the ship Bibbco and found no record of any lighterage charges. Afterward, the captain says, he spoke to the agents of the Munson Line and the United States Shipping Board at Buenos Aires, and "told them about the graft that was being collected and paid out of the taxes of the United State," and charged that, at the rate of $7,000 graft for one ship at each port, the graft on 60 to 100 ships controlled by the Munson Line would soon reach several millions of dollars.

Captain Haagnsen asserts that, as an indirect result of his efforts to bring the alleged method of graft to the attention of officials, charges were filed against him by the Shipping Board representatives and the Munson agents at Buenos Aires, causing him to be arrested on the ground that he had removed from the room of the chief engineer of the Bibbco "a large quantity of narcotics and also numerous letters showing that said engineer was using the Bibbco for the illegal transportation of narcotics."

Captain Haagensen was tried in Boston later on charges of incompetency brought by the Shipping Board agents and exonerated, he says, but on reaching New York he was relieved of his command.

MRS. RYAN SETTLES SUIT.

Widow of Joseph J. Accepts $10,000, Waives Dower Interests.

Supreme Court Justice Wagner approved yesterday an agreement by Mrs. Nannie Morse Ryan, widow of Joseph J. Ryan, youngest son of Thomas Fortune Ryan, to compromise her suit against her husband's estate to establish her dower interest in her husband's share of realty left by his mother, Mrs. Ida M. Ryan.

Mrs. Nannie Morse Ryan, who was living apart from her husband at the time of his death, was cut off his will. She accepts $10,000 to withdraw her claim to a life interest in property worth $74,000 now in possession of the Central Union Trust Company as executor under the will of his mother.

HARDING BIG ISSUE IN MONTANA FIGHT

DEMOCRATS NOW UNITED

TARIFF BROUGHT TO FRONT

Non-Partisan League Leanings, Past or Present, Are Laid to Both Nominees.

Special to The New York Times.

BILLINGS, Mont., Oct. 31.—Out here in Montana, where the turnips weigh fifteen to twenty pounds and where the potatoes are as bulky as a half-grown pumpkin, there is another slam-bang campaign for the United States Senate in full swing. The issues are many and the victory, say the wise men of both parties, will be decided by a majority of between 5,000 and 10,000 votes.

It is a campaign of personalities to a very large extent. The Harding Administration is the big issue when the personal elements are eliminated, and if the Republicans win it will be an out-and-out endorsement of the President. If the Democrats win it will be a Montana repudiation of the Executive. The total vote on Nov. 7 is expected to approximate 250,000.

The ordinary citizen, who is not in politics, will tell you that there is little choice between the two candidates for the seat of Senator Henry L. Myers, and that neither of them is the strongest man his party could have nominated. Both, the rival factions contend, are tainted with Non-Partisan Leagueism, and the candidacy of neither is evoking any widespread enthusiasm. There are Democrats who will vote Republican and there are Republicans who are supporting the Democratic candidate.

Riddick and Wheeler Lead Fights.

The Republican nominee is Carl Riddick, now one of Montana's two Representatives in the lower house of Congress. A few years back he was an Indiana politician, the Secretary of the Republican State Central Committee of that State.

Opposing him is Burton K. Wheeler, a Butte lawyer, a Bostonian who came into the Rocky Mountain country about twenty years ago, and who was the Democratic nominee for Governor with Non-partisan League endorsement in 1920. He is a Wilson Democrat, a fine speaker and two years ago ran some 30,000 votes ahead of Cox. This in the face of the fact that Senator Myers campaigned against him. This year he apparently has a united party back of him. Senator Myers is quiescent and remains in Washington.

Listen to a Republican politician talk and the stranger would conclude that Mr. Wheeler is as "red" as Lenin, he would have no choice but the conclusion that Wheeler is a Townleyite of the first water, and that his election to the Senate would be as great a misfortune as thousands of Republicans in the neighboring State of North Dakota declare will be the case if Lynn Frazier goes to Washington as the successor of McCumber.

A study of Mr. Wheeler's record does not seem to justify the bitter attacks on his Americanism. When the matter is boiled down it appears that all the trouble is due to the fact that the Non-Partisan League Farmers and the so-called Progressive Labor League endorsed his candidacy for Governor in 1920.

Mr. Wheeler has never at any time been a member of the Non-Partisan League. This cannot be said in behalf of Mr. Riddick. It is charged and is not denied that he was at one time a member of the league in good standing. Democratic newspapers have reproduced in their columns the picture of his membership card. THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent inquired of a leading Republican if this charge was true. He replied that it was, but explained that "Carl got out of the organization when he found out what it was."

Republicans Split on Dixon.

A Republican who is going to vote for Riddick, but who said he would vote for Myers if the latter was the Democratic candidate, said today that he would not do any boasting after he voted. This man is a Dixon Republican. Governor Dixon, who was the Bull Moose National Chairman in the 1912 campaign, is not overexerting himself in behalf of Riddick's candidacy. As a matter of fact, the Governor is in the midst of one of the hardest battles of his long career. He is campaigning in the State, pleading for a Legislature that will put through certain tax reforms on which he has his heart set.

The Republican Party is split wide open so far as the Governor is concerned. Some Republican newspapers are assailing him as bitterly as they attack Mr. Wheeler. This row in the Republican family, it is admitted, may in the end help Mr. Wheeler. Riddick, it is stated, has refused to take sides in the fight, and the result is that the Dixonites are not conspicuous among those who are noisily advocating his election.

Again on all sides the story is told that Riddick has just one speech. It is about forty-five minutes long and it is asserted that he has not changed it in any important respect since he began his campaign. The result is that the Republican newspapers in their accounts of his meetings do not print what he says, the reason being, it is declared, that having printed the speech once, they see no reason why they should repeat. On the other hand, the Democratic candidate generally manages to say something new at each meeting and for this reason the Democrats would seem to have the advantage from the viewpoint of publicity.

Lining Up Administration Vote.

As the situation sums up, it is safe to say that the Administration vote in the Republican Party, the vote that stands for everything the Harding Administration has done, is solidly behind Riddick. In 1920 the Harding vote was about 109,000, or 52,000 greater than that cast for Governor Cox, but this big Harding vote included thousands of Democrats, a fact that even the most partisan Republicans will admit.

The Administration forces are putting forth great efforts to retain this Democratic support. It represented the anti-League of Nations element and the dissatisfied labor vote of the Montana Democracy to a very large extent. It included thousands of Democrats who revolted as did Senator Myers because of the Non-Partisan League endorsement of Mr. Wheeler, although Senator Myers himself stood with Mr. Wilson.

The Democratic managers declare that the great bulk of this Democratic vote, which two years ago was cast for Harding, is back in the line-up this year. They point to the fact that Senator Myers is "mum," and that the leaders, such as Senator Thomas J. Walsh, Bruce Kremer and other prominent men in the State, are campaigning for Wheeler.

The Non-Partisan League has not endorsed Wheeler this year. The Republicans say this is because most of the farmers are going to vote for Riddick. The Democrats declare in just as positive fashion that they are for Wheeler. The best guess would appear to be that the big farmer vote is going to divide as it did in normal years. It looks like a fifty-fifty split in the agricultural sections.

Next in importance to the farmers is the labor vote and in proportion to population Montana has as large a labor vote as any State in the Union. The principal elements in the labor vote are the railroad, mining, and smelting men. The Democrats are claiming that 90 per cent. of the organized labor men and women are back of Wheeler. Riddick, like Mondell in Wyoming, voted for the Esch-Cummins law and is for the Administration, Daugherty and all. So far as the labor men are concerned Attorney General Daugherty and his injunction are very much of an issue in this part of the country. It looks as if Wheeler will get the labor vote.

Old Mortgage Case Brought Up.

The bitterest attack yet made on Riddick is printed in the last issue of The Billings Searchlight, a paper of the labor-farmer type, radical in its politics. In its attack it charges that when he was Secretary of the Indiana Republican State Committee, in 1906, Riddick was arrested on the charge of having made a false affidavit in a mortgage transaction for the purpose of evading the payment of taxes; that he was brought to trial and was "acquitted on the technicality of not having sworn to the false mortgage before a notary public empowered to take oaths."

At that time Riddick was tax adjuster of Pulaski County, Ind. The alleged mortgage was executed against his home in Winamac, Ind. The paper prints what purports to be the text of the original affidavit. This article is being circulated throughout the State. Friends of Riddick say it will have no bearing one way or the other on the election.

The last important voting element is that large group of Democrats who have stood behind ex-President Wilson. Everybody here says they are practically a unit for the Democratic nominee and this includes, they say, the Wilson men who under the leadership of Senator Myers fought Wheeler in the gubernatorial race two years ago.

Riddick in his speeches pleads with his audiences to stand back of President Harding. He defends the Fordney-McCumber tariff as a law that is hastening the return of normal good times, lauds the 1921 tax law and the treaties negotiated at the instance of the Administration for peace in the Pacific and reducing naval armament. He deserts the Administration only on the bonus issue. He points out that he voted for the bonus, but his opponents reply with the charge that when the House voted to override the President's veto Riddick was recorded as "absent and not voting."

Wheeler Attacks New Tariff.

On the other hand, Wheeler flays the tariff, his stand on this issue corresponding to that of Senator Walsh, who was one of the principal Democratic floor opponents of the measure when it was before the Senate. He assails the proposed ship subsidy bill as a reversion to the policies of Mark Hanna, and charges that the Administration at Washington has directed its energies not to reducing the burdens of the poor but to the reduction of the taxes of the rich. He wants a bonus for the soldiers and says the wealthy should pay it.

In their campaign speeches the Republican spellbinders tell their audiences that Wheeler is the same old Wheeler of 1920," Non-Partisan League and all. On the other hand the Democratic campaigners assail Riddick as a man who in no way measures up to the Senatorial standard. Speaking in Billings last Friday night, Bruce Kremer, the Democratic National Committeeman, said that "if Riddick is a giant, a mole hill is twice as big as the Rocky Mountains."

That is the way the Democrats talk about Riddick. It is also the way in which the Republicans discuss Wheeler.

In a leading Helena newspaper this morning one of the editorials was a denunciation of a prominent Democrat who is urging the election of Wheeler. This Democrat was described as the "local interlocking press coon dog for the big interests." The quotation is given simply for the purpose of indicating how nicely they talk about one another in Montana just before election.

A prominent Democrat of Billings called attention today to what he said was a fact that on one of the principal streets of Billings Riddick's picture is displayed in only a single window. That window is in a bank now in the hands of a receiver. On the other hand, on this same street, not a single window displays the picture of the Democratic candidate.

It is hard to forecast what will happen next Tuesday. As stated, neither party claims the State by more than 10,000 and either will be satisfied with half that majority.

BOUNTIFUL POTATO CROP.

Yield Affords Nearly an Extra Bushel for Every Citizen.

MADISON, Wis., Oct. 31.—Every person in the United States will have to eat forty-eight pounds more of potatoes this year if the present crop is to be consumed, the Wisconsin Department of Markets estimated today.

Normal consumption of potatoes is said to be 3.2 bushels per person, but the bumper crop of this season has resulted in a supply equal to four bushels for each individual. Production is estimated at 483,000,000 bushels.

New Death House Cell Gates Offer Chances for Suicides

Special to The New York Times.

OSSINING, Oct. 31.—Sing Sing attendants today discovered a defect in the gates to the cells of the new death house which enables prisoners with small heads to thrust them through the small opening between the bars through which food is passed. Prison employes report that William Creasy, convicted of the murder of Edith Lavoy, Freeport school teacher put his head through the bars.

Not alone is there danger of a prisoner thrusting his head through and committing suicide by breaking his neck, but prisoners with small heads will be able to see one another until the fault is remedied. Murderers with large heads cannot enjoy this privilege.

Warden Lawes will have all the gates changed to reduce the size of the opening.

HYLAN BOARD HEARS COAL MINERS' WOES

OPERATORS IGNORE INQUIRY

Berwind-White Officials Refuse to Be Questioned in Public—Mrs. Welzmiller Snubbed.

Special to The New York Times.

WINDBER, Pa., Oct. 31.—Mayor John F. Hylan's Committee of Five investigating conditions under which coal consumed by the Interborough Rapid Transit Company of New York City is being mined, completed its public hearings here today when testimony of some twenty-five former employes of the Berwind-White Coal Mining Company was offered. Tomorrow the committee will meet in Johnstown to hear the district officials of the United Mine Workers of America, who will present the union side of the case.

John Lochrie, independent coal operator, who yesterday offered the use of his hall here for the hearings, apparently experienced a change of heart over night. When the committee, headed by David Hirshfield, appeared in Windber at 10 o'clock this morning, Mr. Lochrie was absent and his hall was locked up. The investigators resumed their sessions in the United Mine Workers' hall, where yesterday's sessions were conducted.

"Mr. Lochrie probably heard from the Berwind-White officials last night," Mr. Hirshfield stated in opening the hearing. "He was probably informed that he is to keep his hands off. He stated that he was an independent operator, but Berwind-White's influence is apparently far-reaching."

A third invitation was extended to the officials of the Berwind-White Company to appear before the committee and present their side of the case, but the proffer was refused.

"We will meet the committee in our office behind closed doors," W. E. Newbaker, Superintendent, replied, "but we will not appear before the committee at a public hearing."

It is the policy of the company to keep absolutely clear of anything with which the union is even remotely connected.

Evidence as to the average earnings of ore, Berwind-White miners, of prices charged at company stores, and of evictions from company-owned homes occupied a large part of the committee's time today. The statements of some twenty miners were to the effect that the average earnings of the Berwind-White miners had been from $20 to $45 for two weeks.

"My earnings as a miner for Berwind-White were enough to exist on, but not enough to live on," John Belak, a middle-aged man, told the commissioners. "Often I received $1 in cash at the end of two weeks hard work, the remainder went for store bills to the company-owned store and for rent. Some pay days I would finish the two weeks work and be in debt to the company. We worked long hours, from eight and one half to eleven hours a day. In addition to this we had to put up with the nasty mine guard system."

Prices at the company stores, called the Eureka Stores, are from 10 to 20 per cent. higher than at independent stores in Johnstown, the miners and their wives testified. If a man did not deal at the company stores, and the officials found it out, the miner's job was, as a rule, forfeited. An occasional purchase could be made at an outside store, but that was all.

Several women told of being evicted from company-owned houses without the proper legal notice being served. Others told of the mine guard system, stating that, laying all fault with the system itself aside, the men brought into Windber to serve as mine guards were not of sufficient moral character for such a position. To prove this a number of criminal acts alleged to have been performed by mine guards were cited.

John Brophy, District President of the United Mine Workers of America, was present at the hearings today, but took very little part in the proceedings. James E. Roberts, District Vice President, was also present. Attorney J. J. Kintner of Lock Haven acted as legal counsel for the miners.

The hall was crowded during the hearings, which continued for nearly six hours, hundreds of miners and their wives were turned away because the capacity of the little hall is limited.

Tomorrow morning James E. Marks and other district union officials will inform the committee of the efforts the union has made to end the strike in the Windber district. Figures will be produced, Mr. Brophy stated, showing that the coal mined at Windber under non-union conditions is even more than coal produced in union mines. The committee will return to New York City tomorrow night, and it is expected that a formal report on the entire investigation will be presented to Mayor Hylan within the next week.

WINDBER, Pa., Oct. 31 (Associated Press).—Women living in tents, barns and chicken coops corroborated the stories told by their husbands today to the Hylan committee investigating the Berwind-White coal mining strike. The keynote of these stories was that the strike, which began in April, was not primarily the consequence of an effort to unionize the Berwind-White properties, but was the response of the employes to a drastic cut in wages which became effective on April 1.

Men and women insisted that prior to the cut the average weekly wage of the miners was from $15 to $22, and that when the cut in wages was announced the married men decided they could not earn sufficient money to support their families.

Mrs. Harry Beal, star witness for the strikers, told much the same story that she told in New York. As she related incidents affecting her six children, Mrs. Louis Welsmiller, a member of the committee, burst into tears. Mrs. Beal, small young woman of intelligent appearance, said she was married when less than 17 years old.

"My husband was a night watchman," said Mrs. Beal. "He worked twelve hours a night and seven nights a week, and his monthly salary before April 1 was $147.50. He was cut $37.50 in April, but never knew it until he tried to draw his pay.

"My husband, like a lot of miners, has worked several years for the company. Every two weeks, on pay day, he drew $1 in cash. The rest of his salary was deducted for groceries and other articles that we were forced to buy at the company stores."

"What did you do with the dollar?" asked Commissioner Hirshfield.

"I usually gave it to our doctor," replied the little woman. "I paid him by the week for his services in attending me when I had my babies. I then got through paying one bill when I had my last child. A few weeks later we were evicted from the company house."

"Where have you been living since?" she was asked.

"In a wash-house, ten feet square," she replied. "Five of us sleep in one bed."

The committee holds its closing session in Johnstown tomorrow. Officials of the United Mine Workers, in charge of the strike, have been invited to "detail what efforts have been made to settle the controversy between the miners and operators."

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., Oct. 31 (Associated Press).—Mrs. Louis Welsmiller, a member of the Hylan Coal Investigating Committee from New York City, motored back to Johnstown from Windber early this afternoon to respond to an invitation, previously accepted, to speak at a meeting of the Johnstown Woman's Civic Club regarding her visit to the tent colony of strikers near the Berwind-White mine.

When she reached the hotel where the meeting was to be held she was informed by an officer of the club that the invitation "had been reconsidered."

"I had intended to tell these women something of the suffering I had observed among the children in the cluster of tents near the mine at Scalp Level," said Mrs. Welsmiller, who is Deputy Commissioner of Markets in New York City. "I had planned to inform the women that I would obtain assistance or co-operation from New York women for the strike victims, if necessary.

"The club member did not tell me why the women had decided to recall the invitation."

Minister Prays and Preaches at His Trial; Admits Killing Wife and Her Mother

STATESBORO, Ga., Oct. 31.—The Rev. Elliott Padrick, youthful Methodist minister, on trial for murder of his wife and her mother, Mrs. M. B. Dixon, took the stand in his own behalf here today. He led the courtroom prayer, after which he delivered a sermon on the text, "Thou shalt not covet thy neighbor's wife."

During his statement Padrick became so excited that it was necessary for one of his attorneys to call a halt. When instructed to sit down, the young minister walked deliberately to a water-cooler, drank a glass of water and returned to his attorney's table, where he sat down, closed his eyes and appeared to drop off to sleep.

In his prayer Padrick asked for Divine guidance for the court, the future of the church and the people of Statesboro. He then turned to the jury and delivered a short sermon. He declared the women of today were causing the downfall of man, "enticing them by their manner of dress, and playing to them through sex appeal." He said it was difficult for a young man to enter the ministry because of the temptation of modern women.

Singling out his father-in-law, Padrick pointed his finger at him and cried: "You are responsible for me marrying your daughter."

Padrick described the jealousy of his wife's mother, whom he admitted he killed.

"She would often beat her daughter because Willie Mae was admired by other men when she went to town," he said.

When Padrick finally had subsided, lawyers said his performance probably was the most dramatic court statement ever offered by a defendant in this State.

After it was completed the prosecution offered several witnesses to prove Padrick sane. One, Jonas Quattlebaum, declared he considered Padrick sane, having heard him preach. Tom Jones, another witness, said he had heard him preach and considered him above the average in intelligence.

Mrs. E. I. Padrick Sr., the defendant's mother, was the first defense witness. Her evidence was counted upon to show Padrick's peculiarity since early boyhood. She testified that his mental condition sometimes threw him into unconsciousness.

"He would often get up in the night," she said, "and study the Bible until daylight. He had queer ideas of religion. He doubted other ministers' sincerity."

The Rev. E. I. Padrick Sr., aged minister and father of the defendant, testified that his son "has always wept over a 'lost world.'" The father told of sending him to Florida because of his mental condition. He admitted that contributing reasons for sending him there were that he was wanted for forging the name of his employer on a check and that he was about to be arrested for wife beating.

Previously Padrick had declared that the hand of God directed him in the slaying of his pretty young wife and his mother-in-law. He has shown little interest in his trial, having slept while much of the State's evidence was being submitted yesterday.

The case was given to the jurors tonight with instructions to sleep on it.

ARREST MAY REVEAL BIG PAPER THEFT

SOLD TO ANOTHER CONCERN

Police Say Prisoner Has Implicated Others and More Arrests May Be Made.

Thefts of paper to the value of about $100,000 during the last year may be revealed, according to Detective Powers of the Brooklyn Police Headquarters, last night, following the alleged confession, involving several other men, of Alfred Noble, 25, of 67 Prince Street, Manhattan, an employe of The Star Publishing Company, publishers of The New York Evening Journal and The American.

Noble was arrested yesterday at his home and taken to the Poplar Street Station on a warrant charging grand larceny. More arrests may be made. The case has been under investigation by Assistant District Attorney B. C. Hock.

Police at Brooklyn Headquarters asserted that Noble was in league with truckmen, who were hired to transport paper from the warehouse of Robert Gair in Brooklyn to the publishing company. The plan, according to the police, was to withhold the last truck-load of paper taken from the warehouse, and sell it elsewhere. The truck-load would be checked off by Noble at the publishing company office as delivered, they said.

The specific charge against Noble recites that on Sept. 2 eleven rolls of paper, of 1,200 pounds each, and valued at $600 and $700, were taken from the Gair warehouses at Washington Street, Brooklyn, and sold to the Amalgamated Paper Company, 70 Washington Street, Brooklyn, by four men.

MAYOR STRIKES BACK AT DRESCHER PROTEST

Praises Skill of Lawyer Who Objects to Hylan's "Yours Sincerely" on Circular to Wife.

Mayor Hylan wrote to Herbert C. Drescher, 2,023 Avenue Q, Brooklyn, yesterday in reply to a letter in which the attorney upbraided the Mayor for signing "Sincerely yours" to a campaign circular sent to Mrs. Drescher.

The Mayor's letter follows:

"Mr. Herbert C. Drescher, 2,023 Avenue Q, Brooklyn, N. Y.

"Dear Sir: Permit me to congratulate you on your great technical skill. Nobody but a lawyer of your great and massive legal mind would have discovered that the letter to which you refer was signed 'Sincerely yours.' Your reasoning shows that you are possessed of a truly great mind. But you overlooked the most important thing—the letter sent to your wife was addressed 'Dear Fellow-Citizen.' The letter was sent to your wife by a committee.

"I am glad that the great majority of married ladies in this city have not husbands who are as technical as you are, because if they were subjected to the technical scrutiny that you resort to in considering my letter the lives of the wives of this town would be indeed most unhappy. Your father, the ex-Republican Sheriff of Kings County, no doubt is proud of you and of the epistolary ability you have revealed.

"You have a strange twist of mind if you cannot understand my writing a letter in behalf of Mr. Carswell when I have intimate personal knowledge of his faithful work in behalf of the people and because of that fact acquired a deep and abiding conviction that he would make an able Supreme Court Justice whom all the people could trust as to his absolute impartiality.

"Despite your objection to my form of complimentary close, believe me again, Sincerely yours,

"JOHN F. HYLAN, Mayor.

WOUNDED, CRAWLS 2 DAYS.

Hunter, With Leg Shattered, Makes Splint, Flags Train.

FORT WILLIAM, Ont., Oct. 31.—The engineer of a slow freight today saw a man standing on the tracks, leaning on a canoe paddle and feebly waving a red bandanna. The train stopped and the man collapsed.

The stranger, suffering from a high fever, was taken aboard the freight, dropped at Amyot and put in a hospital there. This was his story, gleaned from his ravings:

He was William Anderson and he lived in Amyot. Out hunting on Birch Lake, he accidentally shot himself in the leg two days ago. The bone was shattered. With one paddle he made a splint. His shirt he used as a bandage. His necktie served as a tourniquet.

Pushing himself up, he took his other paddle for a crutch and began dragging and pushing himself along through two miles of brush to the railroad tracks. It was slow work and bitter cold. He moved only a few yards an hour, but he kept on.

He reached the tracks yesterday. For 24 hours he waited, without food or water, for a train. He may recover.

IN TAXI WITH WIFE, SHOOTS HIMSELF

Husband Fired Shot When She Refused to Drop Separation Case, Woman Says.

FLASH IGNITES HIS CLOTHING

In Critical Condition From Bullet and Burns—Wife's First Husband Had Been Slain.

Charles Prescott, 31 years old, of 62 Bleecker Street, shot himself in the abdomen yesterday afternoon in a taxicab in which he was riding with his wife, just as the cab reached Fifth Avenue and Washington Square. Prescott was taken to St. Vincent's Hospital in a critical condition, suffering both from the gunshot wound and from burns due to his clothing having ignited from the close-range shot.

The wife, Mrs. Augusta Prescott, was questioned by the police, then released. She said Prescott had shot himself because she refused to abandon separation proceedings. She is 21 years old and was married to Prescott two years ago. She had ceased to love him, she said. Mrs. Prescott said she was the widow of Michael Sweeney, to whom she was married at 16 and who was murdered soon afterward at the Pioneer Club in Hudson Street. The slayer got a twenty-year sentence.

Prescott, according to his wife, originally was named Anthony Frascata. He changed his name when he went to work in the steel mills at Gary. Recently he has been a railroad brakeman. He, too, had been married twice. The couple had lived in New Jersey and in Brooklyn until their separation. Then Mrs. Prescott went to the home of a married sister at 150 Perry Street.

Yesterday afternoon she visited her lawyer, Samuel Tannenbaum, of 342 Madison Avenue, in regard to a non-support action which was to have led to separation proceedings. She met Prescott outside, she said, and started downtown in the taxi with him to avoid a scene. When he pulled the pistol she became hysterical, fearing he was going to kill her. The shot startled passers-by and a crowd gathered.

Later Mrs. Prescott declared she didn't love her husband any more, that nothing lasted and that she would not be another man's "storm and strife" for $10,000,000.

Mrs. Prescott told the detectives that on Oct. 18 she and her husband had met in their Hoboken apartment, and she had fallen asleep on a sofa. She told the police she woke up and found her husband had left the house, and that jets on the stove and mantelpiece had been turned on.

A letter was from Prescott to his mother and said in part:

"I hope to be forgiven for what I am about to do. I have lost all that is dear to me. I sincerely hope that things are better in the next world."

To the physician attending him and a nurse Prescott is alleged to have said:

"I don't care whether I recover or not. Life is a failure. They say every cloud has a silver lining, but sometimes the lining is tarnished."

ALLEN HITS KLAN AND BIGOTS

Attacks Both Sides for Rousing Religious Hatred in Kansas.

GREAT BEND, Kan., Oct. 31.—Governor Allen, in an election campaign address here last night, continued his attack on the Ku Klux Klan, with a plea for tranquillity and tolerance so that the State might be spared "the horrors of a civil war."

His speech was a denunciation of religious bigotry and community hatred and he denounced some Catholics and some members of the Klan in the same breath.

"You are both to blame," he asserted. "You Catholics who go out and say: 'I don't vote for a man who is not a Catholic. I am going to put my political activity behind my religion.' You ought be ashamed of yourselves. And you men who join this Klan and say, 'There is an order that exists for the protection of white supremacy and to save us from the Catholic Church,' you ought to be ashamed; honestly, you ought to be ashamed.

"Now, as a fellow American having the same impulses that you have, I am opposed to the Klan because it suggests terrorism and outlawry. I am not against your organization because you do not like the Catholic Church."

After comparing conditions in Kansas and Ireland, and telling of requests his office had received from men that they be allowed to arm themselves "because they were frightened," the Governor asked:

"Do you want turned loose in this State the horrors of a civil war?

"God forbid such a war. And yet what can you suggest to the negroes of the State, in some communities of which there are thousands, when the old Ku Klux Klan that terrified them fifty-five years ago is again riding at night? Can you expect them not to protect themselves?"

COUNTERFEITING IN JAIL.

Argentine Gang Succeeds in Marketing Its Product Outside the Bars.

BUENOS AIRES, Oct. 31.—A gang of prisoners serving sentences in the jail at Tucuman have been diverting themselves with clever forgeries of notes of 100 pesos and other denominations. The provincial authorities who are investigating the matter declared that accomplices of the prisoners had already disposed of a considerable quantity of their forgeries to innocent folk outside the bars.

Boy Killed by Auto Truck.

Special to The New York Times.

PATCHOGUE, L. I., Oct. 31.—John Kirk, 10 years old, son of William Kirk of Centre Moriches, was run over and killed this afternoon by a five-ton auto truck owned and driven by William Lewis of Patchogue. The boy was playing on the Montauk highway and fell between the front and rear wheels of the truck. His skull was crushed.

SAYS PEGGY CAFFEE LED MRS. PHILLIPS

PROSECUTION RESTS CASE

Defendant Declares Her Purpose to Tell "the Whole Truth" to the Jury.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Oct. 31.—Mrs. Clara Phillips is a "moron," "subject to epileptic convulsions," and has "the mentality of a child," her attorney, Bertram Herrington, declared today in opening the defense in her trial for the murder of Mrs. Alberta Meadows.

The attorney asserted he would prove that the defendant did not wield the hammer with which the State contends Mrs. Meadows was beaten to death on Montecito Drive on July 12 last. He declared it would be shown that Mrs. Phillips's every action that day was "guided by Peggy Caffee," prosecution witness, who testified she saw Mrs. Phillips striking Mrs. Meadows with the hammer.

The State rested after examining Lester Atkins, who corroborated Mrs. Caffee's statement that he and a man named E. Gentry met Mrs. Caffee and Mrs. Phillips at Long Beach a few hours before the slaying. He said the women came to his apartment and Gentry and Mrs. Phillips went out and returned with a pint bottle of whisky, of which all four partook. He said he and Gentry drove the women to Los Angeles. Mrs. Phillips carrying with her the bottle and what remained of its contents.

Says Mrs. Caffee Bought Hammer.

Herrington declared he would show that Mrs. Meadows was slain after an altercation and fight between her and Mrs. Phillips in which the latter's little finger was practically broken and she appealed to Mrs. Caffee for aid. It was Mrs. Caffee, he asserted, who bought the hammer, not Mrs. Phillips.

After the slaying, the attorney went on, Mrs. Phillips went to a hotel and was told by her husband that "something awful" had happened and she must go to Texas at once. Phillips, he said, got her some money and she started east.

Referring to his client's mental condition, Herrington said her father and several other near relatives had been mentally irresponsible.

What she will tell the jury if she takes the stand in her own defense during her trial for the slaying of Mrs. Alberta Tremaine Meadows, in an interview here today Mrs. Phillips outlined the story she intends to tell the jury if she is put on the stand.

Mrs. Phillips Tells of Fight.

"It was all like this," Mrs. Phillips said. "Three people get into a machine. Two of them are friends. One of the friends and another girl get into a fight. The friend gets the worst of it and the other friend naturally comes to her rescue, doesn't she? Well, figure it out for yourself.

"Peggy said it was 'Clara this' and 'Clara that.' Clara did everything.' It was ridiculous.

"If I get a chance I am going to tell my story. People have thought that I am guilty, so bad, because I haven't told my story before. But if they only knew what was in my heart they would understand. They must understand I have a reason for not talking and can not do so until the proper time comes. Those are the many details I could not tell you for this reason:

"Peggy has not told everything as it was. But, in spite of it all, I do not say that I dislike Peggy. I will not do her an injustice.

"If I get on the stand, and I cannot say now whether I will, I am going to try to make the jury understand my feelings and sufferings. I will tell what I've done. I'll tell the whole truth. Then let it find whatever way it may."

HUGH WALPOLE BEGINS COURSE ON THE NOVEL

English Critic Reviews Earliest Works in First Lecture at Broadhurst Theatre.

Hugh Walpole, English novelist and literary critic, opened his course of six lectures upon "The English Novel of the Twentieth Century" at the Broadhurst Theatre yesterday afternoon by an introductory talk in which he outlined the growth of the novel since the days of the Sir Roger de Coverly papers.

"In looking back over the earlier period," said Mr. Walpole, "we cannot help thinking how heavenly it must have been to have no theory of the novel, no standards to follow or lectures to which to give heed. Yet with all of its crudity we find something in that early novel which is lacking today, and it is to some of those qualities that I wish to call attention in my lectures."

Mr. Walpole said that the art of the novelist was distinguished from that of other arts in that he had to paint the characters upon the written page in such a way that his readers would know them to be true. In continuing his course of lectures Mr. Walpole said that he hoped to answer the questions (1) if there was really a theory which belonged to the novel and could not be left out, (2) if the novelist must have the higher greater qualities of nobility in order to produce these qualities in his work and (3) who are the truly significant authors of the present time?

Mr. Walpole briefly sketched the contributions George Eliot, Gustave Flaubert and Guy de Maupassant had made to the modern novel. He said that Henry James had shown us how to tell a story in the longest way and Rudyard Kipling in the shortest. Every novelist, he said, feels the necessity of snatching instantly the vision before his eyes and putting it on paper before it fades away.

TO SHIFT MINE TRIALS.

West Virginia Judge Finds Hostility Too Great at Charles Town.

CHARLES TOWN, W. Va., Oct. 31.—C. Frank Keeney, District President of the United Mine Workers, is not be tried in Jefferson County on indictments growing out of the march of miners in Southern West Virginia last year, Judge Woods decided late today when he granted the petition of Keeney's counsel for a change of venue. He asked the interested lawyers to waste no time in agreeing upon a county where they believed Keeney could get a fair trial.

Earlier in the day Judge Woods overruled the motion of the defense for an injunction to prevent what it termed "private interests" from assisting the State through the employment of associate counsel and payment of witnesses in the "armed march" trials.

In granting the change of venue Judge Woods decided that "hostility against the indicted men in Jefferson County was so pronounced that they could not get fair trials."

William Rockefeller's Heirs to Sell Costly Summer Home

Special to The New York Times.

SCARBOROUGH, Oct. 31.—Heirs of William Rockefeller, it was reported upon good authority today, are going to sell off his palatial country home "Rockwood" on the Albany post road near Scarborough, which is the most costly show place along the Hudson River.

Besides the house, which is of gray stone, and the staples there are between 400 and 500 acres of ground. A close friend of the Rockefeller family declared that the late financier paid $100,000 a year to maintain the place.

None of Mr. Rockefeller's children, according to this informant, cares to live there. The estate went largely to his sons, Percy and William Rockefeller, and his daughters, Mrs. Marcellus Dodge and Mrs. McAlpin.

EX-SENATOR MALONE GUILTY OF LARCENY

OUT LESS THAN AN HOUR

BUFFALO, N. Y., Oct. 31.—John F. Malone, former State Senator and former City Commissioner, was today found guilty of larceny in connection with misappropriation of Park Department funds. The jury was out fifty-five minutes.

Three members of the former Commissioner's staff and four business men previously had entered pleas of guilty. The total thefts were estimated by accountants at $150,000. Sentences were deferred.

The specific charge against Malone was that he accepted from a sports goods dealer $670 which had been withdrawn from the City Treasury on vouchers for goods that had not been delivered to the city.

Evidence was introduced by the prosecution to show that clothing, coal and groceries were delivered to the Commissioner's home and paid for by the false voucher system. Frederick C. Kull, auditor of the department, admitted taking $8,000 by fraudulent vouchers, and said that an equal amount went to the Commissioner. Kull has pleaded guilty.

No witnesses were called for the defense, but numerous exceptions were taken to the Court's rulings, and it is expected that an effort will be made to establish a mistrial.

In summing up District Attorney Guy B. Moore told the jury that if he had his way the men who pleaded guilty of participating in the $150,000 frauds would go to Auburn prison.

"But it is the name of justice," he said, "if these men do go to prison, do not let them go alone; let them be accompanied by the master crook, Malone—Fagan Malone. Let him lead his gang of Oliver Twists into Auburn Prison, as justice demands."

DETROIT CAR MEN FIGHT CUT

Special to The New York Times.

DETROIT, Mich., Oct. 31.—At a conference today with members of the Street Railway Commission officials of the Car Men's Union objected to adoption of the new daily wage plan of Mayor Cousens and offered a counter-proposition.

The car men's representatives objected to the Mayor's plan mainly on the ground that it would be practically a reduction in pay for the majority of men on the lines. The Mayor's scheme, which was announced on Monday, was to put the wages on a daily instead of an hourly basis and provide for a basic $5 rate for eight hours work and a week's vacation with pay.

The counter-plan offered by the car men did not differ materially from that of the Mayor, but slightly increased the scale of pay to a figure which, it was contended, would nearly balance with the wages now being paid.

The city's proposal to reduce the overtime rate from time and one-half to time and one-quarter also stirred opposition.

REVEALS MORE DOUBLE FARES IN HYLAN PLAN

Harkness Says I. R. T. West Side Scheme Would Draw $5,000,000 in Extra Nickels.

Transit Commissioner LeRoy T. Harkness yesterday estimated that Mayor Hylan's plan to "recapture" the Interborough west side subway for municipal operation would force 101,800,000 passengers a year to pay $5,090,000 in additional fares. In his survey of the result of the Mayor's plan on the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company's lines Mr. Harkness estimated that the annual additional fare cost would be $9,443,175, a total on both systems of $14,533,175.

Mr. Harkness specified the five points on the Interborough system at which passengers would have to pay additional fares under the Mayor's plan as follows:

"1. At the Atlantic Avenue, Nevins Street and Borough Hall stations, Brooklyn, where the east side and west side trunk lines operate jointly, the number of passengers transferring during the year 1922 is estimated at 15,000,000. This would mean an additional annual charge of $750,000.

"2. The Forty-second Street cross-town shuttle line carried free in 1922 30,000,000 passengers. The double fare would mean an additional charge of $1,950,000.

"3. The transfer between the elevated and subway lines at 149th Street and Third Avenue amounted to about 40,000,000 passengers, an additional charge of $2,000,000.

"4. The transfer at Mott Avenue station, between the West Farms and Jerome Avenue subway lines, amounted to about 3,300,000 passengers, representing an additional burden upon fare-payers of $165,000.

"5. The number of free passengers by the Gun Hill Road elevated connection between the Third Avenue elevated railroad and the White Plains Avenue extension was about 4,500,000, an additional burden of $225,000 a year."

Wilson and Bryan should been impeached early 1913. No right suppress diplomatic reports and declare peace with Mexico! Democrat Congress right use its judgment to declare war. Worse! Deprived injured U. S. citizens their right to have Congress, not the President, use its judgment whether this wrongs merited war! President required by Constitution to report to Congress "state of the Union." This includes state of all Union's citizens. Wilson didn't do it! Ignored 68 of Senate's 70 requests for information. 68th important! Southern Dem Congress, his abject slave, did nothing. Fathers Constitution distinguished between murder citizen at home and abroad! Absolution at home only by 12 men. Absolution abroad not by one! Course not. Murder American abroad more important! American honor may be affected! Insult America may be intended. So. Absolution abroad only by the full assembly of Congress. Both Houses! Up to them whether declare war! Sole power! Yet Wilson flouted and defeated it by himself declaring peace. Never gave Congress a chance! Never gave it the facts! Treated reports as his private property. Thereby violated Constitution! Thereby deprived many citizens their lives and property! Didn't distinguish between what had right to do and what wanted to do. Wanted, he said, help Mexico! So part Americans to help Mexico!

Mr. Downtown, you can't go on electing featherweights to office to do as they please while in office and laugh at results after leaving office! America young and on that plan won't die old. Old Rome wise! Didn't last 1,000 years by accident. America won't! Roman officials not leaving office liable personally in damages to any citizen injured by illegal use power while in office. In old Rome Wilson and Bryan'd been stripped last cent on leaving office! Should be here! Declared unconstitutional peace! Should pay all damages Americans suffered from that "peace." Obeying oath office must be no mockery! "Helping Mexico!" Reaping Mexicans to American lives and property! Does the oath so read? Oath office has come to be mere empty form. Course! No kick in it. No come-back. Put ours in for sing, "Good-bye America!" No wonder only one murder out 64, average, annually punished in U. S. Americans doing as please 'cause President doing as pleases! Holding to Wilson figure!

How long, O laws, how long? How long, my Heaven avenge American blood?

If Wall St. bank clerk had absconded to Canada with $100 sight Villa attacked Columbus he would been brought back long ago! Why not New Mexico murderer? Any palliation that he also shot up an American army camp, insulted and fired on the American flag and outraged American honor? No pussyfooting in 1920 platform! That not way make Great America! Morons all reecy. Prof. Hughes' pussyfoot? Doesn't demand Villa because hasn't recognized Mexico, won't recognize Mexico before gets treaty Mexico won't give. Won't make Mexico give treaty! Pussyfoot deadlock! See any different situation than that Mexico refuses give up Villa! Refuses satisfy American honor! Running on facts. Professor another pacifist 1830 man! He's the man who wanted a different Mexican policy in 1916 but wouldn't tell what he wanted different. We're getting it! Policy pussyfoot deadlock stead watchful waiting! Same wait. All difference inside "watch" in watchful! He's glad let Mexico fool him as long as you let him fool you. But by what right anyone fool with American honor? And Experience School so dear. Yet imprac. Profs. can't learn even there! By the Eternal! 'Twas not thus before 1830 and for some time after, to be exact. For 83 years after! Those men were never stalled by pacifism. Always saw something do to save American honor! Cleveland no pussyfooter in Venezuela! Any more than Jefferson in Tripoli! Neither asked for treaty knew wouldn't get. Asked got what wanted! Asked satisfaction American honor and then went to it! Grover Cleveland would look pretty pussyfooting! But morons got so used it 1913-21 it now seems natural step for American Secretary State. The new diplomatic dance! God saves America! God helps only those worth helping, those who help themselves, those who trust Him and keep their powder dry! His business is not drying wet, worthless powder day after election. It's then only battle carrion! Are you? And is America to be? The tale is to be told. America is young. Don't let professors tell it who cannot tell Americanism!

Pershing taken from unfinished Mexican job to be sent to France! Upon return, no finish job! Why? Professor pacifism! Thought Villa forgotten. But not question Villa! Main question American honor. American honor never forgotten! Not by Americans! Though has been by pacifists! Pershing no pacifist. Let him finish his job! Shall it be said U. S. put its hand plough and turned backward? No! So act that be said only Wilson did! Save honor U. S.! Japan now grateful. Mexico ungrateful. Course! Must have gumption! Only way make men. Only men make Pilgrim Fathers! Only men grateful!

WIRTH WELCOMES REPARATION BOARD

TELLS OF GERMANY'S CRISIS

Entente Experts Pay Informal Visit to Finance Ministry and Hold Their First Session.

By CYRIL BROWN.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Oct. 31.—The Reparation Commission, headed by its Chairman, M. Barthou, called today on Chancellor Wirth, who welcomed them with a few well chosen words and some show of warmth, particularly greeting M. Barthou, and, after briefly sketching Germany's situation as he saw it, expressed the wish that their joint deliberations might bear mutually profitable fruit.

M. Barthou replied briefly, echoing Dr. Wirth's sentiments for the success of the conference.

This evening the Reparation Commission and German conferees held their first session and got right down to business, tackling the problems of the stabilization of the mark and the balancing of Germany's budget.

Can the mark be stabilized, and if so at what point? Germany today is a more great gambling house and all Germany would like to guess the Reparation Conference's answer to that question. So would most visiting foreigners. The problem of the paper mark fascinates and dominates public opinion. The mark dropped to 4,500 today.

Responsible opinion fully realizes and admits that "Germany's fate is in the hands of the Reparation Commission" during its two weeks' stay here. In general, all the democratic elements, supporters of the republican form of Government, are not so sorry the Reparation Commission has come to talk in a dictatorial capacity if it only can dictate Germany's salvation.

The reactionaries, on the other hand, resent the Reparation Commission's coming too strongly and are gloomy about a "dictatorship," which is expected and feared by them. There is much talk on the part of these reactionaries about the "loss of the last shred of Germany's independence and sovereignty."

To Concentrate on Conference.

The Cabinet has decided to devote practically all its waking time and energy to the reparation conference, in view of its overwhelming importance, temporarily delegating the ticklish political situation to the background. The result of the conference will undoubtedly be a decisive factor in solving the inner political crisis, and, in the opinion of political specialists, Chancellor Wirth will stand or fall with it.

The Government has given one evidence of good faith as to the spirit in which it has entered upon the conference. It is doing everything possible to keep all decisions and all real news out of the German press until the conference is over. Dr. Wirth's organ, Germania, in a keynote reparation editorial, even goes so far as to appeal to German journalists as a patriotic duty not to attempt to obtain any news, directly or indirectly, beyond what is handed out in official communiqués jointly edited by the Reparation Commission and the German conferees.

"Silence is the journalist's first duty for the present," says Germania. "The German people's desire to know as soon as possible what prospects the negotiations open up is understandable, but one must practice the virtue of patience and wait with questions about results until they can be answered without harming national interests. The duty of dignified self-restraint must not fall victim to the natural inward urge of decent journalism for news. There will be time enough to print the news and discuss the results editorially after it is all over.

"We consider this public lecture about professional duties of journalism not superfluous in view of the fact that the Reparation Commission on arrival was received by a staff of German reporters. The public would lose nothing if the news was withheld from it as to the time Monsieur X. or Sir Y. got extras and where they ate their first Berlin supper."

Tells How Germany Faces Winter.

BERLIN, Oct. 31 (Associated Press.)—An exchange of courtesies between Chancellor Wirth and the members of the Reparation Commission and a subsequent informal visit by the Commissioners to the Ministry of Finance today officially inaugurated what promises to be the most significant series of pourparlers in the whole range of reparation discussions.

Chancellor Wirth received the members of the Reparation Commission at noon, and, welcoming them, expressed special pleasure at seeing M. Barthou as the new Chairman. The Chancellor commended the initiative of the Commissioners "in bringing the debtors and creditors together."

After referring to the changes which had occurred in Germany since the Guarantees Committee made its demands in June, Dr. Wirth declared that the country was confronted with a Winter of starvation and cold, as there was a shortage of food and coal. Stabilization of the mark, in his opinion, was the first problem requiring solution. This would tend to restore equilibrium in the German State finances, only speedy action he said, could save the situation and Germany's productive capacity.

Responding to the welcome, M. Barthou explained the reasons which induced the commission to enter into direct communication with the German Government. He appreciated the Chancellor's words more highly since they came from a personage who was well qualified to speak for the German State.

The commission held its first session tonight.

Agree on Working Basis.

Neither of today's occurrences afforded indication as to what line of action the Entente investigators are likely to follow. The meeting with Minister of Finance Hermes and several Secretaries of State concerned itself with the question of agreeing upon a working basis for the forthcoming deliberations.

Much importance is attached in German quarters to the presence of Roland W. Boyden and Colonel James A. Logan as American observers, especially in view of the emphasis placed by the German Government on the urgency of an international loan in connection with the process of stabilization.

Some Germans who persist in the belief that no foreign loan will be forthcoming from any source unless active American interest in connection with reparations revision is vouchsafed, are extracting fresh hopes out of the unofficial participation by American delegates in the present negotiations.

Specific formulation has not yet been given to German insistence upo the inevitable necessity of an ample foreign loan in connection with any attempt to halt the threatened disintegration of the national currency, although it is generally assumed that such a proposal will specify an arrangement whereby priority rights to interest payments on such a loan would be given by the Reparation Commission through subordination of other reparations payments.

Just what will be the German Government's reply to the demand by the Entente representatives that German currency inflation cease forthwith in event such a loan is floated has not been indicated in official German quarters. Financial experts maintain that in the present situation of capital scarcity, currency shortage and rising prices the German Government could not abruptly scrap its money presses without precipitating violent monetary convulsions.

An investigation of the manner in which such a loan could be applied is being carried on by several neutral experts who have been invited to Berlin by the Government. To what extent their findings will influence the members of the Reparation Commission is a subject of considerable speculation. There also is much curiosity over how far Chancellor Wirth will succeed in bringing the Entente delegates and the neutral observers together.

The Government's program also comprehends co-operation between the leaders of German industry and finance and the Reichstag committees which are looking into the problem of heading off speculation in foreign currencies and other internal economic reforms.

Considerable impatience is manifested by a number of newspapers over the Government's alleged attempts to muzzle the press as far as concerns the present deliberations with the Reparation Commission. Germania, clerical organ, which is close to Chancellor Wirth, in an inspired editorial attempts to explain that "silence in the journalist's first duty in the present situation."

An official communication covering the Reparation Commission's visit to Chancellor Wirth today was seven hours in the editorial making, as the official press section agreed to submit a copy to the French member on the commission before passing it along to the Berlin papers.

Emergency Issues by Cities.

Fifteen billion marks' worth of emergency money will be issued shortly by municipalities in Germany, including 5,000,000,000 by Hamburg and 2,000,000,000 by Berlin. It is noted that the sums will not appear in the figures on Germany's currency inflation reported for the Federal Government.

Hitherto when the municipality of Berlin issued such money no mention was made of security, the denominations being small. Regarding the current issue, however, it is revealed that guarantees will be provided by the large industries. These firms will give the city notes and bills of exchange for small currency which they need, yet are not permitted to print themselves.

The industries will pay sufficient interest to cover the municipalities on the disappearance of much of this currency from circulation through falling into the hands of curio collectors.

HINT AT BIG THEFT RING.

Detroit Police Arrest Three Suspected Members of Band.

DETROIT, Mich., Oct. 31.—The arrest of two men and a woman here, police declared tonight, may lead to the discovery of a nation-wide "ring" for the theft and sale of valuable furs, jewelry and other articles.

A cache of goods valued by the authorities at $10,000 has been seized, it was announced. Most of the articles were shipped here by express from New York and Boston.

The three persons arrested and held for investigation are Peter Dister, Nathan Dister and the latter's wife. Two other men are being sought.

BARCELONA A CITY OF DEATH

255 Killed and 753 Wounded Since Reign of Terror Began.

MADRID, Oct. 31.—Since the reign of terror began in Barcelona in 1918 figures just published show there have been 255 killed and 753 wounded in Barcelona alone, in addition to which the disorders in Madrid, Valencia, Seville, Bilbao and Saragossa, have resulted in the death of 124 and the wounding of 420.

Barcelona has had eleven civil Governors since 1918, one of whom, Maestre, was killed by the Unionists. None of the perpetrators of the attacks upon the employers or Unionists has been convicted, those suspects arrested always being freed either by the investigating Magistrate or jury.

MOTOR HIT CHILDREN, SAYS AUTO PURSUER

BOY KILLED IN BROOKLYN

Lad Hit by Truck Sent Back to Hospital After Being Taken Home.

Pursued by the driver of another car after it was alleged he had knocked down two children at Thirteenth Street and First Avenue, Charles Bonfiglio of 300 East 122d Street was arrested last evening at Forty-sixth Street and Lexington Avenue and taken to the Fifth Street Station. Policeman Wund of the East Fifty-first Street Station was in Lexington Avenue when he saw two automobiles coming north at a rapid rate. He ran into the street and signaled the first car to stop. No attention was paid to his cry, but the chauffeur of the second car, coming abreast of the first, forced it into the side street and compelled it to stop.

In the second car was Charles Obbo of 184 Forsyth Street. He told the policeman that he had seen Bonfiglio's car strike the two children and as the latter had not stopped he had pursued him and forced him to stop. Bonfiglio was taken to the Fifth Street Station charged with assault. The two children were only slightly injured. They were Dorothy Reilly, 5 years old, of 263 First Avenue, and Salvador Cippolo, 3 years old, 225 First Avenue.

Paul Rembst of 342 Himrod Street, Brooklyn, was struck by an automobile in front of his home and killed. According to Samuel Miller of 191 Wyckoff Avenue, Brooklyn, the driver of the car, the boy, who was 9 years old, ran directly in front of his car. Miller was arrested and technically charged with manslaughter.

While returning from school yesterday Michael Portelly was struck by a truck. He was treated by Dr. Hagerman at the Methodist Episcopal Hospital and went to his home, 279 First Street, Brooklyn. Later his condition became so serious that his parents had him taken back to the hospital. There it was said that possibly his skull was fractured.

In front of 99 Spring Street last night an automobile said to have been driven by Alexander Sulo of 101 Armstrong Avenue, Jersey City, knocked down Santa Blanca, 9 years old, of 97 Spring Street, who received a possible fracture of the skull.

Patrolman McClure of the Mercer Street Station called Dr. Dunleavy who took the child to Bellevue Hospital, where it was said her condition was serious. The patrolman arrested Sulo on a charge of felonious assault.

WOODY CHALLENGES MAYOR

Candidate for Supreme Court Bench Answers Attack on Judge.

Robert H. Woody, who was attacked as a former "traction ring" lawyer by Mayor Hylan in an exchange of correspondence regarding a letter of the Mayor urging support for William B. Carswell, one of the Democratic candidates for Justice of the Supreme Court for the Second Judicial District, made public a reply to the Mayor yesterday in which he said the fact that twelve years ago he was in the employ of the Brooklyn Union Elevated Railroad was not an issue of the campaign. Mr. Woody again asked the Mayor to explain what he meant by the following sentence in his letter:

"The public has had a sad experience with Supreme Court Judges in matters involving public rights as against the claims of private railroads, gas, electric and telephone corporations.

"Your scolding and your attempt to read me out of the Democratic Party, and your personal abuse, do not interest the voters," Mr. Woody said, "and will not retard me from challenging you to advise the name or names of the Supreme Court Judges and the decision or decisions you had in mind when you reduced to writing the above guarded statement."

His old brush and shaving soap were dear to his heart but he gave them up for

Barbasol

They had served him well for years—the favored brand of shaving soap and the well-softened badger brush that daily prepared the copper-wire stubble for the razor. It was hard to give them up—almost as difficult as when, a few years before, he gave up the little bay mare and the old sidebar buggy to become an ardent convert to the motor car.

But customs change. The old order passes. The world moves forward. You cover thirty miles an hour as easily today as formerly you covered ten—and three minutes is ample shaving time, instead of fifteen. Time is the essence of this age—and Barbasol comes into the picture as one of the important, modern time-saving factors.

What is Barbasol?

Barbasol is just what its name indicates: Barb—beard; sol—short for solvent; beard solvent, taking the place of brush and lather.

But Barbasol is more than merely the modern, effective beard softener. It is both beard softener and beard stiffener. For, while the emollient content of Barbasol reduces the resistance of the beard's texture, the film of Barbasol spread over the face, filling the tiny areas between the hairs, holds each hair upright—so that the razor cuts straight through.

How to use Barbasol

Barbasol means comfort during as well as after the shave. After you have washed your face in the morning, rinse off all soap but leave it wet. Now smear on Barbasol—not too sparingly, not too generously; just enough to cover the beard with a thin film. Now shave it off.

A million men used Barbasol this morning, saving more than twenty years in a day

A million men this morning and new thousands every day are experiencing the comfort, ease and swiftness of shaving with Barbasol—with an average time saving of 10 minutes per man, a total of twenty years per day, formerly spent in lathering, rubbing in and preparing the beard.

Give yourself a fair trial of Barbasol. Send 10 cents and

Get this week's trial tube

The generous trial tube of Barbasol contains sufficient for a week's shaving of the average beard. Do not start with a prejudice. Do not pre-judge Barbasol by any other preparation. The Barbasol idea is not new. Barbasol results are new. It is not easy to disturb the habits of a lifetime. That is why we provide a trial tube. Follow instructions carefully; most important of all, be sure the face is thoroughly wet before applying Barbasol.

Annual Fall Reduction Sale of

DURING WEEK BEGINNING MONDAY, OCTOBER 23rd

IN KEEPING with the times and our custom we are clearing out the cars we have taken in trade and are prepared to make real sacrifices in order that we may enter the new season with a clean slate. We are offering a number of closed Renewed Marmon 34s; also several open models, at prices below their cost to us.

Prices range from $1000 to $4500

A renewed Marmon 34 is all that the name implies. It is a Marmon 34 made new. It has been brought to original standards. It has gone through rigid inspections and tests as severe and uncompromising as the highest standards of building.

It looks like new. It responds like a new car. No one, either looking at it or riding in it, can tell it from a new car—except an expert.

Yet no new car of like price offers such values. A comparison will prove this statement conclusively. In addition to its like-new performance and appearance, it brings to you a permanent investment, a continued satisfaction and a genuine pride of ownership—all that Marmon means to men who have sought and found their ultimate in motor cars.

Those who formerly would think only in terms of a new car when contemplating a purchase, are now confronted by an alternative.

"I am about to buy a car," a man figures. "I want to pay a certain sum, so as to get a good car. Shall it be some new car or a Renewed Marmon 34?"

So many men have studied this question and decided in favor of the Renewed Marmon 34 that it is almost an obligation now to make a serious comparison—unless one buys blindly.

The Renewed Marmon 34 has come to market as a result of years of planning. It owes its success to those two fundamental principles advocated and put into effect by Marmon—Advanced Engineering and Stabilized Design.

A Marmon of the 34 Series is a Marmon 34 always, whether new or Renewed, whether built in 1918 or today. Your investment is permanent.

Our Method of Renewal restores a Marmon 34 to new-like serviceability—all of which means a finer car for you at a lower price—in fact some of these cars are being offered for as low as $1,000.

A Renewed Marmon 34 can be kept constantly new—at a minimum of expense. Thus the mileage problem is ended by reducing it to 1 new low level.

Before you buy a new car, become acquainted with a Renewed Marmon 34. Then make your choice, after a comparison. Visit our showroom this week. We alone in New York are equipped to Re-new and guarantee the Renewed Marmon 34.

WE ARE PREPARED TO DELIVER UPON PURCHASE THESE CARS ANYWHERE WITHIN 100 MILES OF OUR OFFICE FREE OF CHARGE. TIME PAYMENTS MAY BE ARRANGED

$4.35 per month upkeep

Many of the Renewed cars offered are of recent series. These cars come under our newly installed Standardized Service. The owner of any recent series Marmon knows in advance exactly what any repair job will cost and the length of time it will be in the shop.

A certified audit shows the average cost to owners of these cars in New York and vicinity to be $4.35 per car per month.

WOODHOUSE LOSES IN AERO CLUB SUITS

He Is Restrained From Posing as Officer and Ordered to Return Papers.

TWO CASES BEFORE COURT

Question of His Present Membership of the Club Yet to Be Determined.

Supreme Court Justice McCook decided against Henry Woodhouse yesterday in two actions involving the Aero Club of America. In one, brought by the club against Woodhouse, the Court granted a temporary injunction restraining Woodhouse from representing himself as an officer of the club and from sending mail to members and others as "Chairman of the Administrative Committee." The Court also directed him to cancel an order given to the Post Office Department concerning mail of the club, and directed him to return to the club files of papers he admits he took. Concerning the papers the Court said:

"Part of the documents taken by the defendant have been placed outside the State of New York in the custody of the Department of Justice, while in his own motion for a temporary injunction was pending, apparently without special request and upon the pretext of serving the Government in the matter of the so-called aircraft production frauds. Some of the money collected from members has been spent by defendant and his associates.

"The documents now in the custody of the United States Department of Justice should not pass, after they are returned, to the possession of the defendant, but to the de facto managers of the plaintiff, from whom they were improperly taken. It appears that some of them are the more urgently needed, because plaintiff's officers are now causing to be prepared and sent out to the members notice of the annual meeting of the club on Nov. 13, 1922, for various purposes, including ratification of the acts of the officers and governors since the last annual meeting."

Justice McCook, who denied the application of Woodhouse to dismiss the complaint in this action, also denied his plea for an injunction restraining the present management of the Aero club from continuing in existence to merge the club with a national aviation club at Detroit. Justice McCook said that the acts performed by the present club management were done partly as a matter of discretion and he could not say whether the management was right or wrong, but it would be failed, nevertheless, to show that the management has violated the laws of the State or the club by-laws.

The question as to whether Woodhouse is still a member of the club, and has any standing in court, is to be determined in a proceeding he brought for his reinstatement, the Court said.

Woodhouse will appeal from the rulings.

M'ANENY SAYS ATTACK BY MAYOR IS WANING

Satisfied With Hylan's Decision to Keep Silent on Transit Plan Till After Election.

George McAneny, Chairman of the Transit Commission, declared again yesterday that Mayor Hylan's so-called plan for new subways would mean the tearing apart of the present system and double fares all over the city. Mr. McAneny said:

"The Mayor continues, though feebly, his protestations about the statements of the Transit Commission. The fact is that nothing has been said that he has not himself provoked does not seem to impress him. For the public information it has been necessary to expose the attempted deception in the Mayor's so-called plan for new subways. It has been of even greater importance to show that if he were able to tear apart what is left of the five-cent single-fare system in the hope of hastening his brand of municipal operation he would double present fares all over the town and take many more millions from the pockets of the fare payers.

"The Mayor launched his plans at the opening of the political campaign. In pressing them since he has continued daily to misrepresent the work of the commission and the good faith of its members. Against his tactics the commission has merely presented the truth, with the simple and very satisfactory result that the Mayor yesterday announced that he would have nothing further to say about his own 'plans' until 'soon after the election.' He still repeats, in weaker tones, his misrepresentation of the commission's purposes. With this the commission will continue to deal as it thinks appropriate. But the time has not been of its choosing."

ASK JOHNSON'S RESIGNATION

Later, twenty-five of the 100 students whose opinions are presented in the petition and who failed to report for classes this morning, returned to their academic duties after Captain Charles Fraser of the United States Veterans Bureau threatened to drop from the Government vocational pay rolls the names of those veterans taking rehabilitation courses at the school who did not immediately resume their classes.

This move to forestall the design of the strikers proved effective because four of the committee of five which prepared and presented the petition are vocational students. They are: Harry Fisher, Michael Doyle, Joseph Hill and William Scarr, and with their signatures on the petition, in the form of a letter, is that of Charles Rosengren, a junior. In the absence of the director, the petition was handed to Mrs. Johnson, who declined to accept it. It was then left at the cottage.

Music Publisher Left Life Interest to Widow—Trust for First Wife.

An appraisal of the estate of Rudolph E. Schirmer, who was head of the music publishing house of G. Schirmer, Inc., when he died at Santa Barbara, Cal., on Aug. 20, 1919, was filed yesterday, showing that his estate was valued at $250,484 gross and $248,838 net. He gave a life interest in the estate to his wife, Ann Swinburne Schirmer, whom he married after he had been divorced by his first wife, Mrs. Martha B. Schirmer, who was 72 years old at the time of his death.

The report shows that Mr. Schirmer owned outright 1,250 shares of stock in his corporation, valued at $179,062, and that he put an equal amount of the stock to be held in trust during the lifetime of his first wife as security for alimony payments of $15,000 a year to her. Upon her death the stock reverts to his estate. The agreement setting aside the stock for the benefit of his first wife is attached to the report, and states that the agreement was made on March 13, 1916, in view of the fact that they had been living apart three years and Mrs. Schirmer was about to sue for a divorce in Nevada on the ground of desertion. He also gave her the life use of their residence at 243 East Seventeenth Street and part of the contents.

THE BUSINESS WORLD

COMMERCIAL PAPER.

Yesterday .....4½ to 4¾% for the best names. Monday .....4¾ to 4¾% for the best names. The quotations are for six months' paper.

Gray Goods Quiet but Firm.

The quietness that marked trading in gray goods here Monday continued yesterday, but prices were very firm. Some spot lots of 38½-inch 64-60 printcloths were sold during the day at 9¾ cents, while 38½-inch 60-48s brought 8¾ cents at Fall River. In the narrow goods there was spot business in 32-inch 64-60s at 9 cents, while in the lower count cloths there were sales of 38½-inch 44-40s at 7¼ cents. In the sheetings end of the market 11¾ cents was asked for 36-inch 56-60s, with 5.50s held at 8½ cents and 6.15s at 7½ to 7¾ cents. Contracts of 37-inch, 2.85-yard drills were offered at 12 cents, with few takers.

Rug Prices to Rise Again.

All prices on the rugs and carpets manufactured by the Alexander Smith & Sons Carpet Company will be withdrawn today, this action indicating that the production of the company is practically sold up for the season. A new list will be issued in a few days which will show advances of 10 per cent. over the prices contained in the Spring list distributed on Oct. 9. The increases are attributed to the advances that have taken place in wool and other raw materials in the last few weeks. According to W. H. Parkinson, sales executive for the company, the demand for merchandise continues very brisk, and it is necessary to refuse orders daily because of the sold-up condition of the mills.

Gift Business Growing Important.

From a rather indifferent beginning, the selling of articles designed especially for sale in gift shops and gift departments of the larger stores is gaining in importance practically from day to day. It is the exception, rather than the rule now, for a department store not to have a gift department, and individual gift shops are springing up constantly all over the country. The gift and art section of a leading wholesale distributer was visited during the last week by 370 buyers, while the second department, from the standpoint of buyers who came in, registered 50. Individual sales in the wholesale gift departments are small, but in the aggregate they mount up very rapidly.

Buying of Shoe Buckles.

Judging from the buying of buckles for women's footwear that is now being done by the manufacturers and the retailers, there is little question that the vogue of colonials will hold over into Spring. A general line of these buckles is selling, with the staples getting more attention than the novelties. The kinds most wanted are those that can be retailed separately at $1 to $2 a pair. Gun metal combinations, military bronze and bright and dull jet are among the preferred finishes. White enamel and nickled buckles are also moving well. The popular sizes range from 1⅝ inches to 2⅝ inches by 2⅜. Buying is more diversified than ever before, no two buyers taking very much of the same things. The popular-priced lines now include the so-called upright buckle that has done so well in the more costly goods. Some of the extreme styles run over three inches high.

Furnishings Lagging Behind.

Despite the improvement in sales of men's clothing and overcoats lately, there does not seem to have been any increase in the volume of business in men's furnishings. For some reason, according to managers of several large local stores, the "pick-up" in these lines which was expected with the cold weather has not yet made its appearance. The condition is considered only temporary. The consensus of opinion is that after election day the usual Fall increase in sales of furnishings will be felt. The situation, however, according to one retailer, was one that calls for the pushing of this merchandise strongly with customers who come in for clothing.

Weather Helps Retail Selling.

The bright Autumn weather of the last few days has stimulated materially a consumer demand for various lines of garments and dry goods that had been improving steadily since the end of the last warm "spell." Stores and shops which go in strongly for ready-to-wear lines have enjoyed unusually good business lately. Those that do business on a credit basis have shown a quite remarkable gain in net charge sales when compared with the corresponding period last year. Increases in the number of applicants for charge accounts that range in some cases as high as 25 per cent. are also reported. Collections, however, are a little slow generally.

Spring Shirt Outlook Good.

Reports received at offices of shirt manufacturers here are to the effect that a good business for Spring is being booked. One of the noticeable details of the orders is that they call for early delivery, in a number of instances during February or even before this. While white continues in demand, there is said to be somewhat of a tendency away from this, with neat designs and solid colors in pastel shades receiving a larger degree of attention. Madras shirts in light weights are said to be moving very well. There is also said to be a marked improvement in the demand for silk shirts, which have been selling poorly.

Novelty Patterns in Skirts.

Skirt manufacturers intend to concentrate on novelty patterns in making up their Spring lines. The number of these, in all probability, will be larger than was the case last Spring, when the feature was the number of new weaves used. The mills have offered a large variety of novelty fabrics which the manufacturers have liberally sampled. From current information, there will not be much change in the styles themselves, although the skirt will be longer. This will apply particularly to the staple numbers. While some of the sports skirts will be longer, it is the impression now that the lengthening of this type will be less marked. There is a large degree of confidence among manufacturers that the coming season will be an excellent one, surpassing that of the Spring of the year.

Blouses for the Holiday Trade.

Blouses for the holiday trade are now being offered by men on the road. These are practically of a novelty nature, with the hip blouse and the jacquette styles still predominating. While the season in blouses thus far is described as "fairly good," inasmuch as the novelties have taken especially well, manufacturers look for the holiday business to help them make the season a really good one. Considerable thought is now being given the Spring lines, which, however, will not be made up generally until after the turn of the year. Taking their cue from the way in which these articles sold during the present season, manufacturers say they are directing their attention to originating novelties which will feature the coming Spring.

Not Favorable for "Jobs."

It is generally admitted that the garment buying this season has been very conservative, and manufacturers say it is evident that retailers have laid careful plans to cover the entire season. The latter have sought not only to purchase merchandise in small lots, but also to secure good quantities of "jobs" before the season was well advanced. This has been unsuccessful, say manufacturers, who point out they have cut their garments only where a definite outlet was assured. Aside from this, it is added, are the higher primary market prices which strengthen the position of the manufacturers very materially. This is said to be especially true of the better grades of garments. Not only will buyers not get lower prices, which some expected, according to manufacturers, but there may be advances and a possible scarcity of desirable merchandise later on.

BUSINESS NOTES.

As the Textile Alliance, Inc., has not ordered any reparation dyes since June and is now liquidating its remaining stocks of these colors, Charles H. Stone finished his work with it yesterday. During the last year Mr. Stone had charge of the distribution of the reparation color stuffs brought to this country by the alliance.

Louis J. Lesser has retired from the firm of D. S. Hess & Co., which formerly did business at 3 East Fortieth Street. In the future the business will be continued at 40 East Fiftieth Street by Ralph D. Keller and Harry F. Schroeter.

J. C. Bamford, formerly of John Dunlop Sons, Inc., is to open a silk department with the Bamford Brothers Silk Manufacturing Company at 356 Fourth Avenue. The department, which will specialize in crepe de chines, will be factored by Fleitmann & Co.

John R. Fegan, formerly with Strawbridge & Clothier, is now associated with the W. H. Brown & Son Company, manufacturers of fine wash goods, White and Church Streets.

An impostor operating under the name of Morris Meyer is in this market purchasing merchandise in the name of Ed Schuster & Co. of Milwaukee. He is buying small wares particularly. He has no connection with the firm mentioned.

The housefurnishings and toy departments of the Bush Terminal Sales Building has lately been reopened on an enlarged scale. It is in charge of A. J. Mora, general merchandise manager.

Wills for Probate.

FOX, ABRAHAM (July 3). Estate is worth $5,000. There are a few bequests for Jewish schools and institutions of from $100 to $500 each, and several small legacies for sister, Ethel, and three brothers, Aaron Fox, Ernest Feurstein and Max. Rachel, decedent's widow, receives the residue and is made executrix.

GILBERT, DAVID M. (Oct. 21). To his wife, Blanche B. Gilbert, is given all decedent's stock in Union Pacific, Railroad, Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Railroad and American Car and Foundry Company, or $40,000 and jewelry. Bequests of $500 each are left for Roswell W. Gilbert, grandson, and Miss Burrill Lach, a niece. The residuary estate is divided between his sons, David M. Jr. and Samuel H. Gilbert, his wife and his daughter, Emily H. G. Strasser. His wife and son David are made executors.

GOODWIN, ELLEN (July 22). Rosa Anna McGrath is heir to whole estate, valued at $7,500 and the Rev. William B. Martin is appointed executor.

LEVY, MAX M. (Oct. 25). Estate valued at "$10,000" was left to wife who predeceased him. His children are Burnham S. Levy and Sophie Bachrach. Executors are his son and son-in-law, Harry Bachrach.

SANDERS, AUGUSTA (Oct. 2). Albert Budd, son receives whole estate, worth less than $5,000, and is appointed executor. Petition shows that Mrs. Sanders's husband died left home ten years ago and extensive search proved futile. Decedent lived at 511 West 163d Street.

SMITH, SALLIE (Oct. 7). Spencer Wells, brother, is given $100, and Georgianna Stoddard, niece, receives the rest. Estate is worth about $16,000. Niece is executrix.

TAYLOR, SAMUEL Jr. (Oct. 25). Whole estate is bequeathed to widow, Grace Neville Taylor of 222 West Eighty-third Street, and she is appointed executrix.

Public School Notes.

The Morning High School Teachers' Association will meet this afternoon in the Washington Irving High School. Morris E. Seigel, Director of Evening Schools, will address the meeting.

A meeting of the Teachers' Welfare League will be held this afternoon at the Pacific Street, Brooklyn, Library.

Not only the people who can hear, but also those who are hard of hearing, are invited to be present every Thursday evening at the Public Centre, 118 East 67th Street, Manhattan, Ninety-third Street and Amsterdam Avenue. The auditorium has seats especially equipped with acousticon, so that the hard of hearing may order the lecture as well as the balance of the audience. Any auditor requiring the aid of the acoustiCon will be escorted to the especially equipped seats, providing they request this upon entering. The lecture this Thursday evening should be particularly interesting. Miss Ida V. Simonton will speak on "Big Game Hunting in Africa." The lecture will be illustrated with stereoptican views.

The Eastern District High School, Marcy Avenue and Keap Street, Brooklyn, held exercises last night to commemorate the unveiling of a mural painting, dedicated to those who served in the World War.

All of the sixty-two community centres of the Board of Education are now in operation.

The Civil Service.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—A disturbance of moderate intensity was central over Arkansas Tuesday night and moving northward, and another was over the Canadian Northwest and moving eastward. Pressure remained low Tuesday from Newfoundland southwestward to Bermuda and high from Hudson Bay southward to the Carolinas.

This pressure distribution has been attended by showers within the last twenty-four hours in the Mississippi and the middle and lower Missouri valleys, the Southern Plains States, the Gulf States and the Pacific States from Central California northward.

The temperature continued considerably above normal Tuesday in the Mississippi and lower Ohio valleys and the east Gulf States, while cooler weather overspread the west Gulf States and the temperature remained below normal in the lower lake region and the Middle Atlantic and North Atlantic States.

The Arkansas disturbance will move northward and be attended by showers in the middle and lower Ohio Valley, Tennessee and the east Gulf States Wednesday and Thursday, and in the upper Ohio Valley, Western Virginia and South Atlantic States Thursday.

The Factor Of Safety

In times like these the factor of safety is by far the most important consideration of every true investor. The promise of excessive profit does not appeal to him. His chief aim is to have his capital conserved and his interest punctually paid.

Our circular Opportunities for the Conservative Investor contains numerous suggestions for the investor whose first consideration is security.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Uncertain Movement on Stock Exchange—Liberty Bonds Higher—Steadier Exchange Rates.

The stock market moved with indecision yesterday; after a series of uncertain fluctuations, it ended with net advances and net declines pretty evenly balanced. Wall Street continued to debate the reasons for the recent relapse in values, coming as a rule to the practical conclusion that prices had been put up too fast and too far and by use of too highly professional methods earlier in October and that reaction had all along been inevitable. To this inference the "averages," which show an advance from 82¼ when the shopmen's strike got under way in July to 89 when the coal strike was called off and to 93 a fortnight ago, remain as fairly convincing evidence. At 86⅝, they are still well above the level of midsummer, when hopes of Autumn prosperity were already high, prices far above the year's earlier values, and the acute labor troubles ahead of us.

Yesterday's movement of prices was confused; it reflected conflicting activities, mostly of a professional sort. The point of larger interest was again the Government bond market, in which the Liberty bonds rose another respectable fraction and the new 4¼ per cents got within one-tenth point of their issue price, having recovered a full point from the low price of four days before.

As a whole, the general bond market was considerably steadier, but with continuing instability in foreign Government securities. Aside entirely from actual economic or political conditions (which are at least no worse in Europe than they were six months ago) it must be admitted that the market for those securities would not be helped by such Administration speeches as those of Secretary Hughes and Secretary Hoover. With both, is is the manner rather than the matter which hurts confidence; which is to be regretted, since nothing is more certain than that continuing investment of American capital in sound European securities and on a substantial scale is a certainty of the economic reconstruction period. European exchange rates improved; notably Italian lire, which doubtless reflected the peaceable character of the change of Government at Rome. The recent extreme decline was probably emphasized by the notion that a Fascisti Ministry would mean something like a Ku Klux Administration at Washington.

Interest in yesterday's United States Steel Corporation report for the September quarter will be mostly reminiscent. In August the company's net earnings were, except for the preceding June, larger by nearly two millions than in any month since January, 1921; in September, a shrinkage of $3,500,000 from the preceding month brought receipts to the smallest figure since February and into the low ground of last year's hard times. Every one is aware that this was in no respect a reflection of the demand for steel or of general business conditions. With fuel supplies down to the danger line and with no assurance then in sight as to when the coal strike would be settled, the steel mills were compelled to reduce their output from the 70 or 80 per cent. of capacity which prevailed in May and June, to barely 50 per cent. in August. The greatly reduced shipment of finished steel in September was the consequence.

To what extent the decrease in September net earnings was emphasized by two other influences—the corporation's 20 per cent. increase in wages, which became effective Sept. 1, and the enforced delay in making deliveries because of lack of cars—it is not so easy to determine. Both of these influences still exist, a month after the period covered by yesterday's report of earnings. The wage increase is offset by the increase of steel rail prices from $40 to $43, which was effective Oct. 1 and which greatly increased orders. The car shortage also will gradually disappear as coal supplies approach more nearly to normal, and meantime actual orders on the company's books, which a month ago were 915,000 tons above those of Aug. 1, must have been substantially enlarged by the business activities of October.

MONEY.

TUESDAY, OCT. 31, 1922.

Stock Exchange call money was firmer, advancing to 5½ per cent. from opening and renewal at 5, and full 1 per cent. above Monday's final. Time money market showed no change over prevailing 5 per cent. quotation for both classes, all dates, the small number of loans being arranged coming out at that figure, the bid for near date accommodation ruling at 4¾ per cent. Commercial paper and eligible acceptances discounted unchanged in relatively quiet markets.

London Market.

Money at London ¼ higher at 2 per cent.; short bills unchanged at 2¼ per cent.; three months' bills unchanged at 2⅝ @2¾ per cent.

Gold bullion 1d higher at 93s 6d. Taking the British Mint standard price of 85s per fine ounce as par, the market quotation for gold would represent a price of 108⅝ at London. On that same basis the highest London price for gold for the year to date was 116⅝ on Jan. 5. The highest price since open trading in gold was resumed at London in September, 1919, was 119⅝ on Feb. 6, 1920; the lowest, 107⅝ on June 7, 1922.

Short Term Bonds

Although many authorities believe that money will tend to grow cheaper, over a long term of years, with sound bonds advancing in price, such a broad tendency may at times be temporarily interrupted. Recent action of the Bond market suggests that we may be in such a period. Many shrewd investors are therefore purchasing, for the time being, Short Term Bonds.

Our list of such Bonds on request for Circular T-20.

Wage Increase, Fuel Shortage and Railroad Congestion Affected Output and Costs.

The United States Steel Corporation, after the close of the stock market yesterday, issued its statement of earnings for the quarter ended Sept. 30, 1922. The report shows net earnings of $27,468,830, against $27,280,943 in the previous quarter and $18,918,058 in the corresponding quarter last year. As was the case in every quarter since the first three months of last year, the company failed to earn the regular dividend on the common stock.

After allowing for all deductions and payment of the preferred dividend, the corporation showed a balance available for the $508,302,000 common stock of $5,014,179, or the equivalent of 98 cents a share, whereas it takes $6,353,781 to pay the quarterly dividend of $1.25 a share. After payment of the regular common dividend a deficit of $1,339,602 was reported. In the previous quarter the deficit after all dividends was $1,462,345, and in the third quarter of last year the deficit was $6,965,504.

For the nine months ended Sept. 30, the company earned $1.87 a share on the common stock, against $2.03 a share in the same period last year. The deficit after dividends for the nine months was $6,351,415, against $8,720,267 last year.

The outstanding feature of the statement was the comparison of earnings by months. In July the company showed net earnings of $9,339,696. In August the total was $10,615,063, which, with the exception of June, was the largest of any month since January, 1921. In September net earnings dropped sharply to $7,019,590, or the smallest total of any month since last February.

Wage Increase Added to Costs.

There were numerous factors in the third quarter of the year to account for the sharp contraction in earnings during September as compared with those of August. Probably the most important was the increase of 20 per cent. in the wages of common labor, with equitable adjustments in other branches of the industry, announced during August and effective Sept. 1. This voluntary action by the corporation's officers added considerably to the cost of production, whereas on the other hand there were no compensating advances in steel prices. An advance of $3 a ton in the price of standard steel rails was announced by the company during the quarter, but this advance did not take effect until Oct. 1, consequently it does not figure in the operations covered in the statement issued yesterday.

Another factor of importance was the pronounced congestion on the railroads during September as a result of the shopmen's strike of the Summer. This in view of the priorities ruling of the Interstate Commerce Commission, is understood to have seriously impeded the movement of finished products from the mills, thus accounting for a good part of the smaller earnings, as it is said that the Steel Corporation does not credit its output on its books until the products are actually shipped from the mills.

Another factor in the September earnings is the small rate of production reported in August because of the inability of the mills to get an ample supply of fuel at the time because of the coal miners' strike. This seriously affected August production, the greater part of which would only leave the mills in September. The favorable August showing is credited to an accumulation of products manufactured in July and shipped the following month.

Comparison of Earnings.

The detailed statement of earnings for the third quarter of the year compared with the second quarter of 1922 and the third quarter of 1921 follows:

FOREIGN EXCHANGE

Most of the principal exchanges, with the possible exception of the German mark, exhibited a very good tone yesterday, and prices in the main were considerably better than at the close of last week, when international complications appeared on the surface, and found reflection in the day-to-day exchange prices. Probably the most significant recovery yesterday was in francs, which have been under particular pressure for several days. As compared with the low of 6,94½ on Monday, they advanced to 7.08, and closed but a trifle below that figure. Lire and Austrian crowns exhibited quiet strength. London was reported a heavy buyer of Italian exchange and to be furnishing exceptionally good support for that market.

A fly in the ointment has been discovered in the sterling market by dealers, and peculiarly it is in one of our own markets, that of cotton. With staple prices booming along above the 24-cent market, spinners in England have assumed a timid attitude as to new commitments, and are contenting themselves with hand-to-mouth purchases. The reflection in foreign exchange is light pressure of commercial bills in the sterling market, and the lack of resistance to advances which take place.

In the subjoined table the quotation on sterling represents dollars and decimals of a dollar; all others represent cents and decimals of a cent. Quotations preceded by the decimal mark indicate a price measured in fractions of a cent.

Southern Minnesota Joint Stock Land Bank

5% Farm Loan Bonds

Dated November 1, 1922 — Due November 1, 1952

Principal and interest payable at the Southern Minnesota Joint Stock Land Bank, Redwood Falls, Minnesota; and at the offices of Dillon, Read & Co., New York City, and the Northern Trust Company, Chicago, Illinois. Interest payable May 1 and November 1. Coupon and fully registered bonds interchangeable. Denomination $1,000.

Redeemable as a whole, or in part by lot, on November 1, 1932, or any interest date thereafter, at 100 and interest.

ISSUED UNDER THE FEDERAL FARM LOAN ACT

A decision of the Supreme Court of the United States, rendered February 28, 1921, fully sustains the constitutionality of this Act and the tax exemption features of these Joint Stock Land Bank Bonds.

Mr. William H. Gold, President of the Bank, summarizes as follows his letter regarding these Bonds:

These Southern Minnesota Joint Stock Land Bank bonds are specifically secured by deposit with the Registrar appointed by the Federal Farm Loan Board of an equal amount of first mortgages on farm lands at not exceeding 50% of the values as appraised by Government Appraisers, and/or by deposit of United States Government Bonds or Certificates of Indebtedness. This issue of bonds and the first mortgages deposited as security have been approved by the Federal Farm Loan Board, a Bureau of the Treasury Department of the United States, and the bonds are prepared and engraved by the Treasury Department at Washington.

The Southern Minnesota Joint Stock Land Bank was organized under Federal Charter, which provides for its administration under the supervision of the Federal Government. While the Bank's charter authorizes it to operate in the States of Minnesota and South Dakota, two of the great agricultural States of the Union, its policy has been to restrict its investments in farm mortgages to fifty-three counties in Southern Minnesota and twenty-eight counties in Eastern South Dakota, which are a part of the famous corn belt.

The Bank has $1,050,000 stock outstanding, paid for in cash at par, or at substantial premiums, on which dividends at the rate of 8% per annum are being paid.

The Act of Congress known as the Farm Loan Act, under which the above bonds are issued, provides that Joint Stock Land Bank bonds "shall be deemed and held to be instrumentalities of the Government of the United States" and that they shall be a lawful investment for all fiduciary and trust funds under the jurisdiction of the Federal Government, and may be accepted as security for all public deposits.

We offer these bonds for delivery about November 20, 1922 when, as, and if issued and received by us and subject to the approval of counsel.

Southern Minnesota Joint Stock Land Bank Securities Placed on Sale.

The Rolls-Royce Company of America, through Aldred & Co., offers today $2,000,000 fifteen-year 7 per cent. sinking fund gold bonds, at 98 and accrued interest, to yield 7.20 per cent. The proceeds of the issue are to be used for refunding higher interest-bearing obligations and for additional working capital. The bonds are dated Sept. 1, 1922, and are due Sept. 1, 1937. Provision is made for a sinking fund, beginning Sept. 1, 1924, for the retirement of the entire issue by maturity. They are redeemable on any interest date after thirty days notice, in whole or in part, at the option of the company at 110 during the first five years, at 107 during the next two years, at 105 during the next three years and 103 thereafter. The new issue is part of an authorized issue of $3,000,000, and the bonds are followed by $3,500,000 of preferred stock and 35,000 shares of no par value common stock.

The company was organized in November, 1919, to manufacture the Rolls-Royce car in the United States. The first car was built in the United States in January, 1921, and the schedule of thirty-two cars per month was carried out until the depression. The company is now running capacity. Officials say that it is now possible to increase the output to more than 450 cars per year. The company now has three branch offices and thirteen agencies.

A new issue of $5,000,000 Southern Minnesota Joint Stock Land Bank 5 per cent. farm loan bonds is being offered today by Dillon, Read & Co. and the Northern Trust Company, at 103, to net about 4¾ per cent. to the optional date and 5 per cent. thereafter. The bonds are dated Nov. 1, 1922 and are due Nov. 1, 1952. The bank is located at Redwood Falls, Minn., and its policy has been to restrict its investments in farm mortgages to fifty-three counties in Southern Minnesota and twenty-eight counties in Eastern South Dakota.

Spencer Trask & Co. are offering $1,000,000 Renfrew Manufacturing Company fifteen-year 7 per cent. sinking fund gold notes, due Nov. 1, 1937, at par and accrued interest. These notes will be the direct obligation of the company and will constitute its only funded indebtedness. They are redeemable at 107¾ to Nov. 1, 1930, at 106 on May 1 and Nov. 1, 1931, and thereafter at 1 per cent. less for each succeeding year. The corporation manufactures high-grade ginghams under the trade name "Devonshire," colored goods and weaving yarns and has been in business for fifty-five years. The mills are operating at full capacity.

Hemphill, Noyes & Co. have purchased an issue of $750,000 McNab & Harlin Manufacturing Company first mortgage twenty year 7 per cent. sinking fund gold bonds which are being offered by them. The corporation manufactures iron, semi-steel, steel and brass pipes and fittings and is one of the oldest companies in its line in the United States.

Blyth, Witter & Co. have purchased an issue of $160,000 City of Fullerton, Cal., municipal improvement 5 per cent. bonds, maturing $8,000 each year from Dec. 1, 1923 to 1942 inclusive, and are offering them at prices to yield 4.35 per cent. to maturity.

Hamilton A. Gill & Co. are offering an issue of $75,000 City of Duluth, Minn., 4½ per cent. gold park bonds, due serially every other year from 1924 to 1952, at prices to yield 4.25 per cent. and accrued interest. Steiner Bros. are offering an issue of $55,000 City of Montgomery, Ala., 4½ per cent. refunding bonds, due in 1937, at prices to yield 4¾ per cent.

All of the outstanding 8 per cent. ten-year gold notes of the Fleischmann Company originally offered by Harris, Forbes & Co. have been called for payment on Dec. 1. Payment is to be made at the office of the trustee, the First National Bank of Cincinnati, Cincinnati, Ohio, or at the office of the Garfield National Bank in New York. The notes will be paid in the principal amount and accrued interest to Dec. 1, together with a premium of 4½ per cent.

STUDEBAKER DECLARES ONLY USUAL DIVIDENDS

Directors Eliminate Extra Payment Made on Common Stock for Previous Quarter.

Directors of the Studebaker Corporation, at their meeting held in South Bend, Ind., yesterday, declared the regular quarterly dividend of 2½ per cent. on the common capital stock and the regular quarterly dividend of 1¾ per cent. on the preferred stock. The extra dividend on the common was eliminated. Three months ago the directors increased the quarterly dividend on the common stock from 1¾ per cent. to 2½ per cent., thus placing the stock on a regular 10 per cent. annual basis as compared with a previous rate of 7 per cent., and in addition an extra dividend of 1¼ per cent. was declared, making the total dividends for the quarter on the common stock 4 per cent.

Numerous reports had been circulated in the financial district during the last few days upon the possible action of the directors at yesterday's meeting. In many quarters the belief prevailed that the board would continue the payment of the extra dividend of 1¼ per cent. declared in the previous quarter, whereas on the other hand there was another group in the Street that was confident that the extra dividend would be eliminated, on the ground that it would be a conservative policy for the corporation to hold on to its cash reserves in view of the keener competition in the motor industry. These expectations, however, were believed to be based purely upon conjecture. But that the action of the directors in passing up the extra payment was a disappointment to a great part of the rank and file in Wall Street was evidenced by the sharp decline in the stock following receipt of the news.

New Yorkers Bid for Chilean Loan.

SANTIAGO, Oct. 31.—The Chilean Government is taking up consideration of bids for the proposed Chilean loan of 105,000,000 paper pesos, the Finance Minister announced this morning. When the time for the submission of bids expired last night at midnight the Minister of Finance announced that offers had been received from several New York banks, a Chilean institution and Rothschilds of London.

SOFT COAL LOADINGS GAIN.

190,276 Cars Last Week Sets New Record Since the Strike.

The total loadings of bituminous coal last week amounted to 190,276 cars, a new high record for any single week since the beginning of the miners' strike on April 1, according to the Car Service Division of the American Railway Association. The average daily loading was 31,712 cars, an increase of 667 cars over the daily average loading for the first three weeks of October.

Loadings of anthracite coal last week totaled 52,927 cars, a decrease of 4,189 cars, as compared with the week before. During the first five days of the week, the report stated, loadings averaged 6,508 cars daily. On the basis of car loading the production of bituminous coal last week amounted to approximately 10,465,000 tons, or 200,000 tons more than the week before. Anthracite production last week was placed at approximately 1,046,000 tons, as compared with 1,850,000 tons the week before.

MEXICO SUSPENDS TRADE IN NEW YORK

EXECUTIVE ATTACKS OLIVER

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 31.—An order was issued today by President Obregon which practically severs commercial relations between Mexico and New York, for the order prohibits all commerce with business concerns in the State of New York. The order of President Obregon, supposedly in protest against the attachment of Mexican funds and property through the courts of New York, has been approved by the Mexican Federation of Commerce.

The Mexican Federation of Commerce, it is understood, will advise all its members to refrain from purchasing goods in New York until the Mexican Government advises them that such action is unnecessary.

It is also disclosed that the telegraphic information of the American Chamber of Commerce, which advised members that they would be permitted to ship goods into Mexico, paying the Consular fees at the border was misleading and very likely to cause heavy losses and fines. Information to that effect was furnished to shippers here by the Treasury Department. Plans to enable shippers to have Consular fees collected at the border were contemplated by the Foreign Relations and Treasury Departments, but they informed THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent today that the project was impracticable.

Severs Trade Relations.

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 31 (Associated Press).—Commercial relations between the Mexican Government and all persons or groups of persons residing in New York State were under suspension today until further notice as the result of instructions sent to the Department of the Interior late last night by President Obregon.

The President also had the various Mexican State Governments instructed to refrain from commercial intercourse with New York firms.

The immediate cause of his action was the writ of attachment obtained against the Mexican Consulate in New York City in a civil action brought by the Oliver American Trading Company. President Obregon's order, he said, was also prompted by other matters. Among these he mentioned in his instructions to the Interior Department that the New York courts had not permitted the Mexican Government to obtain redress there on contracts such as those made for the purchase of boats by General Salvador Alvarado when he was Secretary of the Treasury. At a later date, President Obregon's instructions pointed out, the courts of New York permitted the Mexican Government to be sued and its Consulate closed, which action he held to be contrary to international law.

Coupled with his instructions last night was the announcement that he had ordered the Foreign Office to apply Article 33, pertaining to pernicious foreigners, to Howard T. Oliver, President of the Oliver American Trading Company, should he attempt to return to Mexico City.

Oliver, said President Obregon's announcement, "has abused the traditional Mexican hospitality, and, unsatisfied with material advantages he realized during his operations here, he sought to provoke a conflict between Mexico and the United States."

Formal orders for reopening the New York Consulate had not been dispatched from Mexico City late last night. It was explained that the delay was due merely to the absence of instructions from the Embassy at Washington.

CONSULAR FEES RAISED.

Mexico Orders an Increase of 2 Per Cent. in Charge Here.

The consular offices of the Mexican Government here which were closed last Friday in protest against the writ of attachment served in connection with the $1,200,000 suit of the Oliver American Trading Company received instructions yesterday to increase the consular fees from 3 to 5 per cent. ad valorem, according to Rafael E. Muzquiz, Inspector General of Mexican Consulates in the United States.

Heads of some of the largest firms here doing business in Mexico said that the increase in fees was the severest blow suffered by American Mexican commerce since the closing of the consulate. They considered the old fees high.

The increased rate is to go into effect, according to Mr. Muzquiz, as soon as the local consular offices of Mexico are re-opened. He did not know whether the increase was in effect in other Mexican consular offices, explaining that he had received the instructions for the New York offices only.

No legal obstacle remains to re-opening of the consular offices. Late yesterday afternoon William E. Sims of Zabriskie, Sage, Gray & Todd, 40 Wall Street, counsel for the Oliver American Trading Company, sent a clerk to the offices of Hardin & Hess, 50 Pine Street, counsel for the Mexican Government, with a copy of the order, signed by Justice Tompkins in the Supreme Court at Nyack, on Monday evening, vacating the attachment against the consulate. The consular agents of Mexico have expressed the belief that the offices would be reopened as soon as they were notified of the lifting of the attachment.

When Howard T. Oliver, head of the Oliver American Trading Company, was informed that he had been made an outcast in Mexico by order of President Obregon, he expressed regret that such action had been taken, reiterated his statement that he entertained only the friendliest feeling toward the Mexican Government, and then added: "It is unfortunate that President Obregon has taken that attitude in a case where a merely civil claim is involved, and where there is not the slightest political significance. It looks like Obregon is trying to make political capital out of a civil suit."

EXPECT FUEL OIL ADVANCE.

Curtailed Production in Mexico Has Caused Shortage Here.

Another advance of 10 cents a barrel in the price of bunker fuel oil is expected to be announced today, according to reports in local oil trade circles. The market for this product has firmed up considerably within recent months, as a result of the curtailed production in the Mexican fields. Increased production is expected in Mexico, as a result of the development programs of the leading American companies, but the oil expected from the new fields will not reach the markets for months to come.

So acute has become the shortage of fuel oil in this market that several of the larger Standard companies and independent companies with headquarters in Philadelphia have been sending tankers to California for the purpose of bringing fuel oil from that State, via the Panama Canal, to relieve the shortage in this market. The current quotation for fuel oil at this port is now $1.51 a barrel, while 85 cents is being paid at the well for Panuco fuel in Mexico.

American Type Founders Co. Gains.

The American Type Founders Company for the year ended Aug. 31, 1922, reports net profits, available for dividends, of $855,218, against $829,616 in the previous fiscal year. After allowing for preferred dividends, the company showed $16.89 a share earned on the $4,000,000 common stock outstanding, against $16.26 a share earned in the previous year.

NATIONAL SURETY CO. ADDS 20,000 SHARES

New Financing Will Give Company Capital of $7,000,000 and Surplus of $7,500,000.

The stockholders of the National Surety Company yesterday voted to increase the capital stock of the company by issuing 20,000 shares of new stock at a subscription price for stockholders of $150 per share. This will give the company a capital amounting to $7,000,000 and a surplus of more than $7,500,000.

During Chairman William B. Joyce's administration, which began in 1904, the capital has been increased from $500,000 to $7,000,000, making it one of the largest companies of its kind in the world. The business grew proportionately, the reports show, totaling $800,000 in 1903 compared with a gross business last year amounting to more than $23,000,000.

The program of the company calls for a wide extension of activities in Canada. Clarence F. Smith has been appointed Managing Director of the Canadian office and will have headquarters at 120 St. James Street, Montreal, and the following Advisory Board was announced:

Sir Arthur W. Currie, Principal of McGill University; Raoul Dandurand, President of the Montreal City and District Savings Bank; Sir Mortimer Barnet Davis, President of the Imperial Tobacco Company of Canada; Dr. W. L. McDougald, Chairman of the Montreal Harbor Commission; John W. Ross, Director of the Molsons Bank; Lorne C. Webster, President of Holt, Renfrew & Co.; J. M. Wilson, Director of the Hochelaga Bank.

The increase in capital will facilitate the development of new lines, it was pointed out by officers of the company, and will permit still greater expansion in present lines. Announcement was also made of the appointment of Robert M. Nugent and B. F. Cator as Vice Presidents of the company.

TRADING IN COTTON SHOWS EASIER TONE

While the cotton market resisted selling pressure, considerable irregularity in fluctuations developed yesterday. Certain active professional operators made a demonstration which advanced quotations a quarter of a cent, but attracted no following. Whether of more than passing significance or not, trading became less general. Operations seemed to be confined to speculative sources to a larger extent than heretofore this month, with a slowing down in mill buying. Advices regarding spot conditions South proved less uniform, which led to profit taking in several directions. Advances failed to hold, although final prices were virtually unchanged at an advance of 1 to a decline of 1 point.

While Liverpool showed very little reaction, with buying by foreign spinners continuing along larger lines than recently, the local market developed several cross-currents during the morning. This was directly due to less aggressive demand from trade sources on the one hand and to attempts by speculative operators to continue the advance on the other. Houses which have been doing a heavy business for mills reported a less active demand during the past two days.

There has been such an extensive absorption of contracts by the trade throughout the month that diminished buying power exerted a decided influence on sentiment in certain quarters. Yet confidence in higher prices is so general among those interested in the market that the reaction of 40 points from Monday's high level started aggressive buying tactics on the part of the so-called uptown group of operators. In some respects, speculative operations were as heavy as at any time last week, but trading seemed to be highly concentrated and not at all general. During the morning, a steadier stock market diminished Wall Street selling pressure and scale buying orders in December sustained prices.

As the day wore on, the course of prices became extremely irregular. Quotations were pushed up by larger traders bidding for blocks of cotton and the moment this ceased prices fan back sharply. In addition to this irregularity in contracts, reports from spot quarters proved less uniform. Certain buyers advised that the basis was firm with little cotton for sale. Others reported an easier basis with more cotton offered and a less urgent spot demand.

Sales at spot markets have shown a falling off recently which has attracted attention. From the standpoint of immediate course of prices, it is extremely important to know whether decreased sales are the result of inability to obtain cotton or whether the abnormal rush of trade buying has at last begun to show indications of being satisfied. That a breathing spell should occur over 2¢ cents, after a month's steady advance was not surprising. Whether this means anything more than a temporray halt remains to be determined.

Movement of the new crop continues extremely heavy. Semi-weekly interior receipts aggregated 197,000 bales, or within 2,000 bales of the record made two weeks ago. This, with a liberal port movement, indicates another large weight showing this week.

	Open.	High.	Low.	Close.	Previous Day.

B. & O. TO BUILD ELEVATORS.

Lets Contract to Replace Buildings Destroyed by Fire.

H. A. Lane, chief engineer of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, announced yesterday that contracts have been let to the John S. Metcalf Company of Chicago for new grain elevator facilities at Locust Point, Baltimore, Md., in replacement of the two old elevators destroyed by fire in July. The tentative plans call for storage bins with a capacity of 3,000,000 bushels, which will be so arranged that they can be readily increased to 8,000,000 bushels.

The elevator will be constructed on the water's edge, adjacent to the piers with galleries and belt conveyers reaching eight berths. Provision will be made so that the gallery system can be extended to other piers in the future.

THIRD AVENUE EARNINGS.

Net Income of Railway in September Was $33,320.

The Third Avenue Railway system, in its report for September, 1922, shows net income amounting to $33,320, as compared with net income of $34,356 for the same month last year. Total operating revenues were $1,199,804, an increase of $3,553 over the total revenues a year ago, but total operating expenses increased $14,850, to a total of $889,408, for September this year.

For the three months ended Sept. 30, 1922, the company showed net income of $96,002, as compared with a deficit of $4,609 for the corresponding period of 1921. Gross income for the quarter was $3,633,998, an increase of $26,423 over the same quarter last year.

GRAINS AT CHICAGO HAVE A NEW FALL

Lack of Outside Business and Drop at Liverpool Help to Send Prices Down Again.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Oct. 31.—Lack of outside business is counting heavily against grain prices, and, with a break of 1¼@2d in Liverpool wheat, which was due to unloading by some leading longs in that market, values were on the down grade almost from the start, with the finish within a fraction of the bottom and net losses of 1@1½c on wheat, ¾@1c on corn, ½@½c on oats and ¾@1c on rice.

Local sentiment generally has become as bearish as it was bullish a short while ago, and the lack of aggressive support was a factor in all grains, although December oats acted tight at times and went to ½c over May at the last.

The lack of a sustained export demand for wheat is a factor in the market of no mean proportions. December, at the recent high, showed nearly 7 cents over the recent low and the trade regards the market as in a position where further recessions will be necessary before there will be any material advance.

At the same time, commission house sentiment is inclined to be bullish, favoring purchases on the breaks. A light outside trade usually results in sharp fluctuations, and, as long as commission house sentiment remains bullish, it is not expected that there will be any material decline. A leading local bull interest is regarded by the trade as having sold wheat under cover the last few days.

A sale of 100,000 bushels of No. 2 hard Winter was made from Omaha to the Gulf, for ten-day shipment, at equal to 9¾ cents over December, track here, while No. 2 hard on spot here was quoted at 4@5 cents over the future. It is not expected that Chicago will receive any material increase in the movement as long as outside markets continue above a parity. Some red Winter was sold to go to New Orleans from an Illinois point yesterday.

Export demand was reported as slow at the seaboard, although there was some business in Manitobas and hard Winters. No. 2 hard, for first half November loading at the Gulf, was reported as having sold at 17½ cents over December.

Toledo discontinued trading in wheat for future delivery after today until the Supreme Court shall have decided the constitutionality of the Capper-Tincher, or Grain Futures act. Trading in clover and other seeds is not affected.

The bulk of the trade in corn was of a local character, with sentiment generally bearish, and the market needed persistent support, with the close around the bottom. There was moderate buying of December and selling of May at ½@¾ cent difference. But outside trade is light and the market easily influenced.

A leading industry bought new No. 3 and No. 4 grades of corn today for the first time on the crop, securing the No. 3 at 2¼@2¾ cents under old and the No. 4 at 5½@6 cents under.

Movement of new grain is steadily increasing, which is regarded as confirming the belief that interior stocks of old corn are less than expected. Export sales at the seaboard aggregated 300,000 bushels.

Primary arrivals of wheat today were 1,437,000 bushels; week ago, 1,388,000; last year, 1,268,000. Shipments were 936,000 bushels; week ago, 670,000; last year, 583,000.

Corn receipts were 1,213,000 bushels; week ago, 1,469,000; last year, 559,000, and shipments, 680,000 bushels; week ago, 648,000; last year, 385,000.

The Cerro de Pasco Copper Company has drawn a certain amount of its outstanding ten-year convertible sinking fund 6 per cent. gold bonds, due 1931, for redemption. The bonds will be redeemed on Jan. 1, 1923, at 105. In making the announcement the company issued the following statement:

"Upon surrender of the bonds drawn for redemption at the office of J. P. Morgan & Co., sinking fund trustees, on or after Jan. 2, 1923, payment will be made of the redemption price of 105 per cent. of the principal sum. All drawn coupon bonds surrendered must have attached the coupons maturing July 1, 1923, and subsequently. Any of such drawn bonds may be converted into stock of the corporation on or before Jan. 2, 1923, the date of payment of the redemption price, upon surrender at the office of the Columbia Trust Company, trustee."

American Metal Co. Nets $750,019.

The American Metal Company for the quarter ended Sept. 30, 1922, reports income of $890,173, after taxes, depreciation and other reserves. Net income, after allowing for usual expenses, totaled $750,019.

TO END CONSULAR DISPUTE.

Britain Will Withdraw Charges Against Newcastle Office.

LONDON, Oct. 31 (Associated Press).—An amicable settlement of the question of the American Consulate at Newcastle, England, which was closed by order of the American Government last August, is in "a fair way of being reached," it was intimated in British official quarters today. Although no official statement is yet forthcoming, the impression was given that the consulate would soon be reopened.

The idea advanced here was that the British charges against Fred C. Slater, who was Consul at Newcastle, regarding alleged discrimination against British shipping interests, would be withdrawn, and that the United States would make concessions by appointing other consular officials to replace Consul Slater and Vice Consul Russell M. Brooks.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31 (Associated Press).—The United States Government has decided definitely not to reopen the American Consulate at Newcastle, England, until the British Government has unconditionally withdrawn the charges it made against Consular Slater and Vice Consul Brooks, and publicly exonerated the two officials.

The British Foreign Office has been made aware of this determination. It was learned today, reached after exhaustive investigations of the situation at Newcastle, which disclosed no foundation whatever, in the opinion of American officials, to support charges which led the British authorities last August to cancel the exequatur of Slater and Brooks.

Both the embassy and Consulate General in London investigated the charges against the officials at Newcastle and reported that there was no substantiation of wrongdoing.

In addition, the American Government sent Nelson Johnson, an executive officer of the State Department, to England with instructions to make an independent inquiry of the most thorough character. His report is in complete harmony with those of Ambassador Harvey and Consul General Skinner and acquit the two consular officers of any wrongdoing.

PIERCE-ARROW CUTS DEFICIT

Reports Operating Income of $11,209 for Quarter Ending Sept. 30.

The Pierce Arrow Motor Car Company for the three months ended Sept. 30, 1922, reports operating income of $11,209. Interest, taxes and other charges were $351,178, leaving a deficit of $339,969 against a deficit of $2,109,999 in the same period last year.

For the nine months ended Sept. 30, the company reports net operating income of $650,138. Reserves for interest, taxes and other charges were $1,027,099, leaving a deficit of $376,961. In the same period last year a deficit of $4,000,051 was reported.

According to rumors in the financial district an announcement was expected from the Board of Directors on the reported reorganization of the company. A director of the company said there was no discussion of a pending reorganization.

A sealed verdict:

"Guilty of embezzlement"

IN THE REAR of the courtroom sat the plaintiff—a widow.

The defendant had been her trustee. He had misappropriated her money. But little remained of the substantial estate her husband had left her. She was all but penniless.

"Guilty of embezzlement" read the jury's verdict; but though the law will punish, it cannot return stolen or squandered funds.

It is just as necessary to protect your wife against incompetence or negligence on the part of a trustee as against dishonesty. Though he may be a man of unquestioned integrity, the individual trustee often lacks the time, experience and professional knowledge required to satisfactorily manage and conserve the property of others.

The trust officers of The Equitable will gladly explain its services as executor or co-executor under a will, as administrator of an estate, and as trustee of life insurance and other property for the benefit of dependents.

Older than the United States

THE Bank of New York was organized by Alexander Hamilton in 1784, and was well started in business when the Constitution of the United States was adopted. The first loan to the New U. S. Government was made in 1789 by The Bank of New York.

The New York Life Insurance and Trust Company, established in 1830, was the first financial institution to use the words "trust company" in its title. The Company is now caring for trust funds which came from the estate of its first president.

The experience of these two old institutions now combined into one strong company is at the disposal of its customers, both in the banking and trust departments.

WHARTON ASSAILS "LIVING WAGE" OPINION

Means $51 a Month for Rail Laborers, Labor Board Dissenter Asserts.

CHICAGO, Oct. 31.—A. O. Wharton, one of the three labor members of the Railroad Labor Board whose dissenting opinion on the wage decision for maintenance of way workers brought forth "the living wage" rejoinder by the public and railroad groups, in a statement published today declared the majority opinion was fallacious and contained untruths.

"I was not permitted to see the majority statement before writing my dissenting opinion," he said. "Now that I have read it I find that it is fallacious and contains untruths. In some places it presents alleged arguments which on their face are impossible.

"The majority statement speaks of a $20,000,000 increase it has given the maintenance of way men. On the same method of figuring, it cut their pay $50,000,000 in the July 1 decision, so the railroads are still $30,000,000 to the good. It speaks of the cost of living, but it does not explain how a laborer can support himself and family on $51 a month. It does not explain that the imitation pay increase it granted means only 10 cents a day for each man. It says nothing of the poor men who live in shacks, box cars and boxes set up on four posts.

"I openly urged the majority to have an unbiased committee sent into the sections where these laborers live to find out the truth about their living. The majority tries to make the public believe that I would have laborers given pay on which they could buy an automobile this year and an airplane next year. I ask only that a man be given pay that brings decency with it; that Americans be enabled to live as Americans and enabled to live in respectability in their own environment and according to their own lights, not in the environment of the wealthy.

"The majority says the average wage for these men on through roads is 28 cents an hour and 27 cents on other lines. Then it says that the 28-cent men get more pay than the 37-cent men when considered in relation to living conditions in the respective territories. The 28-cent men are mostly negroes and Mexicans, so the majority admits that it gives these Mexicans more pay than it gives native-born Americans. How can the majority justify that?

"The majority does not distinguish between pauperism and opulence. It pretends that what labor terms a living wage means opulence. Labor doesn't ask opulence. It asks only American decency."

TOBACCO INQUIRY STARTS.

P. S. Hill Is a Witness Before Federal Trade Commission.

Perceval S. Hill, President of the American Tobacco Company, testified yesterday before George McCorkle, an examiner of the Federal Trade Commission, in an inquiry begun at the instigation of tobacco dealers who complained that the company was discriminating against them. It is also alleged that a rate fixing agreement had been reached by which certain dealers were favored in the matter of prices.

Mr. Hill denied that the company had refused to fill orders from any of the complainants. Asked about the system of discounts which it was said the company had established, Mr. Hill replied that the system had been abandoned by the company some months ago and that a flat rate now prevailed. Asked for details Mr. Hill explained that his company sold its products to jobbers at list prices less 10 per cent. and the trade discount of 2 per cent. for cash. Retailers, he said, usually sold the goods at an advance of 20 per cent. above the company's price to jobbers.

Asked what he considered would be a satisfactory price for the retailers to charge, the witness replied that it would have to be sufficient to enable the persons who sold the company's goods to earn a living. Such a price, he said, would be satisfactory to the company. A question as to whether the American company had co-operated in such an agreement as the one complained of was objected to on the ground that it was improper, but the witness was permitted to reply in the negative with the understanding that the propriety of the question would later be determined by the commission.

George W. Hill, Vice President of the company, was sworn as a witness and then the hearing adjourned for the day. E. L. Smith and Edwin B. Hawes represented the commission in the inquiry and Junius Parker appears for the American company.

SEPTEMBER SHOWS TAX LOSS

Federal Receipts $276,000,000 Less Than in Same Month of 1921.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—Classified Government tax receipts for September showed a decrease of more than $270,000,000 as compared with the same month last year, the Internal Revenue Bureau announced today. For the month of September the total receipts from taxes were $354,284,246 as against $630,758,713 for the same month a year ago. For the three months ended with September, tax receipts amounting to $600,746,874 reflected a decrease of more than $566,000,000 as compared with the same period of 1921.

Receipts from income and profits taxes, declining by $241,000,000, showed the greatest decrease, the total for September, which included the third instalment, amounting to $276,000,000 as against $517,000,000 for September last year. Tobacco taxes, however, showed an increase for the month of nearly $5,000,000, the total being nearly $38,000,000 against $25,000,000 in September a year ago.

Receipts from estate taxes for September, amounting to $5,000,000, showed a decrease of $7,000,000 compared with the same month of 1921; tax collections on distilled spirits, amounting to $2,500,000, fell off by near $3,000,000, while miscellaneous collections, such as transportation and amusements, amounting to over $41,000,000, decreased by $28,000,000. Taxes collected from corporations on the value of capital stock, however, amounting to $13,000,000 in September, reflected an increase of more than $3,000,000 over a year ago.

DEFENDS WATER POWER ACT

National Committee Formed—P. P. Wells Attacks Ford Project.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—The formation of a national committee for "the defense of the Federal Water Power act" was announced here tonight by Philip P. Wells, former chief law officer of the United States Forestry Service, who in a formal statement called upon all conservationists for a reaffirmation of support of the law.

The statement opposes the acceptance by Congress of the proposal by Henry Ford to take over the Muscle Shoals Federal power project, declaring that such action would be a violation of the basic principles of the act, which was fifteen years in Congress before enactment.

Mr. Wells's statement criticises Congress for giving "a vast amount of time" to discussion of the Ford proposal while declining to take up the "very simple legislation" which, he says, would correct the weakness in the law—making it possible for the Water Power Commission to use some of its appropriation for the employment of experts. The Ford contract would give him "a vast subsidy," according to the statement, in addition to establishing precedents for leasing privileges.

The committee includes James R. Garfield of Cleveland, Gifford Pinchot of Pennsylvania, Walter L. Fisher and John Barton Payne, both former Secretaries of the Interior; Lindley M. Garrison and Newton D. Baker, former Secretaries of War; David F. Houston and H. C. Meredith, former Secretaries of Agriculture, and a dozen Governors and other widely known men active in behalf of conservation.

EMBARGO ON NEW HAVEN.

Road Curtails Freights Due to Connecting Lines' Embargoes.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 31.—The New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad tonight announced a partial embargo on freight, giving as its reason the accumulation of shipments due to embargoes on connecting systems. The road announced that it hoped, by means of this action, to regulate traffic and insure compliance with the service orders of the Interstate Commerce Commission. The announcement, in part, reads:

"The necessary regulation of traffic by this partial embargo will operate gradually toward a reduction of cars en route, safeguarding against congestion and reducing delay to equipment, which will increase the availability of cars for all general use."

The New Haven Road also announced the construction of additional facilities at Cedar Hill and elsewhere to increase its freight-carrying capacity and reported that its shop forces were substantially fully recruited.

Southern Pacific Cuts Freight Rate.

Reductions in freight rates ranging up to 30 per cent. on certain commodities from Eastern points to Oregon will become effective Nov. 30 on the Southern Pacific, according to announcement yesterday by J. H. Mulcahy, General Freight Agent for the Southern Pacific Company at Portland. The reduced rates will apply from all Eastern points except the Southeast on pottery, iron barrels, machinery, acetone and alcohol, and from Chicago and points west on clothing, bath tubs and periodicals.

REPORT VILLA WOUNDED IN MUTINY ON RANCH

Jesus Lopez, Aged Father of Rebel Slain by Villa, Leads Uprising for Revenge.

EL PASO, Texas, Oct. 31.—Francisco Villa, Canutillo rancher and former rebel chief, was shot and slightly wounded while trying to put down an uprising headed by Jesus Lopez, aged father of the late Martin Lopez, for years Villa's right-hand man, according to reports in anti-Obregon circles in El Paso today. The uprising occurred on Villa's ranch. Villa is reported to have been driven from the ranch.

Lopez started the uprising when he became convinced that his son had not been killed in battle, as reported, but was shot down by Villa after a defeat at Juarez in June, 1919. At that time Martin Lopez was commanding the force that entered the city, but was driven out by Colonel J. G. Escobar, now a General.

Villa, in his anger, shot Lopez, who had accompanied him on many campaigns, the elder Lopez believes.

The successful rebels in the present uprising at the Canutillo ranch did not remain after driving out Villa, fearing a large force would be sent after them. Villa, according to the reports, still fears uprisings, however, and has removed his family to Parral.

Whether the former rebel was at Canutillo or Parral could not be ascertained here.

Rebels, headed by Porfirio Rubio, and Federal soldiers of the Thirtieth Battalion, commanded by Colonel Juan Izaguirre, fought a four-day battle near Pachuca, Hidalgo, Mexico, according to reports current in Juarez today. Rebel losses were heavy. Federal troops captured a large number of rifles.

Soldiers of the Forty-fourth Battalion are to be discharged as a result of a partial uprising of that unit at Pichucalco, Chiapas. Three of the rebels were killed by loyal soldiers. Six rebels captured immediately were executed.

Colonel Reginio Hernandez, second in command in the army of General Juan Carrasco, Sinaloa revolutionist, was killed in a fight with Federal troops, it was reported.

FORD BUYING A COAL MINE.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Oct. 31.—That negotiations for the purchase of the Wayne Coal Company by Henry Ford have practically been completed and that the final details of the sale will be worked out following an inspection of the property by Mr. Ford was learned here from an official of the coal concern today.

The Wayne Coal Company is the largest bituminous coal stripping operator in the world. Samuel M. Dunbar, Vice President of the company, when asked for a definite statement on the Ford negotiations today, said: "I do not wish to deny that negotiations are under way, neither can I give out any statement regarding the presence of Mr. Ford in this city."

Such a deal would be decidedly advantageous to the Ford Motor Company and the Detroit, Ironton & Toledo Railroad, which Mr. Ford controls. Forty cents a ton differential freight rate would be saved to Mr. Ford on shipments to his plants, it was said.

DETROIT, Oct. 31.—While a newspaper man questioned Henry Ford today about the reported purchase of a group of Pennsylvania coal mines valued at $10,000,000, the manufacturer continued his inspection of an old farmhouse undergoing repairs. The farm property seemed to have the greater hold upon Mr. Ford's interest.

Mr. Ford said he was not sure whether his agents had completed the huge Pennsylvania deal. He had men in numerous coal fields acting fuel for his industries, but had not heard that the reported deal for 30,000 acres of coal lands had been closed. One small mine at Grand Forks, Pa., he said, was purchased yesterday.

Officials at Mr. Ford's offices at Dearborn were unable to confirm the report from Pittsburgh.

Studebaker Corporation Dividend.

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Oct. 31.—Directors of the Studebaker Corporation, meeting here today, declared the regular quarterly dividend of 1¾ per cent. on preferred stock and a dividend of 2½ per cent. on common stock outstanding, payable on Dec. 1 to stockholders of record on Nov. 10.

LENIN ON WORLD UPHEAVAL.

He Will Address Congress of Third International Saturday.

PETROGRAD, Oct. 31 (Associated Press).—The suggestion for unifying the program of the communistic parties throughout the world will come before the Third International for the first time when that organization opens its convention here Nov. 4. After a two days' session in Petrograd the Red congress will shift its discussions to Moscow, where the convention work will probably occupy a week.

There are seventeen questions on the agenda for the congress, which is the fourth held by the Third International. Chief among the topics to be discussed will be the perspective of a world revolution. Premier Nikolai Lenin will make a report on this subject. He was chosen for that task by the Communist Party. His colleague, Leon Trotsky, Minister of War and Marine, and Clara Zetkin, a German Socialist, will also address the congress on the topic of a world revolution.

The tactics of workmen in their campaigns against capitalism will be treated in a report by one of the American delegates and also by Karl Radek, head of the Soviet's publicity department. Another American delegate and M. Frossard, Secretary of the French Socialist Party, will report on the campaign against the Treaty of Versailles.

The congress, its members assert, will have a greater representation of delegates from foreign countries than any previous gathering of the International. It is estimated that 600 delegates and foreign guests will go from here to Moscow on special trains for a week of work and festivities, including street demonstrations and parades, both day and night.

PAY LOCOMOBILE CREDITORS

First Instalment Will Include Cash and New Bonds.

A distribution will be made today to the creditors of the Locomobile Company of America by the committee which represented the creditors, according to reports circulated in Wall Street yesterday.

The first payment, it is understood, will amount to about 14½ per cent. in cash and 18½ per cent. in new bonds of the Locomobile Company of America, Inc. According to report another distribution will be made around the first of the new year.

Served Pennsylvania Road 50 Years.

E. A. Stockton, Controller of the Pennsylvania Railroad, yesterday completed fifty years of active service with the railroad. All of this time was spent in the accounting department, in which he first started to work on Nov. 1, 1872, as a clerk in the office of the auditor of passenger receipts. He was 13 years old when his active railroad career began.

ALLEGE $15,000,000 PROFIT IN ALCOHOL

80,000 Gallons Sold to Bootleggers at $2,000,000, Gain Became $15,000,000.

CLEVELAND, Oct. 31.—More than $15,000,000 changed hands in a little more than a year in the alleged transfer of 80,000 gallons of alcohol by Louis and Abraham Auerbach and others, it was charged today, when the Auerbach brothers, Morris Mess, Abraham Limbert, Moritz Cohen and Samuel Selker entered pleas of not guilty to indictments charging them with a conspiracy to evade the prohibition laws and attorneys for the Auerbach brothers made a vain attempt to have their $50,000 bonds reduced.

The Government alleges the men withdrew alcohol on Federal permits, on the ground they were using it in the manufacture of toilet preparations, and then sold it to bootleggers. Federal investigators pointed out that the 80,000 gallons of grain alcohol alleged to figure in the transaction were purchased at about $6 a gallon. It was then sold the Government charges, to bootleggers for more than $26 a gallon. This would net a profit close to $2,000,000.

In the hands of the bootleggers, the investigators said, the alcohol was diluted so that where one gallon originally existed three gallons appeared. Colored and flavored with rye extracts, the liquor was then sold at $16 a quart, or $64 a gallon.

Thus the original 80,000 gallons at $6 would increase to $240,00 gallons at $64 a gallon, the total gross revenue being $15,360,000.

"Of course, some of the alcohol was used for making toilet preparations," said Joseph C. Breitenstein, Assistant United States Attorney.

ECONOMY PLEASES HARDING

He Expects It Will Wipe Out $670,000,000 National Deficit.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—The Administration expects to wipe out by economy the national deficit of $670,000,000 by the end of the fiscal year, it was indicated today at the White House.

President Harding was said to be extremely gratified with the progress being made by department heads and Budget Director Lord in cutting down expenditures and effecting savings to enable the outlay for the present year to approximate the Government's income.

It was indicated that no recommendations for new taxes would be made as emergency revenue measures and that present revenue schedules would be left undisturbed, at least until the December session of Congress.

NORTHERN PACIFIC EARNINGS

September Net Shows Decrease of $640,203 Compared With Year Ago.

The Northern Pacific Railroad Company reported net operating income for September amounting to $2,109,059, a decrease of $346,308 compared with September, 1921. September gross was $9,840,166, a decrease of $15,094 from a year ago. For the first nine months of the year net operating income stood at $8,886,743, an increase of $4,858,745 as compared with the corresponding period of 1921.

The Rock Island Lines reported gross for September amounting to $11,215,035, a decrease of $1,021,675 under September a year ago. The surplus after charges for September, after allowing for reserves of $350,000 for equipment maintenance deferred on account of the shopmen's strike, was $497,333, a decrease of $1,263,982 as compared with September, 1921. For the first nine months of the year, surplus, after charges, amounted to $1,076,095, a decrease of $2,697,072 as against the corresponding period of 1921.

Charles Hayden, Chairman of the board, in commenting on the September report, said:

"The Directors of the Rock Island decided in August to set up a reserve for deferred maintenance of equipment, due to the fact that, during the shopmen's strike, expenditures that would otherwise have been made in repairing equipment could not take place and will only take place in the latter months of the year. In August $600,000 was set up, $250,000 in September, and similar reserves will be set up in succeeding months, so that there will be no inflation of net earnings, and as fast as the repairs of equipment that should have been made are made this account will be charged with them.

"Outside of the item of deferred maintenance for September, net result is about the same as it would have been if there had been no shopmen's strike."

COMMODITY PRICES

Outnumber Gains—Grains Weak, While Butter Goes to New High.

Price recessions outnumbered gains in yesterday's cash markets, wheat and corn in the grains dropping substantially, while eggs and lard also moved lower. Butter moved up fractionally to 57c, a new high point for the year, with the continuing strong at 37 cents. Provisions, other provisions, metals and hides were steady.

Following are the cash prices for the principal commodities in the wholesale market at the close of business Tuesday, a week before and a year ago:

RAILWAY RECEIVER NAMED.

Union Trust of New York Acts Against the Central Indiana.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Oct. 31.—William P. Herod of Indianapolis today was appointed receiver for the Central Indiana Railroad by Federal Judge A. B. Anderson on the petition of the Union Trust Company of New York. His bond was fixed at $20,000.

The New York Company asked that the receiver be appointed because the company, it said, was unable to pay off the mortgages. The suit also asked that the road be sold to the highest bidder.

According to William L. Taylor, attorney for the plaintiffs, the road has never earned expenses and taxes. The road was sold in 1903 because of the foreclosure of a mortgage at that time.

Mr. Taylor added that the receivership suit was not caused by the recent shopmen's strike, but because of the coal and local business conditions, on which the road depended for its profits, which have been insufficient for years.

The petitioner avers that as trustee it holds mortgaged bonds to the amount of $3,500,000. In addition to this amount, the railway company is indebted to the bank for $1,140,000 in defaulted interest.

Ships $500,000 Gold to Canada.

FINANCIAL NOTES.

James C. Auchincloss, member of the New York Stock Exchange, formerly a partner of Bond & Goodwin, has changed his address to Edward B. Smith & Co., 5 Nassau Street.

Stone, Prosser & Doty have issued a circular on the Victor Talking Machine Company.

Vanderhoef & Robinson announce the opening of a Canadian department, to deal in Canadian rail, industrial, public utility, provincial and municipal bonds, under the management of Clements A. Hallett, formerly manager of the Canadian and foreign department of Frederic H. Hatch & Co.

SAYS KASTEL RAN NEW BROKERS' FIRM

JULES RABINER WITH HIM

Culver & Co. Were to Transact Stock Brokerage Business in Pennsylvania and Ohio.

How "Dandy Phil" Kastel, the man alleged to be behind Dillon & Co., bankrupt stock brokers, together with Jules Rabiner, also a stock broker, whose firm is now bankrupt, formed the company of Culver & Co. to transact a stock brokerage business in Pennsylvania and Ohio was told yesterday in a hearing in the Dillon bankruptcy case before Referee in Bankruptcy Peter B. Olney by H. W. Culver.

Mr. Culver said that he was approached by Kastel, who suggested that they form a brokerage company to do business in Philadelphia and Pittsburgh, and said that Kastel agreed to finance the venture. Kastel said that he and his friend John McGilray, who was referred to as a bookmaker, agreed to put $100,000 in one of the proposed firms of Culver & Co. The new firm began business early in September, 1921, a few days before Dillon & Co. failed.

Besides the names of the Rabiner and Culver firms, the hearing also brought to the name of Josephthal & Co., a Stock Exchange house with which, it was said, Dillon & Co. maintained a "house account" in the name of F. J. Ryan, margin clerk of the Dillon firm. Ryan himself testified to the existence of this account.

Ryan also stated that three former employes of the Dillon company, including himself, were now employed by the brokerage firm of Hauser & Co. Ryan said he was now cashier of Hauser & Co.; Richard C. Guest, former sales manager for Dillon & Co., and Felix Weinberg, former office boy, were now employed by Hauser & Co., Ryan declared. Also with Hauser & Co., he said, was Louis Korey, formerly head of the defunct firm of Korey & Co., which had a trading account with Dillon & Co.

Mr. Culver said that on July 5, 1921, a few days after Kastel had given him $10,000 of McGilray's money with which to start operations, Kastel drew out of his account $6,000, saying that he was short of funds and would repay the money later. Culver said Kastel paid back the money in $1,000 instalments. He identified a Dillon & Co. check as one of the payments Kastel made.

A few days after the Dillon failure, Sept. 17, 1921, Kastel came to him and said that he would be unable to go ahead with their plans, Culver said, but that he (Kastel) would get some one else to go in with him. Culver said that a few days later Kastel introduced him to Rabiner. Rabiner said that he was interested in the proposition as a business for his cousin, Bertrand Barnett, Culver said. Still later Kastel and Rabiner introduced him to Barnett, and it was arranged that Barnett should enter the firm.

The agreements for the change in the firm, Culver said, were drawn in the office of Morris Meyer, an attorney, in the Metropolitan Tower. Meyer, Culver said, was a brother-in-law of Barnett and was related to Rabiner. Meyer represented all the parties and drew the papers in the new partnership, Culver declared.

These papers, besides the agreement, Culver said, included a statement to the effect that he (Culver) did not know Kastel nor Rabiner and that neither had anything to do with the business.

Culver said that Kastel explained this statement was necessary because of the Dillon bankruptcy and the fact that he might become involved in it.

After Barnett came into the firm, Culver said, Kastel became an outside man for the firm of Culver & Co. and visited the branch offices which had been established in Steubenville, Ohio; Brownsville, Pa., and Morgantown, W. Va. These offices were in addition to the offices in Pittsburgh and Philadelphia.

Kastel and Rabiner, Culver said, actually ran the office through Barnett, and the orders were placed over a direct wire to the Rabiner office in this city. Culver said that he did not take an active part in the firm and that he resigned in May of this year.

Ryan testified to the opening of the account in his name. He said he never knew anything of the account and merely signed checks when he was asked to do so.

The hearing will continue today at 2:30 P. M.

DEMANDS EUROPE USE CAPITAL TO PAY LOANS

American loans for Europe came from the capital assets and not from the annual incomes of the nation, and repayment should be made from the same sources, in the opinion of Calvert Townley, senior Vice President of the Federated American Engineering Societies, and Vice President of the Westinghouse Electric Manufacturing Company.

Secretary Hoover, says Mr. Townley, "hit the nail on the head" in his Toledo speech, "when he characterized Europe's keen desire to escape payment as being 'born of despair' over their present financial condition without any courageous analysis of the future."

Mr. Townley, whose views are set forth in a statement which will appear in the next issue of The Bulletin, the official organ of the Engineering Federation, calls attention to a phase of the situation upon which Secretary Hoover did not touch, saying:

"In all discussions I have heard or read the question of repayment is treated as though funds for that purpose must come from an annual income. Many facts have been recited to prove annual incomes insufficient and that, even if they were sufficient, such payments would be economically bad, not to say disastrous to the United States.

"The fact is that the United States did not get money to loan Europe from annual incomes. It came from capital assets, and I have never yet seen any attempt to show why repayment should not normally and naturally be made from the same sources. The national wealth of even the poorest of the foreign nations is so greatly in excess of the American debts as to make such a method of repayment not only possible but extremely easy.

"If when called upon to furnish the sinews of war to Europe in time of their great stress the United States had said, 'Our income is not sufficient, therefore we cannot raise the needed money by taxation, and that is our only resource,' Germany would have won the war.

"America, however, took no such attitude. Our citizens, from the richest to the poorest, contributed from their savings without hesitation or stint, and there is now no reason whatever why the foreign nations in turn should not repay from their own savings."

Renewal Option Obtained.

Richard L. Lee, negotiated for the Roseberry Amusement Company the renewal option which this company held on the Fourteenth Street Theatre from the Marshall O. Roberts estate and the United States Trust Company. The Roseberry Amusement Company has occupied this theatre for the last five years and has secured a renewal for a term of years at an annual rental of $13,500.

Third Avenue Resale.

Marcus Realty Company bought and resold to Harold A. Rause 2,160 Third Avenue, a 3-story business building, on a plot 20 by 57 feet.

URGES CHURCH PUBLICITY.

Dr. Reisner Says People Must Be Compelled to Attend.

CHICAGO, Oct. 31.—Asserting that Christ would not talk to empty seats if there were any legitimate way to fill them, Dr. Christian F. Reisner of New York, in an address before the National Conference on Church Publicity, today told the assembled ministers to follow the suggestions of the Nazarene and "go out and compel them to come in."

"The church is too timid," he said. "It is too common for people to be satisfied with a church building and a formal Sunday service. Few things are more deadening than a smug satisfaction that glibly spins excuses for empty churches amid non-church attending multitudes.

"At times religion is cheapened by the vague and inane efforts made to reach the community. They lack life, purpose and determination. Jesus performed miracles to draw the crowd to hear His message. The pharisees quickly called Him a sensationalist, but the people heard Him and a world-revolutionizing movement was started.

"The first essential to selling the church is to awaken the pastor and membership until they get on their toes and put their 'goods' into circulation. Then they will have fresh and palatable goods on hand and find a way to get consuming customers. The people are hungry for God, but they must sometimes have quail mixed with their manna.

"The next step is advertising. That does not mean merely to put out attractive printing, but it means an alertness that will compel people to see the church.

"The church will not run itself. Jesus said, 'Go out and compel them to come in.'"

DEMAND TAX ON NITROGEN.

German Grain Dealers Want Price of Domestic Product Raised.

BERLIN, Oct. 31.—Germany's domestic nitrogen, says a statement issued by the association of German dealers' in grain, meal seed, feed and fertilizer, should be taxed sufficiently to make the prices equal to those of imported Chilean saltpetre. The organization disputes claims which have been raised that the free import of 20,000 tons of Chilean saltpetre recently authorized would result in further depreciation of the mark.

Home industry, it says, is unable to meet domestic agriculture's need of nitrogen, especially in the form of saltpetre. Thus the harvest is bound to decrease unless importation of the necessary fertilizer is permitted.

The statement concludes by saying the needs of the people demand that the Government take this action, though it would arouse the opposition of the German nitrogen syndicate, "which naturally sees its monopolistic position threatened through the importation of foreign nitrogen."

Commercial Leases.

The H. M. Weill Company leased for Oscar Owen to John Horlatis the store at 466 Seventh Avenue, being the southwest corner of Thirty-fifth Street and Seventh Avenue, for a term of five years at an annual rental of $2,500, for the business of soda, soft drinks, candy and fruits. The same brokers leased for Oscar Owen to Albert Falcon the corner store at 466 Seventh Avenue, located at Thirty-fifth Street, for a term of five years at an annual rental of $4,300, for a cigar store and the sale of smokers' articles. They also leased for Oscar Owen to Peter Kikus the store at 460 Seventh Avenue, located at Thirty-fifth Street, next to the corner, for a term of five years at an annual rental of $2,200 for the first two years and $2,400 for the last three years, for the business of a lunchroom.

The Oliver Lakin Company leased for the Silver Holding Company the store at 170 West Forty-eighth Street to Isador Stern, for the sale of musical instruments; for the Amron Realty Company the store at 172 West Forty-eighth Street to Titilis & Cohn for a restaurant, and to M. Cohn the store at 174 West Forty-eighth Street, for the sale of handbags; for the A. H. W. Holding Company the large store at 600 West 135th Street to Stahls & Petropoulos, for restaurant purposes; for the Early estate the store at 77 West Forty-seventh Street to Tegue Ishii, for the purpose of a Japanese tearoom; for the Twenty-ninth Street and Third Avenue Corporation the store at 12 Stuyvesant Street to James Theodore, for the sale of barbers' supplies, and for Walter J. Salmon a store in the Circle Building to Gordon & Kessler, for the purpose of a luncheonette.

The Heggstrom-Callon Company has leased for the Raygold Realty Company the store at 258 West Forty-seventh Street to the A. S. Groceries.

Brooklyn Home Buyers.

The premises, 80 St. James Place, between Greene and Gates Avenues, a three-story brownstone dwelling on plot 20 by 100, was sold by George T. Moon to a client of Bulkley & Horton Company, for occupancy.

Realty Associates sold to G. B. Johnson, a new two-story and attic brick and stucco semi-detached Colonial dwelling, with driveway and private garage at 142 Sullivan Street, between Bedford and Rogers Avenue, this being one of the few remaining houses in a row of thirty recently completed on this street.

William Liss, Inc., sold for J. Lunas to an investing client a one-story taxpayer situated on the northwest corner of East Nineteenth Street and Kings Highway on a plot 65 feet on King Highway and 22 feet on East Nineteenth Street and about 35 feet in the rear of East Nineteenth Street. The property was held at $20,000 by the owner.

J. Edgar Leaycraft & Co., have sold for the Lawyers Title and Trust Company, et al a plot of six lots on the northeast corner of Kent Avenue and North Ninth Street.

Buying in the Suburbs.

Edward J. Fenelon, a Yonkers operator, bought a plot of eight lots on the easterly side of Riverdale Avenue, Yonkers, in all 200 feet frontage. The seller, Valentine Terrace, Inc., with the exception of four lots, has now disposed of all its holdings. George Howe was the broker.

The Lewis H. May Company resold for the Bethlehem Engineering Company to J. C. Jorgensen, a builder, a plot of lots fronting on Oak Street, Far Rockaway, L. I., for improvement with two modern brick dwellings.

The Scarsdale Estates, Robert E. Farley, President, has sold two plots in its Greenacres development to Mrs. George A. Jones.

Prince & Ripley, have sold for David Wilson, of New York City, two parcels of vacant land on the Esplanade, Pelham Manor, to a buyer, who will immediately erect two houses on the property.

Long Island City Factory Deal.

The estate of Mathilda Stevenson sold to E. Virgil Neal, President of the E. Virgil Neal Chemical Works, the three-story brick factory building covering the entire block bounded by Van Dam Street, Borden Avenue and Gale Street, Long Island City. The purchaser leased the building five years ago through Roman-Callman Company, the brokers, and made extensive additions during occupancy.

Realty Notes.

Nathan Wilson is the buyer of the northwest corner of Eighty-fourth Street and Amsterdam Avenue, improved with the Carpathian Apartments.

The purchaser of 677 Lexington Avenue, northeast corner of Fifty-sixth Street, and the adjoining parcel at 139 East Fifty-sixth Street, recently sold by Maurice Wertheim as broker for the Markham Realty Corporation, is William Van Alen of the firm of Severance & Van Alen, architects. This is one of several investment purchases recently made by Mr. Van Alen on Lexington Avenue through the same broker.

James Kyle & Sons were the brokers for Mr. Allen in the sale of the four-story apartment house at 357 East Fiftieth Street, on a lot 20 by 80 feet.

Steel Realty Development Corporation procured for Jacob Cuhman a first mortgage to the amount of $4,500 on his property at 5,619 Avenue I, Brooklyn.

SUBURBAN REAL ESTATE.
New Jersey—For Sale or To Let.

A SMALL FAMILY of refinement and education can secure title to and occupy at once this beautiful Colonial home with garage, located on one of the best streets of a celebrated suburban residential section near New York City, where the desires of the neighboring families as to the personality of the buyer must and will receive first consideration, on the payment of $2,000, balance of $10,000 on long time first and second mortgage; the plot fronts 100 feet on the street and extends 180 feet in depth; contains 7 rooms and bath and wide veranda; the elevation is over 300 feet; it is only a few minutes' walk to trolley station and convenient to railroad express station, on the best commuting road out of New York City, and is offered complete with no extras including shades, screens and beautifully landscaped grounds; there are over 300 commuters from this section now; bathing, boating, skating, golf, tennis and country clubs are available, together with fine schools, churches and markets; it is a bargain and a wonderful place for children. Immediate, P. O. Box 378, City Hall Station, New York City.

CHOICE INDUSTRIAL SITES
In units of five to fifty acres, on deep water, within eight miles of Manhattan. Served by seven trunk line railroads. Storage facilities unrivaled. Railroad sidings easily obtainable. Directly connected with main highways to New York. An opportunity of unusual interest to those who are seeking industrial sites well located, with the most favorable transit facilities. Will sell or lease on long terms at very attractive figures. Address—Department of Public Improvements, Room 205, City of Newark, N. J.

TO THE MAN who will pay $2,000 immediately I offer an unusually artistic home with garage at less than two-thirds actual value; pay the balance of $9,000 about as you like, provided I get two thousand at once; the house is everything every one expects in a new house but seldom gets; it is new, artistic and spacious, with everything modern and convenient; you won't have to spend a cent on it; grounds are well shaded, and on plot 100x190 feet, in the finest, healthiest, purely residential section near New York City, with ideal express commutation; you want a home at a right price. I want cash now. Telephone Mr. Bowman, Cortlandt 1521.

REAL ESTATE WANTED.
City Property.

We are in the market for high-class income producing properties of modern fireproof elevator apartment houses or business buildings, or building plots in prime locations which have sufficient income to pay taxes and interest until construction is begun.
We do not want property which has been sold several times in the past few years in which we would have to purchase for one or three profits. We prefer property with not more than one mortgage, or free and clear, and which has been unde one ownership for eight years or more.
Nor will we buy inflated rents. The rents must be reasonable and allow leeway for an inevitably declining market.
The larger and finer the proposition the better. Amount of cash unlimited. For properties qualifying to the above description we have a waiting list of clients immediately ready to purchase. Principals only send full particulars to

UPTOWN OFFICE,
50 EAST 42D ST.,
DOWNTOWN OFFICE,
115 BROADWAY.

ABOUT OURSELVES
From the day we first began serving people, we have always maintained not merely an "employment agency" "where a stenographer is a stenog" and "a bookkeeper a bookkeeper," but an intelligent service to place the RIGHT girl in the RIGHT position.
DAY BY DAY
we have improved this service. Slowly but surely the finest concerns in town realised our ability to supply them just the right help they desire. Therefore thousands of the city's finest houses now use us EXCLUSIVELY. Thousands of applicants which we place satisfactorily are our "biggest boosters" and assets, appreciating the service we rendered them.
THAT'S WHY
"AMERICAN FIRST" should be your slogan when you are out of employment or contemplating a change. Call today, undoubtedly it will be to your advantage, as it has become a known fact around town that the AMERICAN can place any competent worker.

"The AMERICAN is the BIGGEST and the BEST."

BECOME AN ACCOUNTANT.

EARNING POWER

$8,000 TO $10,000.

The number of accountants now needed has been quadrupled over the requirements of a few years ago because ACCOUNTANCY has been brought very much into prominence and greatly favored by the Federal Trade Commission, the new credit rules of the banks, and in many other ways for large business development covered by new national and State laws.

Our "Problem Method" system, which is short, practical and personal, is helping men to prepare themselves for this favored field of business. The LaSalle training in accountancy has been so constructed and arranged that students with little or no bookkeeping or accounting experience may handle it without difficulty.

SHALL I STAY? SHALL I GO?

Before making a change find out if you are on the right track. To know what your life work should be is a start in the right direction. Our trained analysts will know from a study of your face the vocation for you. This study is based on scientific laws. No psychological tests. Ask us all about it. Booklet K free. Merton Institute, Bar Bldg., 36 West 44th St. Tel. Vanderbilt 2662.

CHANGING JOBS FOR MORE MONEY

gets you nowhere unless you are fitted by natural talents for the work. Why blunder again when our expert measuring of your inborn abilities will tell you conclusively the work in which you will achieve big success? Call, write or telephone Bryant 1292 for full details. MYSTERIOUS 'DOROTHY' AIDS WIFE IN SUIT

Makes Affidavit of Friendship for Husband—He Says She Is a Myth.

Offering an affidavit signed by a woman, Mrs. Dora Novick yesterday asked Supreme Court Justice Van Siclen in Brooklyn to grant her $75 a week alimony and $500 counsel fees, pending trial of her suit for absolute divorce from Harry Novick.

Mrs. Novick lives at 696 Greene Avenue, Brooklyn, and is separated from her husband, who she says is one of the principal stockholders in the Globe Fur Dressing Company of 190 West Street, Brooklyn. She alleges he has been showering theatre tickets, meals, furs and money on another woman, a mysterious "Dorothy," whose surname is being withheld by agreement of both parties.

Mrs. Novick stated that on Oct. 12 "Dorothy" called on her and declared she had on several occasions gone to hotels with Novick, where they registered as man and wife.

Novick says he believes "Dorothy" is a mythical person and says he has no recollection of writing a letter such as the one quoted by his wife.

Mrs. Novick said "Dorothy" turned over to her a number of letters, an extract from one reading: "I love you very much. Never in my life have I so longed for anybody, and I did not think I would ever feel so bad and so blue."

"Dorothy," it is alleged, told Mrs. Novick the husband had promised to get a divorce and marry her, but that not long ago he said he had effected a reconciliation with his wife, but had since learned that Novick was not back with his wife but had found another sweetheart. A list of presents said to have been received by "Dorothy" included a mink stole, $350; fur coat, $400; cash, $500; two martens, $100; pearls, $150; black fox scarf, $90.

CALLS INSANITY CURABLE.

Doctor Thinks Some Forms Would Yield to Gland Treatment.

CHICAGO, Oct. 31.—Dr. William Held, lecturer before the Illinois Post Graduate Medical School clinic, announced today that he had offered to treat 100 soldiers suffering from shell shock by making harmonious the functioning of the ductless glands, from which he believes a toxic condition has resulted.

"What we have to do is to determine by blood tests the deficiency or excess of glandular activity and then restore the harmony by injection of suitable extracts," he said. "This dispels the mental cloud."

Dr. Held said his offer had been made to President Harding and the Veterans' Bureau, and that Director Forbes had expressed his thanks, but said that he did not want any experiments made upon the soldiers. Dr. Held said he had replied that he would not experiment, but would employ methods resulting from twenty-six years of what he believed had been a successful effort to cure epilepsy and certain forms of insanity.

"Out of 400 cases of epilepsy, I can say that 18 per cent. have been cured," Dr. Held said. "Even cases in asylums and others on the way to asylums have been cured. As a result I can say that insanity, whether due to epilepsy, shell shock or whatever cause, is no longer to be looked upon as well nigh incurable."

Other Chicago physicians expressed interest in Dr. Held's method and said the theory was in line with medical developments, but that so far as their records went they had no knowledge of cures in such cases.

MANY PASSENGERS ARRIVE ON OLYMPIC

Dr. Samuel Baruch Tells of Deplorable Conditions Among Berlin's Poor.

LADY HENRY HAS MISSION

Polish Minister Returns and Will Give Up Post—Otto Kahn's Grandson a Visitor.

The White Star liner Olympic arrived yesterday from Southampton and Cherbourg with nearly 1,200 passengers, 4,500 sacks of mail and $500,000 in gold for New York banks. Among the passengers was Dr. Samuel de Marnay Baruch, who recently received the honorary degree of Doctor of Medicine from the ancient University of Tuebingen. He spent three months in Europe.

"England and France," he said, "are rapidly returning to their normal condition, but in the central countries of Europe I found the situation dangerous. As to scientific research, there is the greatest danger that it will cease altogether for lack of funds. In many of the laboratories work has had to be stopped because the professors have not enough money to buy food for the mice and guineapigs necessary for their work. During my visit to the Mayor of Berlin I heard the desperate appeal of the chairman of a committee of 35,000 families that unless the city would provide means of buying at least potatoes for the children they would starve. The Mayor shrugged his shoulders helplessly; he had no funds. He told me that these were conditions which he had to meet daily. I fear that Bolshevistic influences may become predominant in the Central Empires."

Lady Henry, sister-in-law of Martin Vogel, former Assistant United States Treasurer, arrived to visit her brother, and will proceed later to India to visit Lord Reading, the Viceroy, and Lady Reading. She went to the Ritz-Carlton Hotel and expects to remain there a month before starting for the East. Just before sailing, Lady Henry called upon Lloyd George. She said she found him in the best of spirits, and that when it was suggested to the ex-Premier that his friends expected to see him return to the people at the head of a moderate party, he replied: "I have never left the people."

Lady Henry said that the peace and salvation of Europe depend upon the good-will and assistance of America, and added that during her stay here she would devote her time to drawing closer the ties of friendship between America and England.

Mme. Domicio da Gama, wife of the Brazilian Ambassador to the Court of St. James's and formerly Brazilian Ambassador to Washington, arrived with her son, Morris R. Volck. She is here to settle the estate of her sister, the late Mrs. Percival Barker.

Another passenger was Prince Kazimir Lubormirski, Polish Minister to Washington, who said he had been recalled to Warsaw and would be succeeded by Dr. Ladislaw Wrobiewski, now Minister in London. The Prince was accompanied by the Princess. After settling his affairs in Washington he will go to live upon his estates in Poland.

Harry V. Dougherty, New York detective and brother of former Deputy Police Commissioner George Dougherty, who has been abroad in the interests of Harold McCormick, returned. He said he did not believe the marriage of Mathilde McCormick and Max Osler ever would take place.

Captain Axel Wallenberg, Swedish Minister to Washington, returned from a visit to Sweden with Mrs. Wallenberg. He said he did not believe Sweden would vote again on the prohibition question for many years. Business conditions were better in Sweden than in Norway and Denmark, the Minister said.

Painters and others in the art world were plentiful on the ship. Irving Brokaw arrived with his wife and two daughters, Barbara and Lucile, from a Summer spent mostly in Italy. He said he had made at least twenty-five portraits, water colors and other drawings of the country about Lake Leman, Lake Como and Cadenabbia.

Aston Knight, landscape and animal painter, returned with Mrs. Knight from Paris. Captain Francis Guarnaschelli, Italian aid to President Wilson when the later toured Italy, and a portrait painter, came back to open his studio at 22 West Fifty-ninth Street.

Little John Oaks Marriott, grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Otto Kahn, was a passenger, in charge of a nurse and a governess. He was met at the pier by his grandparents. The little boy was dressed in snow white furs and was much admired by the passengers on the trip.

Other passengers were Mr. and Mrs. Murry Guggenheim, Lionel Barrymore, Sir Francis Bell, Mr. and Mrs. Montaigne de la Montaigne, C. A. Munn, and Frank Hemingway. The Olympic had 42 first-class, 444 second and 261 third-class passengers.

Bandits Injured E. R. Applegate When They Killed Fellow Relief Worker.

Enoch R. Applegate, of Jersey City, a World War veteran and a worker for the Near East Relief, was wounded by bandits who killed Lester James Wright, of Waukesha, Wis., another relief worker, according to a cable received yesterday by the Near East Relief. His wounds are not serious.

Wright and Applegate were stationed in the Harput region of Turkey. At the time of the attack they had just completed moving a host of Armenian and Greek orphans out of Turkish territory

WOMAN PHYSICIAN, 49, ADOPTS SCULPTOR, 26

Bachelor Likewise Obtains as His Ward a Young Woman of 21.

Papers approving the adoption of a young woman of 21 by a bachelor and of a young man sculptor by a woman physician were approved by Surrogate Foley yesterday. The young woman is Rosalind Velva Kendall, who becomes the foster daughter of Ellis Wainwright of 800 Park Avenue. She is a native of Louisville. Mr. Wainwright said in his affidavit asking permission to adopt her:

"I have known Miss Kendall for several years and have assisted in her education. I desire to give her additional educational facilities in this and other countries, especially as to music, and to furnish her with the means therefor."

Dr. Eleanore F. Boulton, who is 49, becomes the foster mother of Joseph Lorkowski, 26, of 679 Northern Boulevard, College Point. Dr. Boulton states that she has an income of $7,500 a year in addition to her practice and research work. Lorkowski's father she says, has been dead for years, and his mother is not well-to-do and has four minor children to support. She believes that he has unusual ability as a sculptor and should study abroad. For that reason she "desires to go to Europe with him and personally supervise his education and development."

CALL MRS. ROSIER INSANE.

Alienists Testify for Slayer of Husband and Stenographer.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 31.—The defense at the trial of Mrs. Catherine Rosier, who slew her husband and his stenographer, rested today after introducing medical testimony to show that Mrs. Rosier was emotionally insane when she shot the girl for whose death she was first indicted. Dr. Charles K. Mills and Dr. George Wilson, alienists, testified that Mrs. Rosier was unable to distinguish between right and wrong at the time of the shooting and for some time thereafter.

In rebuttal Dr. Margaret Nelson, a prison physician, testified that in her opinion Mrs. Rosier was sane, but admitted under cross-examination that she had made an official report that Mrs. Rosier was subnormal and mentally deficient. Final arguments are expected tomorrow and the case may go to the jury before night.

Women spectators hissed a woman prison guard who testified that Mrs. Rosier had shown no signs of insanity and on several other occasions the unruly disposition of the spectators brought warnings from Judge Barratt.

SMITH ON CIVIL SERVICE.

Writes That He Favors Extension of the Merit System.

Samuel H. Ordway, President of the Civil Service Reform Association, made public last night this letter from Alfred E. Smith defining his attitude toward progressive measures looking to the improvement of the civil service system:

Hotel Rathbun, Elmira, N. Y.,
Oct. 25, 1922.

My Dear Judge Ordway: I am in receipt of your letter of Oct. 14 and know that you will overlook my delay in answering you, as I have been constantly on the move and away from New York City.

I stand today as I did all through my Administration as Governor for the extension of the merit system in the civil service of our State, and I am opposed to exemptions by legislative enactment. During my incumbency of the Governorship I suggested and signed the so-called "inverse order bill" which, I believe, had a good deal to do with preventing removals for purely political reasons, thereby creating lapsed appropriations to be used for either increases of salary for non-civil service men or for the creation of additional non-civil service places. If elected, I will certainly continue any policy that will have for its ultimate purpose the extension of the merit system. I am sorry to say that I did not take the time to read the Governor's statement, a copy of which you enclosed. I do not believe that the Administration under him did anything to strengthen the merit system in either appointments or promotions. On the contrary, they weakened it. I agree with what you said in the State Bulletin in its issue of June, 1921, "that the Legislature did not hesitate to add spoils riders in many of the bills carrying out the Governor's recommendations."

I particularly feel that civil service was brushed aside in some of the departments under the guise of reorganizations made with lump sum appropriations. The so-called "inverse order law" was nullified and the whole theory of appointment and retention in accordance with civil service laws and regulations was set aside. For details of this, I would refer you to the State Bulletin of the New York State Association of February, 1923, on page 2, which deals only with the Labor Department.

You have my full permission to publish this reply to your letter.

With best wishes, I am sincerely yours, ALFRED E. SMITH.

Mr. Ordway announced that to a similar query put to Governor Miller the Governor had replied through his secretary that he "is not answering questions; that he is standing on his record, which is known to the association," and that he is quite content with what the Civil Service Commission at Albany will say on the subject.

HUGHES ACCLAIMS MILLER TO THRONG AT COOPER UNION

He Tells Cheering Crowd That New York Has a Great Governor.

POINTS TO PARTY RECORD

This Country Does Not Want Foreign Territory, Declares Secretary of State.

MILLER RECEIVES OVATION

Says He Would Be Glad to Enlist Under Banner of Hughes for President Some Day.

Addressing an enthusiastic audience that filled Cooper Union to overflowing, Secretary of State Charles E. Hughes made a speech last night that served a double purpose, to explain and interpret the Harding Administration, especially in regard to its foreign policies, and to urge the re-election of Governor Nathan L. Miller. The crowd, a third of which was composed of women, gave Mr. Hughes a lively demonstration. There was much cheering and waving of flags.

After Mr. Hughes had left the hall, Governor Miller arrived from his Brooklyn meeting and made a short speech. He referred to a report that, if elected, he would be considered a Presidential possibility in 1924. The Governor said he had always been a stanch supporter of President Harding, but if it should come to a question of presenting the name of a favorite son of New York, he would enroll under the banner of Charles E. Hughes. There was tremendous applause at this.

After paying a tribute to the Chairman of the meeting, former Senator Nathaniel A. Elsberg, Mr. Hughes, who was the first speaker, plunged directly into his appreciation of the National Administration. He declared that public office was not always a delight, but he considered it a great privilege to be a member of the National Administration. No Administration since the Civil War, he said, ever faced a graver task than did the present one when he took office twenty months ago.

"To Act, Not Debate."

"In our domestic affairs," he said, "we were in a mess. Business was at a very low point; industry was languishing; five millions of men who wanted work could not get it. In our foreign affairs, if anything, we were in a worse mess. The Administration was expected not to continue a useless debate but to act.

"The Administration was expected to solve these difficulties. How, nobody could tell. It seemed a task impossible of performance. But it had been chosen because of the confidence reposed in it by the electorate, and it was expected to get the nation out of these troubles, to put prosperity upon a sure basis, so that once more we could go ahead.

"A great many said, 'It is absolutely impossible until the whole world has recuperated.' Well, if you don't begin somewhere, you won't begin anywhere, and the United States is a good place to begin to recuperate. And we have recuperated.

"Today industry instead of running below 60 per cent. is running at 90 per cent. of capacity. There is no problem of unemployment. It is just the other way. Farmers are looking for men to help them. Industry is looking for men who want to work, and the one thing that is now giving anxiety to our leaders in commerce and in industry and in agriculture is where they are going to get the labor, the necessary labor, in order to carry on the undertakings that are going ahead with such extraordinary achievement and commerce.

"I am very glad indeed to have this opportunity of attributing the great gains that have been wrought, to the extent that the Administration has contributed to them, to the very wise and patient, indefatigable, statesmanlike leadership of the President of the United States. Courtesy personified, the embodiment of manliness and kindliness, where dignity does not mean austerity, where patience does not mean weakness, a man of constant labor and inflexible purpose, with whom I consider it the highest privilege of my life to have been permitted to work.

Asks Support for Calder.

"He has not tried to achieve alone. He has a genius for co-operation, for enlisting and appreciating support, for not seeking subservience and servility, but helpfulness. And thus, despite the freedom of debate, which we welcome; despite the unembarrassed expression of opinion within the party, at which no one can cavil, we have had leadership and co-operation in the White House and in Congress, in the House and in the Senate. So I am glad tonight to speak of those who have labored in support of the President, and especially of the one who represents us here, who has been industrious and painstaking, with a business man's point of view and the directness which characterizes the man of affairs—Senator Calder—who, I hope, will be re-elected for another term."

The crowd gave a mighty cheer when Mr. Hughes declared that the United States did not covet any territory anywhere on God's broad earth.

"We are not seeking spheres of special political and economic influence, and endeavoring to control others for our aggrandizement," he said. "We are not seeking special privileges anywhere at the expense of others. Our policies are simple and can be directly stated. We wish to protect the just and equal rights of Americans everywhere in the

Jury Gives $5,000 for Thumb Plaintiff Says Employer Bit

A jury before Justice Aspinall in the Supreme Court, Brooklyn, yesterday awarded a verdict of $5,000 to Joseph Grecco of 6,310 Fourteenth Avenue for the loss of his thumb. Grecco said that he tried to collect $4 due him from Frank Picarello, a clothing manufacturer, on Aug. 22, 1920, for whom he worked. He declared that Picarello grabbed his right hand and bit his thumb severely, and blood poisoning developed as a result of his injury. He was compelled to have the thumb amputated and claimed that he could not thereafter do his work properly as a clothing presser. He brought suit against Picarello for $25,000.

HYLAN NAMES SMITH ONLY ONCE AT RALLY

FIRST MEETING IN CAMPAIGN

Both Speakers Attack Miller's Five-Cent Fare Pledge as Campaign Material.

Alfred E. Smith, Democratic candidate for Governor, and John F. Hylan, Democratic Mayor of New York City, appeared together in public last night for the first time during the campaign. The former Governor and the Mayor met on the stage of the Academy of Music in Brooklyn, they spoke and they parted without open hostilities, but they were far from enacting a heart-felt love feast for the benefit of what was described as the largest crowd that ever gathered in the Academy.

If they shook hands, even that gesture of friendship was obscured by those who surged around them. The Mayor, who presided, devoted himself largely to an assault on Governor Miller and went out of his way to make it plain that he appeared as the champion of the whole Democratic ticket and the entire Democratic platform. To "Al" Smith himself he made only a single reference.

Mr. Smith, in turn, took occasion in discussing the Port Authority to make plain that he still stood stanchly against the Mayor, who has maintained that regulation of the port, like transit, was a subject for home rule domination.

Candidate and chairman, despite their political differences, were good humored before a great gathering that was in gala mood, and both referred humorously to the outcome of the Syracuse convention, from which the Mayor fled when it became apparent that Mr. Smith and not William Randolph Hearst would be the gubernatorial nominee.

It was to the tune of "East Side, West Side," that Mr. Smith marched into the hall to be greeted by a standing, cheering, flag-waving audience that showed the superiority of its musical education to that of Manhattanites by singing that lilting Tammany song to the last word.

Hylan Berates Miller.

The Mayor, devoting himself to his favorite transit issue, had said a few minutes earlier:

"For several nights Governor Miller has been brazenly telling the people of the City of New York that the Transit Commission 'saved the 5-cent fare.' This is, of course, an outrageous misstatement and no one knows it better than the man who utters it.

"If it had not been for the determined opposition of the city Administration against the assault and threats of the traction ring and the Transit Commission created by Governor Miller, the Republican State Legislature, the Meyer investigating committee, the Almirall Grand Jury, the Whitman Grand Jury and the corporation-controlled newspapers, the people of the City of New York would not now be enjoying a five-cent fare on their own subways. Does Governor Miller think that for one moment the people of New York City are not capable of seeing through his duplicity and sham attempts at vote getting with such declarations as that he saved the five-cent fare?"

And it was also before the principal candidate's arrival that he had found opportunity to make that single reference to Mr Smith, to whom he gave credit for having brought about the repeal of the pay-as-you-go plan of city financing so that New York was able to set about building schools. So it was with the main points of his own debate in favor of the Democrats that he stepped forward, broadly smiling, to introduce the former Governor in these words:

"Let me just remind you of a little

LONDON, Nov. 1.—Ex-Premier Lloyd George is indisposed and his temporary illness may well have an important effect on the election. He is suffering from a bad throat, probably brought on by his trip to Scotland and his open-air speeches. By the advice of Lord Dawson, the King's physician, he is remaining indoors and denying himself to all but one or two friends.

The former Premier has already canceled the speeches he was to have delivered in Bath tomorrow, and he is so hoarse that it is possible he may not be able to address the great rally called for Saturday in Stoll's Picture House. There is no reason, however, to suppose he is attacked by anything more than that typically English complaint, a severe cold.

One result of his indisposition is that he escapes for the time the necessity of declaring his plans more fully. This respite is important. It gives Mr. Lloyd George the opportunity to find out the line Premier Bonar Law will take tomorrow at the big women's meeting in the Drury Lane Theatre before he again commits himself, and to watch the delicate situation in the constituencies.

Saturday Is Nomination Day.

Saturday is nomination day, when the lines of conflict will be finally drawn, and the Coalition Liberals are finding no little comfort tonight in the thought that they are left with two or three days to decide how far they are to carry the war into the Conservative camp without their leader being able to make a speech in which he could not help committing himself.

Meanwhile from the constituencies comes news of all kinds of possible combinations of groups of similar opinions. They are bewildering in their complexity. Thus at Manchester Liberals of all shades are inclined to draw together and even seek the aid of moderate Conservatives, while at Stockport, another great industrial centre only a few miles away, the "Wee Frees" will have nothing to do with the followers of Mr. Lloyd George and the die-hards are not repelling overtures from the Coalition Liberals.

Then tonight The Star comes out with a strong appeal to the Labor Party to join forces with the Asquith Liberals in some allocation of seats to prevent "a splitting of the vote which is going to let reactionists in on a minority poll." It need not, it argues, amount to alliance or amalgamation of Labor and Liberal Parties, but it would be only common prudence to adopt some such policy.

All this makes the political situation as a whole very obscure. In each constituency the situation differs from that elsewhere.

Labor Does Badly in Borough Elections.

Borough elections were held today throughout the country. Usually they are only of local interest, but this year politicians have been watching them keenly as giving an indication of how the general election will go a fortnight hence. Complete returns will not be in until tomorrow, but there is no doubt that labor has done badly and that independent candidates running without assistance from the big political parties have come out unusually well.

This, as far as the chances of labor on Nov. 15 are concerned, confirms the general opinion of political observers, and it also shows the determination of the bulk of the electorate to support economy regardless of party affiliations.

Movements like fusion in a New York City election have taken place in dozens of cities, and liberals and conservatives, municipal reformers and progressives have united to elect councilors who will work to bring down local taxation.

Up to a late hour tonight returns showed Labor had lost 135 seats in the provinces and 61 in London. At Green-

Smith Now Favorite in Election Betting; Several Good Sized Wagers Placed at 6 to 5

Betting on the Gubernatorial contest yesterday for the first time turned in favor of Smith, the Democratic candidate; the odds being 6 to 5 in his favor. G. B. De Chadendes & Co. reported that they had placed several good-sized wagers at these odds. At the close of business the firm was quoting the odds of 6 to 5 on Smith to 7 to 10 on Miller. From the opening of the campaign and up to yesterday Miller had been the favorite, and considerable money has been bet on him at odds of 6 to 5. These odds, however, disappeared last week, when they were lowered to 11 to 10, and on Saturday the first wagers were placed on an even money basis.

In the contest for United States Senator there was further shortening of the odds yesterday. The firm offered to lay $10,000 on Copeland, the Democratic candidate, against $17,000 on Calder, the Republican candidate. Previously the firm had been making bets at odds of 2 to 1 against Copeland.

W. L. Darnell & Co. report that the shift in odds in favor of Smith has resulted in the placing of hedge bets by bettors who had taken odds of 1 to 2 against Smith's chances.

In the New Jersey contest for United States Senator, De Chadenedes & Co. yesterday reported they placed $5,000 at even money that Governor Edwards would defeat Senator Frelinghuysen. Prior to yesterday the odds were in favor of Frelinghuysen.

It was announced at Democratic headquarters in Jersey City yesterday afternoon that John F. Boyle, who is a member of the Vehicular Tunnel Commission and campaign manager for the Democratic Party, has a commission of $50,000 to wager on the election of Edwards and Silzer at even money. It will be placed in two bets of $25,000 each. Boyle has an office at 500 Montgomery Street.

Cadbury Factory Workers, Upset by Gift Of Fortune, Urge Donor to Keep Some of It

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 1.—Workers at the Cadbury Brothers' Chocolate Factory at Bournville are seriously perturbed over the action of Mrs. Boeke, daughter of one of the founders of the firm, in voluntarily surrendering the 2,800 shares which she holds in the company and transferring them to a trust composed of eight representatives of the employes for the benefit of the workers collectively.

The Bournville employes believe that in doing this Mrs. Boeke has impoverished herself and jeopardised the education of her children. Mrs. Boeke, who lives at Bilthoven, in Holland, married a missionary who is now a craftsman, and they have five daughters and a baby son.

Mrs. Boeke's gift was prompted by an unwillingness which both she and her husband felt in taking an unearned income resulting from the collective work of the Cadbury factory hands. She expresses the belief that private holding of capital lies at the root of nearly all the social and economic troubles of the world, and asks that the income from the shares shall be administered for social, international and philanthropic purposes.

Mrs. Boeke is able to deal with the shares—which she inherited from her father—only during her own lifetime, and the right of her children to them at her death is to be recognized in the trust deed.

The Men's and Women's Councils at the Bournville factory, in accepting the gift, express their appreciation of Mrs. Boeke's self-sacrifice, but they would desire to devote some of the dividends on the shares she has presented to them "to the care and interest of the Boeke family, such as the education of the children."

Other suggestions made for the use of the money include its expenditure on internationalism (movements for peace, social service, education, including languages, travel and fellowship), development of the idea of control in industry, relief of suffering and distress to assist the work done by the Bilthoven Council, movements for working class unity, social investigation, propaganda and education.

MURGUIA EXECUTED, SEIZED IN A CHURCH

General Who Fled With Carranza Gets Short Shrift When Captured in Rebellion.

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 1.—General Francisco Murguia, in revolt against the Obregon Government, was executed at 9 o'clock this morning at Tepehuantes, State of Durango, where he was captured on Tuesday night. A court-martial which assembled at 2 o'clock this morning sentenced Murguia to death, and the sentence was carried out immediately. Murguia asked for a two days' stay of execution, which was refused. The Federal Government received a wire reporting the execution at noon today.

General Murguia was captured at 11 o'clock Tuesday night in the small town of Tepehuantes, sleeping hidden in a room behind the high altar of the village church, where he was secreted by the parish priest. The priest was arrested, but was permitted to be at liberty in the town until orders should be received from Mexico City.

Murguia crossed into Mexico recently from an American border town near Laredo. He made for the Sierra de Burro Mountains, where he was joined by about 200 men. He then made an attempt to cross the desert of Sierra Mojada into the State of Durango, where he expected to join the rebel leader, Juan Carrasco, in the State of Sinaloa. Murguia accomplished the feat of traveling with a large force through three States without being sighted by Federal troops, supposed to be in close pursuit.

Betrayed by an Indian Girl.

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 1 (Associated Press).—General Murguia, arch-enemy of President Obregon for many years, was one of the men who took part in the flight that brought death to former President Carranza. Recently he was described by President Obregon as "not a soldier but a fugitive from justice."

Murguia was definitely located yesterday morning at Tepehuantes when an Indian maiden, friendly to the Federals, slipped into the Federal camp and divulged his hiding place to General Abraham Carmona, who immediately surrounded the village.

After he was sentenced to death the former Carranza General is understood to have passed the night writing letters to his wife and friends. At 9 o'clock this morning the firing squad was assembled, and in the presence of the entire population of Tepehuantes Murguia met death. He declined to have his face covered and gave orders to his executioners.

The body is being held in Tepehuantes. It probably will be buried there.

In the death of Murguia the most active of all of President Obregon's enemies is removed. For months he had conducted an energetic campaign against the Central Government from across the international boundary. Only recently, following his departure to parts unknown in Mexico, Murguia's bondsmen in the United States were asked to surrender their forfeit money.

The capture of Murguia was not unexpected. It has been thought that President Obregon, for psychological reasons if no other, would bring the captive to Mexico City for trial and have him executed publicly here. In fact, President Obregon was reported by the newspapers as having said that he had directed that when Murguia was run down he should be brought to the capital.

The very fact that this was not done caused the circulation of a rumor in some quarters that perhaps there had been a case of mistaken identity at Tepehuantes and that Murguia was still at large, although the official reports of the execution received from Federal officers on the scene indicate that such mistake was impossible.

The afternoon newspapers today issued numerous extra editions telling of the execution of Murguia.

For the last few weeks Murguia had virtually been a fugitive, following the dispersal of his rebel band at Guarache, Durango, and less than a dozen adherents remained with him.

For a long while General Murguia had been credited with brewing a revolution. Two months ago he left his hiding place across the Rio Grande and came back into Mexico at the head of a rebel army said to number 800 men. Three weeks ago his forces were decisively

T. NELSON PAGE DIES IN VIRGINIA

FAMOUS NOVELIST WAS 69

RICHMOND, Va., Nov. 1.—Thomas Nelson Page, former Ambassador to Italy and noted author, died of heart disease this afternoon at his ancestral home, Oakland, where he was born, near Beaver Dam in Hanover County. He was walking in the garden with his sister-in-law, Mrs. Roswell Page, when he suddenly collapsed. He was carried into the house and medical aid was summoned, but he died within a few minutes. He was 69 years of age.

Mr. Page had apparently been in excellent health, and only last week had been in Washington and in Maryland, where he participated in the political campaign, speaking in advocacy of the candidacy for the United States Senate of his cousin, William Cabell Bruce. He had gone to the ancestral home, now occupied by his brother, and had announced that he would soon begin the preparation of a book dealing with his experiences as Ambassador to Italy.

Funeral services will be held Friday morning at the Old Fork Church, where Mr. Page was christened, and the body will be sent to Washington for interment.

Placing of flags on all public buildings in the State at half mast tomorrow as a mark of respect to Mr. Page was ordered tonight by Governor Trinkle.

Thomas Nelson Page died in the land where he was born, which he loved and which he had made the scene of many of his stories. For although he was Ambassador to Italy for six years, during the trying days of the war and until after the peace was signed, he was known chiefly for his literary work, for which he had received many honors before those won in the field of diplomacy came to him. He sometimes expressed astonishment that he, a writer, should have been chosen for a post so foreign to his usual activities.

Mr. Page was born in Hanover County, Virginia, on April 23, 1853. His family is one of the oldest in the country. A great-grandfather was Governor John Page, the friend of Jefferson, and another grandfather was General Thomas Nelson, a Revolutionary War Governor of Virginia and a signer of the Declaration of Independence. His father was a Major in the Confederate Army on the staff of his brother-in-law, General Pendleton, General Lee's Chief of Artillery. His life began in the midst of the old Virginia aristocracy in one of the most picturesque periods in the country's history.

The war changed the Pages' world, however. As a boy he saw armies march on their way to Richmond, and he used to stand at the big gates and wave to the soldiers as they passed. When the war was over his family's fortune was swept away, and when he was only twelve he had seen their manner of life entirely changed and grew to know poverty and hard work in the fields. In the evenings he lay before the fire reading whatever books came to his hand.

Begins His Career as Lawyer.

He went to school until 1868, when he went to Washington College, now Washington and Lee University. He wanted to be an orator and studied with such success that he took the medal for that attainment. He wrote occasionally for the college paper. After leaving college he taught for a year and then studied law in the University of Virginia, graduating in one year. He began practice when twenty-two years old.

Mr. Page could not help writing occasionally, and one day he heard the story of a Confederate soldier's death which so moved him that he wrote in a few days "Marse Chan," a story that is still known as one of the best of Civil War stories. He sold it for $80 to Scribner's Monthly, but it was not published until three years later, when the magazine had become known as the Century. This was the story which Henry Ward Beecher tried to read to a London audience and which moved him so greatly that he burst into tears. Its publication in book form established Mr. Page's literary reputation.

The delay in publishing it, however, somewhat discouraged him, and because he was told that writing would interfere with law, he gave up his pen for a time. He was married in 1886 to Miss Anne Seddon Bruce, and because she cared for his stories he again began to write. He wrote for her "Meh Lady," which he considered one of his best stories. It was also written to meet the suggestion that he do something to heal the breach between the North and the South.

"Years ago, when I first began to write," he once said, "I tried to heal

WHALEN IN A RAGE HURLS EPITHETS AT TRANSIT COUNSEL

WAIVES IMMUNITY ON STAND

Not Interested, He Says, in 100 Per Cent. Profits or Where They Go on 20-Cent Bus Line.

EVIDENCE GOES TO BANTON

McAneny Asserts He Will Ask for Perjury Indictments in West Farms Inquiry.

While checks were being introduced in evidence to prove that Tammany politicians through the "dummy system" were getting more than $800 a month from a 20-cent fare bus line in the Bronx, Commissioner Grover A. Whalen broke into the hearing on the Transit Commission yesterday afternoon, denouncing ex-Judge Clarence A. Shearn as a "liar" and a "rat."

Whalen was enraged, he explained later, because he had been alluded to as the "Big Chief," after testimony to the effect that a $25,000 bribe had been demanded in the name of the "Big Chief" of the bus system.

The theatrical entrance of Mr. Whalen occurred while the most sensational revelations of graft and political control of bus operation were being placed on record. Striding to the front of the hearing room and interrupting a witness, Commissioner Whalen demanded the privilege of being heard.

"Take your turn," said Mr. Shearn.

"I will not take my turn," shouted Mr. Whalen. "I demand to be heard."

"You will be heard," said Mr. Shearn.

"No, you are going to hear me right now," said Mr. Whalen. "I am not going to permit you or anybody of your kind to attempt to pass aspersions on my character."

Friends Calm Whalen.

Apparently imagining that he was being mocked by the cool smile of the lawyer, Mr. Whalen took a step forward with his fist clenched, and added:

"Do not sneer, you dirty rat, you little liar."

Ex-Judge Shearn remained calm as a hostess serving tea, while half the spectators rose to their feet, expecting to see a blow struck. Chairman McAneny hammered with his gavel, while friends of Mr. Whalen calmed him.

"That will do of that," said Chairman McAneny. There were shouts from a couple of voices. When it was a little quieter Commissioner Whalen, having regained his self-control, said:

"I will sit down if the commission will allow me to take the stand immediately after this witness."

This was agreed upon, and Commissioner Whalen listened while the Bronx bus man confessed that he drew large checks in favor of Tammany politicians in the Bronx, but denied that he thought they got the money.

This witness was Ferdinand Frankenberg, President of the West Farms Bus Corporation. He denied having any relations with Tammany politicians in the Bronx until checks were introduced in evidence showing that he had paid $470.95 for the month of October to Under-Sheriff Thomas H. O'Neill, Democratic district leader of the Sixth Bronx Assembly District, and a like sum to the estate of Arthur H. Murphy, known as the "boss" of the Bronx, who died recently.

Frankenberg, who finally admitted making monthly payments to O'Neill, said that the money was really intended for his dummy partners, but that he paid it to O'Neill because the partners "weren't around." Frankenberg had earlier testified that the dummy partners came around three times a week, but that they never happened to come at the end of the month to get their money. Therefore, he always paid it to O'Neill.

Asks Perjury Indictment.

Revising his statements repeatedly, the witness finally took the position that he "did not know why" he paid the money to O'Neill and to the Murphy estate, but that neither had put any money into his business or had any business connection with him whatsoever.

At the close of the hearing Chairman McAneny directed that the testimony of Frankenberg be sent to District Attorney Banton with a request for an indictment for perjury.

With a glance toward Grover Whalen, who seemed to be listening with interest, ex-Judge Shearn pointed out that the total profit of the 20-cent fare West Farms bus line was $1,412.87 for October, or approximately $17,000 a year, and he added:

"In other words this concern was making approximately 100 per cent. profit on its investment of $20,000 out of the 20-cent bus fare that originated with this five-cent Administration."

On the preceding day ex-Judge Shearn had referred to Whalen as the "Big Chief" who fixed the 20-cent fare.

When he was later placed on the stand Mr. Whalen professed absolute indifference as to whether two Tammany politicians got two-thirds of the profits of this line or whether it made 100 per cent. profit on a 20-cent fare, saying that he was only interested so long as they furnished the service.

Whalen objected strongly to the suggestion that bus line franchises should be sold to the highest bidder, and argued in favor of the present revocable permit system, under which, according to testimony before the commission, Tammany politicians have got some of the best routes, while others have paid bribes for

Puts Paper in Milk for Spite; Gets 6 Months in Workhouse

A sentence of six months in the workhouse was imposed upon Max Moral of 340 Powell Street, Brooklyn, in Special Sessions, Brooklyn, yesterday, for throwing into a can of milk a piece of paper which hastened its souring.

Justice Salmon told Moral that he had earned the severest punishment because it damaged a food used by babies and the sick. Moral found the can in front of a grocery at 409 Howard Avenue, Brooklyn, and put the paper in because the grocer there would not buy milk from the concern for which Moral worked.

OFFICIALS DISSECT MRS. HALL'S STORY

Say 2 Men Saw Her Enter Home at 2:10 A. M. Sept. 15, Not 3:30, as She Says.

NO ARRESTS THIS WEEK

Police Experts Make Survey of Phillips Farm—Mrs. Gibson Charges Attempt at Bribery.

Detective James F. Mason, chief investigator for Deputy Attorney General Wilbur A. Mott, said last night that he could prove by two witnesses that Mrs. Hall entered her house at 2:10 o'clock on the morning after the murder, instead of 3:30, as she said in her interview with newspaper men yesterday. When he read this part of the interview, Mason said:

"Well, William Phillips, the watchman at the New Jersey State College for Women, which is near the Hall house, says that she returned home at 3:10 o'clock, and A. H. Bennett corroborates him to the extent that when Bennett heard his dog barking, and went out and asked Phillips what was the trouble, Phillips said, 'No trouble. Mrs. Hall just came home.'"

Mason glanced through several of the questions and answers, but said that he did not want to comment any further on the interview until he had read it in full. He left with two State Troopers, presumably to interview a witness from whom important information was expected. Special Prosecutor Mott could not be located to comment on Mrs. Hall's statements.

Prosecutor to Study Interview.

From a source close to the authorities, it was learned that Mr. Mott and Detective Mason probably will go through the entire interview with great care, to see if they can find any conflicting statements or leads to important information. In addition to the discrepancy of time between Mrs. Hall's statement as to when she returned home and the watchman's statement, it was pointed out that Mrs. Hall insisted that her brother, "Willie" Stevens, was with her when she went out and when she returned, while Phillips and Bennett say they did not see anybody go into the house with her.

It was also intimated that the authorities have information with which they hope to disprove Mrs. Hall's statements that she had never received any information about her husband's affair with Mrs. Mills, and that she had never been jealous of the choir singer. It was also said that they may attempt to prove later that Mrs. Hall received some information about her husband and Mrs. Mills, as the result of the letters or telephone calls referred to in the interview. Concerning Mrs. Hall's denial that there had ever been any animosity between her husband and her brother, Henry, it was also said, the authorities believe they have information which does not agree with her statement.

No Arrests This Week.

Despite their inclination to question Mrs. Hall's statements, the authorities remained reluctant yesterday in the direction of taking any action toward indictments or arrests on the strength of the story of Mrs. Jane Gibson, the farm woman who says she saw a woman in a gray coat and a bushy haired man at the Phillips farm on the night of the murder. Detective Mason, when asked last night if there would be any arrests during the week, made the following reply:

"So that you will not misinterpret my silence, I will say that there will be no arrests this week."

It was reported in New Brunswick yesterday that Mrs. Gibson might be asked to go to the Middlesex County Court House there today to see if she could identify the bushy haired, dark complexioned man out of a line of men answering that general description. It was also reported that three men bearing the same given name as that she says she heard the woman in gray use at the scene of the murder might be placed in this line-up. Confirmation of the story was lacking, although it was pointed out that Mrs. Gibson has been unable to identify the bushy haired man, and that some such process of elimination may be necessary if the authorities are to take any action on her story.

Think Woman May Have Cut Throat.

The point was made last night that the authorities can hardly ask for an indictment of the woman in the gray coat, whom Mrs. Gibson, if her story is to be taken at its face value, practically eliminates from any part in the actual commission of the murder, if they are unable to ask for the indictment of any particular person as the actual killer. As far as the woman in the gray coat is concerned, the authorities themselves seem to believe that she did not go to the Phillips farm with the intention of committing murder, although they think it possible that Mrs. Mills's throat was cut by a woman. The officials are hunting for a man to indict for murder. If they find him they may ask for the

DOES NOT SEEK REVENGE

Widow Says She Desires Only Solution of Mystery—Criticises Official Laxity.

HAS NO THEORY TO OFFER

Declares She Never Was at Phillips Farm—Admits Insanity in Family.

For a full hour yesterday Mrs. Frances Noel Stevens Hall answered the questions of twenty-five newspapermen, on points that have arisen during her seven weeks' silence since her husband, the Rev. Edward Wheeler Hall, and Mrs. Elenor R. Mills, a singer in his choir, were murdered.

In a low-pitched monotone, with a fixed smile and only one gesture in the hour of intensive questioning, she declared her faith in her husband:

"I feel that he is true to me."

The level of her voice failed to rise when a reporter asked whether she thought her husband had written the fervid diary or the love letters to Mrs. Mills. Only her large, blue-gray eyes snapped a sign of emotion, as she said:

"I think it very unlikely that he would."

She lapsed back to passiveness when asked to characterize Mrs. Mills—in the light of the missives—as she replied:

"I don't know what to say; I have no vindictive feeling."

Wants Solution, Not Punishment.

When the questions came to what she thought should be done to the murderers, she said:

"I don't want to see anybody punished. I want to get the solution. I think any one who has committed a murder is not a safe person to have at large."

Having decided to break the seals of her seclusion in the big Hall mansion, two stories of red brick set far back on the level lawn fringing Nichol Avenue, New Brunswick, Mrs. Hall found herself facing two ordeals—an interview en masse and the task of satisfying the photographers.

The cameramen have picketed the Hall home since the murder. As a result Mrs. Hall has been a prisoner, going out only once for business and twice to the Prosecutor's office. By arrangement through Mr. Pfeiffer, four photographers arrived at the home at 11 o'clock yesterday morning. They were conducted into the garden skirting the rear of the house and set up their cameras as Mrs. Hall appeared at a side door.

She paused for a moment, reluctant to face the photographers. All in black she was; a long, black cloak shielding her against the rather nippy wind. After a moment of indecision, she walked across the garden to a white lattice work, formed like a screen around a cement garden seat. She sat down and the cameras clicked repeatedly.

"I can't look in all directions," she complained, in response to the photographers' demands.

"Don't you think that's enough," she said after barely three minutes had slipped away. But she consented to pose again. This time she walked over to a sun dial and lingered there while the camera men worked. As she gathered her cloak about herself and walked back into the house she was joined by a relative, Mrs. Edwin Carpender.

Chides the Photographers.

"I hope," said Mrs. Hall, as she gained her doorway, "that you men are satisfied and I hope you won't bother me any more for photographs. I haven't been able to leave my house because of you."

That over, she rested until 1:30 o'clock in preparation for a second ordeal. She had agreed to meet all the newspaper men covering the murder, to answer all questions "fully and frankly" for an hour, and to do so alone—her counsel and her confidante, Miss Sally Peters, being excluded. Two stenographers, two typists and a crew of mimeograph men, journeyed out to the Hall home.

The stenographers stationed themselves in the reception room. The typists were permitted to put their machines in the Hall parlor and the furniture, draped in heavy coverings of newspapers, gave a work bench for the busy mimeographists. The reception room is an old-fashioned room in an old-fashioned house. The heavy mahogany chairs are upholstered in red plush.

Bookcases line the walls, papered in sombre hue, and the books, well-thumbed and occasionally torn, are of an elder generation. "Beside the Bonnie Brier Bush" and "Lorna Doone" and the like. Novels of the sentimental type of twenty years ago are there, rubbing elbows with his tomes on theology and church practice. A heavy bronze-and-marble clock over the open fireplace ticked loudly, a stray gust of air stirred a bunch of yellow chrysanthemum blooms, and Mrs. Hall came in.

Greets 25 Reporters.

Slightly below medium height, her gray hair smoothly back, pince nez glasses, an abrupt, forced smile and a short bow to those who awaited her. She was dressed in black crepe de chine, a light scarf about her shoulders, with a two-inch mourning border, and the dark cloth was a background that emphasized the sallowness of her face.

She has a face to look at twice—a narrow face, a firm tight-lipped mouth, a suggestion of hair on the chin, a broad chin. On her right temple, at the fringe of her hair, is a tiny, crescent-shaped scar. Although her hair has turned gray, her eyebrows, unusually prominent, remain black, and this, coupled with her pince nez, give her quick-turning eyes rather a sat-in look. For a second she stood facing her visitors, uncertain what to do. Then Mr. Pfeiffer led her to a low rocking chair, beside the stenographers and facing the circles of reporters. She sat down and grasped the arms of the chair. Nervously, she crossed the right knee over the left and began to thrust a foot, wearing black Oxfords with a single over-strap, back and forth over the polished surface of the hardwood floor.

Then, one spokesman for the evening newspapers and one for the morning's, the interview began. At one of the first questions—one seeking to have her narrate her movements on the murder night—she took her left hand from the arm of the chair and raised it to adjust her eyeglasses. The movement showed she was wearing the rector's engagement ring of three large diamonds and the plain wedding band.

Self-Possessed Throughout.

Her voice remained well modulated and her self-possession complete under the searching questions. Not once did she hesitate in her replies, and only once was her stern, sad expression changed. This came when she was answering questions about what Dr. Hall had said in regard to the Millis's bills—ostensibly it was this that called him from his home on the night of Sept. 14. Then the smile was but a shadowy affair, and it seemed to have been aroused by perplexity over why the newspaper men should be so interested in her answer. Admitting that the rector had received two letters from Mrs. Millis during his Summer vacation at Islesford, Me., Mrs. Hall said she had read them and found them only descriptive of church services. She was emphatic and earnest in saying that she knew of no reason to have suspected Mrs. Millis and the rector and in denying that any letter or gossip had been carried to her by members of the congregation.

"I don't know what to think," she said when asked about the finding of the bodies together, and when she was persistently pressed for her reactions to all of the stories unfolded in the weeks of investigation, she remarked that she felt "as if I was up against a blank wall."

Traces of weariness were in her face, and her thin, white hands showed knuckles whitened by the pressure of her nervous clasping, as the interview's hour came to an end. Prompt on the dot of 2:30 o'clock Mr. Pfeiffer came into the room, and, with another half nod, half bow, Mrs. Hall, having supplied an answer to every question asked, was led out of the room.

Not at Phillips Farm.

Q.—Have you any comment to make, Mrs. Hall, of that part of Mrs. Gibson's statements in which she says you were present on the Phillips's farm on the night of Sept. 14? A.—What comment could I make? Of course that was not so, that that was all.

Q.—You weren't there! A.—I certainly was not.

Q.—Did you leave your house at any time that night except when you went out with your brother? A.—No.

Q.—Will you tell us your movements, as near as you can recollect, on the night of Sept. 14, on that Friday? A.—Would you rather ask questions? Ask me what I was doing.

Q.—Would you like me to split the question up? Will you tell us your movements on the night of Sept. 14, as near as you can recollect. A.—On that evening?

Q.—Yes. A.—We had our supper about 6:30, and I went out on the porch for a little while. After that I had Mr. Hall's little niece with me, my brother was there, and Mr. Hall was here at supper time. I stayed out on the porch for a while and then a little later came in with this little girl that was with me and played games with her for a while until half past eight or a quarter to nine, somewhere along there, and put her to bed. I went upstairs, at least, and put her to bed and came down again—somewhere around after nine, I should say, and sat here in the library reading until about half past ten and then I went upstairs and prepared for bed and waited for Mr. Hall to come in, and I went to bed but I did not go to sleep.

Did Not Leave House Before 2 A. M.

Q.—And between the time that he left the house and the time that you went out with your brother in the early morning, you did not at any time leave this house? A.—No.

Q.—Do you know now, Mrs. Hall, from whom that telephone call was that evening? A.—That came that evening!

Q.—Yes. A.—They told me it was from a Mrs. Millis, but it only knew that from the outside.

Q.—You did not overhear any of the conversation? A.—No.

Q.—Have you ever been to the Phillips farm in your life that you know of? A.—Never. I did not know it until later that it was the old De Russey place. As a child I have been there twice.

Q.—But not since you were a child? A.—No.

Q.—Mrs. Hall, following the same line, after you had gone to the church about 9 o'clock in the morning and not having found your husband there, did you take any further steps that night between that time and 7 o'clock in the morning to notify your friends and inquire of the police or do anything with regard to your husband's absence? A.—As you all know, I walked down past the Mills house to see if by chance any one was ill, or any light there, knowing that he had gone out, as he left the house, he said, he was going to see about the boat. You know all this; I have repeated it many times. That he was going up to see about this bill that Mrs. Millis spoke of, and I thought that was the last thing he said, and I thought if there was any chance that he mentioned there where he was going, and I went to see if there was any light there or anything to indicate that he was there, but seeing no light I came back.

Remained Out an Hour.

Q.—About how long were you absent from the house? A.—It was about half-past two when I dressed and got up, and I was back here about half-past three. It was about that time.

Q.—And from half-past three until approximately 7 o'clock in the morning you took no further steps to find out what caused your husband's absence? A.—I telephoned to the police.

Q.—That night? A.—No; I think it was about 7 o'clock in the morning.

Q.—But between half-past three and 7 o'clock you didn't make any inquiry? A.—Nothing whatever.

Q.—Was your brother "Willie" with you all the time while you were out? A.—Yes.

Q.—And you never left your house except to go to the Millis home and to the church? A.—No.

Q.—He was with you when you came back? A.—He was with me when I came back.

Q.—Mrs. Hall, have you seen any of the letters that are supposed to have been written by your husband to Mrs. Millis? A.—Very little.

Q.—Are they in his handwriting? A.—I haven't seen them except the one I saw in the prosecutor's office.

Q.—Do you believe that he wrote those letter? A.—I think it is very unlikely that he would.

Q.—Did you every see any letters from Mrs. Millis to your husband or from your husband to Mrs. Millis before this tragedy occurred. A.—Nothing.

Know Rector Wrote to Mrs. Millis.

Q.—Did you know that they were corresponding? A.—I know that he wrote to her last Summer.

Q.—Did you know the contents of any of those letters? A.—No.

Q.—Did anybody ever carry any tale to you or any gossip concerning your husband's relations with Mrs. Millis? A.—Absolutely nothing.

Q.—Nothing? A.—No.

Q.—No member of the church ever brought you a letter or telephoned anything to arouse your suspicions? A.—None whatever.

Q.—Did anybody ever tell you that your husband was writing to Mrs. Millis or she to him? A.—Never.

Q.—Did you ever have any reason before this shooting to suspect your husband's relations, as far as Mrs. Millis is concerned? A.—Absolutely none.

Q.—What is your feeling toward your husband? A.—I feel he is true to me.

Q.—What is your feeling toward Mrs. Millis? A.—I do not know what to say.

Q.—Do you feel at all inimical toward her in your heart? A.—I have no vindictive feeling.

Q.—Do you know anything, Mrs. Hall, which you do not care to tell us for fear it may embarrass somebody that you know, very near and dear to you? A.—Nothing.

Q.—Is other words, you are holding back nothing? A.—Absolutely nothing.

Q.—Have you any idea of any kind or any knowledge as to who might have done this thing? A.—I have absolutely no idea nor had, as near as I am sure, as to motive.

No Quarrel With Mrs. Millis.

Q.—You know nothing about your husband's movements after he left here except what you have heard when you left Mr. Millis's house? A.—Nothing.

Q.—Did you come out without any shoes on? A.—I imagine the preserves and pickles, as far as I can remember.

Q.—Mrs. Hall, this is rather a direct question. Were you ever jealous of Mrs. Millis or any one else? A.—Absolutely never.

Q.—Under what circumstances did you meet Mrs. Millis? A.—Through the church. I do not remember the first time she was in the church.

Married to Rector in July, 1911.

Q.—Just to get some chronological facts. Will you tell us when you first met Mr. Hall? A.—When he came here to St. John's.

Q.—When he came to the church? A.—Yes.

Q.—Will you tell us when you became engaged? A.—In the Spring of 1911.

Q.—And when you were married? A.—July, 1911.

Q.—Was Mr. Henry Stevens invited to the wedding? A.—Certainly.

Q.—He was not present? A.—No.

Q.—Was he in New Brunswick at that time? A.—No.

Q.—Mrs. Hall, do you know Mattie Long? A.—Yes.

Q.—Was Mr. Hall ever engaged to Mattie Long? A.—Never.

Q.—Have you ever fired a gun, Mrs. Hall? A.—Never in my life.

Q.—Ever used a pistol? A.—Never.

Q.—Did he possess a revolver at any time that you knew of? A.—No.

Q.—Did he at the Point Pleasant outing practice with a revolver? A.—I am sure he did not.

Q.—Did you ever ask Barbara to keep an eye on your husband and Mrs. Millis? A.—Of course not.

Says She Never Was at Phillips Farm.

Q.—If you know, will you tell us why Barbara went to the Parker Home on the afternoon of the Thursday? A.—She has a friend who is a patient there.

Q.—You did not send her there? A.—No.

Q.—Do you recall when you were last in the vicinity of the Phillips farm or the De Russey farm? A.—I have never been to the farm; I have never been to the farm, only going out Easton Avenue.

Q.—Do you know a man named Furman Clayton? A.—No.

Q.—Did you ever hear of him? A.—Never until I have been asked that.

Q.—You never heard Dr. Hall mention him? A.—Never.

Q.—Did you ever attend a gathering of the Sigma Phi Society? A.—No.

Q.—Have you asked for an accounting of your brother William's estate? A.—Lately?

Q.—When? A.—No.

Q.—When did you ask the last accounting? A.—The first of the year.

Q.—Do you anticipate asking for another? A.—Oh, well, when the time comes, the first of the year, they will give me another accounting.

Q.—Is Mr. Porter a close friend of yours? A.—A business friend.

Q.—When did he last visit you here? A.—I don't remember. He has only been at the house once or twice.

Q.—Do you know Samuel Levin? A.—I do not.

Q.—Mrs. Hall, again about calling or notifying the police or inquiring of the police, didn't you have any motive in withholding your name at that time? A.—Nothing beyond my idea to see if there had been an accident which might account for Mr. Hall's not coming home. I didn't think of mentioning my name. It just didn't occur to me.

Q.—Didn't it occur to you that it would aid the police materially if they knew exactly who was missing? A.—No.

Didn't Know Mrs. Millis Was Missing.

Q.—At that time did you know that Mrs. Millis was also missing? A.—No—I say no, I don't think I knew when I telephoned—I telephoned before I saw Mr. Millis, I think.

Q.—And it wasn't until you saw Mr. Millis that you knew Mrs. Millis was missing? A.—No.

Q.—Did you immediately attach significance to the fact that they were both missing? A.—I thought it was strange, yes.

Q.—Did you suggest to Mr. Millis that he notify the police. A.—Not that I remember.

Q.—Did it occur to you then that they might be together? A.—I hardly know how to answer. The fact that they had both disappeared, that he had gone to see her, I thought, perhaps, some accident had overtaken them both.

Q.—But your understanding was that he went to the Millis' house to see her. Was it not? A.—Yes.

Q.—You didn't understand that he was going anywhere else with her? A.—Oh, no, I had no idea of that.

Q.—Now, remember, Mrs. Hall, on Friday evening—I think it was the day of the tragedy—that Mr. Millis came up here. A.—I don't remember that he did.

Q.—You don't remember that he did? A.—No.

Q.—You went down twice to the house, didn't you, after that first time? A.—Once.

Q.—That was what time? A.—A little after half-past twelve.

Q.—And you didn't go in the afternoon when he was putting ice in the refrigerator? A.—No.

No Clue in Rector's Past.

Q.—Did you have any conversation with him at that time? A.—I asked if he had heard anything, and he told me no, and I told him I heard nothing.

Q.—And that was all the conversation? A.—Yes.

Q.—So, you don't remember his coming here in the meantime, when a relative of yours was present and said, "You have a daughter, why don't you put her to work?" A.—I don't remember anything like that.

Q.—Did you, on the day that Hall disappeared, or rather the Saturday following, did you give Barbara some silk shirts of his to wash? A.—Yes, I did.

Q.—Did you say anything to the effect that you thought he was dead? A.—No.

Q.—You made no remark of that kind? A.—No, nothing whatever.

Q.—Is there anything in your husband's past life that you can think of that will give you a theory? A.—I said I can think of absolutely nothing.

Q.—He had never angered any set of people in New Brunswick by any of his sermons? A.—I have never heard of such a thing. I cannot imagine it.

Q.—Mrs. Hall, were you born in this house? A.—No, I was not.

Q.—You were born in New Brunswick. A.—I was not. I was born in South Carolina.

Q.—We understand, Mrs. Hall, that your husband was worth about $40,000. A.—I don't know how you understand it.

Q.—I thought I heard mention of the safe deposit box. A.—He is not.

Puts Hall's Estate at $30,000.

Q.—Can you give us any idea as to the extent of his estate? A.—I should say $20,000, and I am not sure about that.

Q.—Can you tell us whta the source of it was? A.—Is That necessary? All these questions? Have they anything to do with it?

Q.—The question has been put to me by some one else. I suppose it bears somewhat on this blackmail theory? A.—His had securities. About $20,000 worth of securities. All the securities which are on his books.

Q.—Half of which came from your mother's legacy? A.—Yes.

Q.—Where did the other come from? A.—Is that necessary?

Q.—You, of course, are at liberty not to answer, but were they securities, liberty bonds, that could be turned into cash? A.—Oh, they are there.

Q.—Well, if you don't care to answer it, I don't suppose it makes any difference. A.—I don't really see what difference it makes.

Q.—You were born in South Carolina? A.—Yes.

Q.—What part? A.—Aiken.

Q.—Can you assign any reason why Mrs. Gibson tells the story that she does? A.—I haven't the faintest remote idea.

Q.—Do you know her? A.—I have never seen her.

Q.—You did not meet her, then, at a church rummage sale? A.—I never saw her.

Q.—Would you be willing to confront her if it became necessary? A.—I would do whatever the prosecutors wish me to do.

Says She Has Nothing to Worry About.

Q.—You have no fear in your mind of the outcome of this case at all? A.—No. My absolute innocence of any suspicion—I don't see that I have the slightest thing to worry about.

Q.—How many times, Mrs. Hall, did you see Mr. Millis on the Friday? A.—I know of two times. He says he came here in the evening, but I don't remember.

Q.—When you were first notified that your husband's body was found, were you also told of Mrs. Millis's body being found? A.—I think so; I think immediately.

Q.—Had her body been identified at that time? A.—I think so. I am not sure. I think so.

Q.—Will you tell us what you thought when you heard they had been found dead together? A.—I had no thoughts; I didn't know what to think.

Q.—Was that your immediate reaction? A.—I was so absolutely stunned I had no thought.

Q.—And then, when that passed, when you realized what this all was, what did you think? A.—I say I didn't know what to think; I couldn't think.

Q.—I know, but the next day, as soon as you did think? A.—I can't tell you any more than I didn't know what to think.

Q.—What do you think now? A.—I don't know what to think now.

Q.—Mrs. Hall, suppose you had known that the relations between your husband and Mrs. Millis were very intimate, what would you have done? A.—What a strange question. Of course, I would have spoken to him.

Q.—You had no thought of anything except a quiet outcome of it. A.—Of course not.

Said He Was to See About Bill.

Q.—When your husband left the house that night, did he ask what time it was, or did he consult his watch? A.—Not that I know of.

Q.—Did he hold any conversation with you before going out? A.—No, beyond saying he was going to see about the bill.

Q.—You didn't say, "Where are you going?" A.—No.

Q.—Did he tell you he expected to be back at a definite time? A.—No, I don't think he said anything about when he was going to be back.

Q.—When did your father die, Mrs. Hall? A.—He died when I was a baby.

Q.—Did he build the present Carpender house? A.—No.

Q.—Can you tell us just exactly how you have been feeling all during these seven weeks? This thing has been on your mind now for nearly seven weeks. Won't you just tell us, in your own way, just exactly all of your reactions and all of your feelings about all of this; all your searchings, I mean your mental searchings, for a solution? A.—I feel as if I was up against a blank wall. I have no idea what to think.

Q.—I mean your feelings. I mean about the whole thing, all of these complications, and the insinuations of the people, that you are guilty. You must realize that a lot of people say so. A.—It seems to me the most mysterious that any one should think such things. I cannot understand it, of course. Didn't you been eager for this opportunity to speak and tell how you stood about it? A.—Frankly, I have heard so many things in the papers, that I feel it is very uncertain what goes into the newspapers at all.

Thought It Wise to Say Nothing.

Q.—Mrs. Hall, why didn't you make us a statement in the first place? A.—It seemed wiser not to do it.

Q.—Wiser to you or your advisers? A.—Well, in talking it over with my family.

Q.—What has been your general feeling with respect to publicity, not about this case, but all your life? A.—I have all my life avoided publicity in every possible way. There is no one who has led a more retired life.

Q.—Was that the reason that you did not tell the police your name when you called up? Was that the thought? A.—I don't know whether that was the thought.

Q.—Will you go on and tell us just exactly how you feel about publicity in any instance that you may relate, or your own feeling about publicity in general? A.—When I first went to the prosecutors they asked me all sorts of questions, as you have been doing, and I told them everything I possibly could everything I knew, and I said to them I thought it was the prosecutors' place to work this out. I have no vindictive spirit, and it seemed to me that it was entirely up to the authorities to work on a subject of this kind, so that outside of that I thought I should just keep quiet and do nothing.

Q.—There was a suggestion, some time past, about your offering a reward. Why didn't you do it? This suggestion came to you I believe? A.—Why should I offer a reward. It would be a most awful thought.

Q.—Just why? A.—Why, to offer a reward to have some one come out and tell of a murder.

Q.—You are anxious, however, that this whole thing should be cleared up? A.—Why, of course.

Thinks Officials Were Lax.

Q.—But you are not satisfied with what the authorities have done? A.—No, but it seems that they let many things go by.

Q.—Have you any suggestion to make about their incompetency—I am talking about Beckman and Stricker? A.—I cannot explain any more than a feeling to me that offers of reward—

Q.—And who could they possibly be shielding, or could they be shielding any one, in your opinion? A.—Not that I know of.

Q.—The question is, why do you think or feel that an offer of a reward would be awful when a reward might help to clear this thing up? A.—I don't think it would help.

Q.—What I would like to ask you, Mrs. Hall, is just exactly why what feeling would prompt you to think it would be terrible to offer a reward? Just put it your own way. A.—I don't think I can put it in words.

Q.—Mrs. Hall, you said a little while ago that it seemed as if the authorities have let things go by? What was in your mind, anything particular? A.—Well, I am told in the beginning they took no photographs, and it was three weeks before an autopsy was performed, and it seems to me if there was to be an autopsy that it should have been done right away.

Q.—Did Mr. Millis ever make a remark after the tragedy, at the firehouse, that something terrible had happened? A.—Not that I know of.

Q.—Will you tell us why you acted through Mr. Florance to notify the police about your husband's absence, instead of your own relatives? A.—I sent to Mr. Florance the afternoon, that Friday, and I had business dealings with him, other business, and I felt a lawyer was the person to send for.

Sent for Mr. Florance.

Q.—And Mr. Florance made an appointment for about noon and did not arrive until 4 o'clock, but you did not, in the meantime, ask any of your relatives to take the matter up with the police? A.—No.

Q.—Will you tell us why you did not? A.—I was simply waiting for Mr. Florance, to see what he would tell me to do or advise me what to do.

Q.—You mentioned the matter to none of your relatives? A.—Excepting Mr. Hall's sisters.

Q.—Who were out of town? A.—Yes.

Q.—Were you concerned that day, from the time you knew of Mr. Hall's absence, with the possibility of the whole thing getting in the newspapers? A.—It seemed as if nothing else must come to me without making everything public.

Q.—What did you mean by the statement, if you made it. "This is an awful mistake." Did you make any such statement like that after the tragedy? A.—I don't remember any such thing.

Q.—Do you want to see the murderers punished? A.—I don't want to see anybody punished. I want to get the solution. I haven't a vindictive feeling to see any one punished. A man who has once committed a murder is not a safe person to have at large, but as far as a vindictive feeling, I have none.

Q.—Is it your desire to see the person or persons who killed your husband, or Mrs. Millis, apprehended? A.—Naturally; they are not safe people to be at large.

Q.—Did that occur to you when the question of offering a reward was up. A.—I don't know what I thought when I first heard of a reward.

Pfeiffer Supplants Florance.

Q.—Did you yourself appeal to Justice Parker for an appointment of a special prosecutor? A.—You saw Mr. Pfeiffer's letter.

Q.—No, that was to the Governor. A.—No, I made no other effort.

Q.—Did you suggest to Mr. Pfeiffer that he do that? A.—That he do what?

Q.—To ask that the State take hold of the investigation. A.—Just that letter was written to Mr. Edwards. I suggested nothing else.

Q.—Mrs. Hall, Mr. Florance was your first attorney when Mr. Pfeiffer took it over, very efficiently; what was the reason for the change? A.—It seemed wiser to have some one, perhaps, not so connected with New Brunswick.

Q.—Isn't Mr. Florance still acting for you? A.—No.

Q.—He is no longer your family attorney? A.—I have called on him in connection with another affair entirely.

Q.—Yes, but I understood you to say that he was the man whom you turned to to handle this thing, he had done your previous business. A.—I had some previous business with Mr. Florance and he is still on that particular business.

Q.—And he had nothing to do with the investigation, Mr. Pfeiffer has taken that over? A.—Yes.

Q.—Well, hasn't he and Mr. Pfeiffer conferred? A.—Oh, yes.

Not Related to Beckman or Stricker.

Q.—Are you in any way, no matter how distant, related to Mr. Beckman? A.—No.

Q.—To Dr. Long of Somerville? A.—No.

Q.—Or to Mr. Stricker? A.—No.

Q.—Mrs. Hall, do you believe in divorce?

A.—That is a large question.

Q.—Let us have your opinion on it. A.—I would not go into that question.

Q.—You must have thought of that question a good deal? A.—Naturally.

Q.—Won't you let us have your views on that subject? A.—No, it is not a question to go into here.

Q.—You were asked what you would have done if you were told of the intimacy, or the alleged intimacy, of Mrs. Millis and Mr. Hall, and you said that was a curious question. That is why you were asked if you believed in divorce. Would you have divorced him if it was put up to you? A.—I won't answer any such question.

Q.—Mrs. Hall, when you were at the prosecutor's office did you see one of the letters your husband is alleged to have written Mrs. Millis? A.—Just a newspaper copy of one.

Q.—A newspaper facsimile? A.—Yes.

Did Not Guarantee Signature.

Q.—Did they ask you whether the facsimile appeared to be in your husband's writing? A.—They showed me a signature of his in the facsimile and I said it looked like it, but I could not guarantee it.

Q.—Did you examine it at all closely? A.—No.

Q.—Weren't you interested in determining whether it was his handwriting? A.—The letters did not seem to interest me at all.

Q.—Or the diary? A.—No.

Q.—Have you read any extracts from the diary? A.—No.

Q.—Did you know in May last Summer that Dr. Hall was keeping a diary? A.—No.

Q.—You never saw that diary? A.—No.

Q.—Did you know that Mrs. Millis kept a diary during the same period? A.—No.

Q.—When you were at the Prosecutor's Office last, did he indicate to you what line he was working on in this case? A.—No.

Q.—Was your father ever temporarily or otherwise insane? A.—Never.

Q.—Has there been any insanity in the family? A.—None in my own family. Is there any in any of the collateral branches?

Q.—In the collateral branches where it has been traced through marriage?

Q.—Will you tell us what branches that was in? A.—One of my great uncle's wife became insane and some of their children were very peculiar.

Q.—The name was not Stevens? A.—No.

Q.—When was that traced? A.—Oh, that was all years ago.

Q.—Nothing of the sort has come up in recent years, in the last ten or fifteen years? A.—I have never heard of anything like it.

Won't Discuss Mrs. Millis.

Q.—Mrs. Hall, may I ask you from your knowledge of Mrs. Millis, which I believe covered some period of years, if you would let us have your estimate of her character, and what kind of a woman she was? A.—I do not like to describe her character at all; I really dislike to.

Q.—You knew her quite well? A.—I knew her quite well.

Q.—There are few people who did know her who would be more capable of describing her character more intelligently than you, Mrs. Hall. A.—I do not think I could describe her character. I am not at all—

Q.—Mrs. Hall, don't you think, and doesn't your adviser think, it is tremendously important from a legal standpoint that you discover whether Mr. Hall wrote this diary and those letters to Mrs. Millis and whether there was any intimacy between them? A.—I don't even see that that would tell you who was the criminal.

Q.—Don't you think it widens the sphere of motive if a married man and a married woman are conducting an illicit love affair? A.—I suppose it would.

Q.—Isn't Mr. Pfeiffer tremendously interested to know if those letters and the diary are correct? A.—That don't interest me very much.

Q.—You want to find the possible motive for the murders? A.—Of course I want to find.

Q.—If your husband was in love with any woman, every person connected with that woman who could shoot a gun might have killed him? (No answer.)

Asks for a Facsimile.

Q.—Are you willing to give us a facsimile of Dr. Hall's handwriting? A.—Haven't you got that?

Q.—A real facsimile to compare it with the diary and the letters. Samples of handwriting so we would comepare? A.—Do you wish to have it?

Q.—A paper printed the diary and letters. Have you any objection to that? A.—Haven't you got some samples of his handwriting?

Q.—To learn that the writing is correct in the diary and the letters. We have no samples from his family. A.—I can give you his signature. I cannot give you any of my letters.

Q.—You could get it from the marriage certificate? A.—You could get it from many places.

Q.—You know, of course, that would be more convincing that Dr. Hall was in love with Mrs. Millis? A.—No, I would not.

Q.—If the diary and the letters are true, he must have been. Do you agree with that? A.—Yes.

Q.—You haven't read the diary and letters before? A.—No.

Q.—Why not? A.—I haven't read any of the papers.

Reaffirms Faith in Her Husband.

Q.—That is the tremendous point of the whole case so far? A.—I had such faith in my husband. If he were here he could explain—he could explain if he were here.

Q.—You would not be convinced that your husband was carrying on an affair with Mrs. Millis, even if you saw in the diary intimate details that were known to no one except Mrs. Millis? A.—I know him too well for him to be in love.

Q.—Was Mrs. Millis a "vamp"? Do you think she was a woman of good character? A.—I do not care to say.

Q.—You really do not pretend to say? A.—No, I do not.

Q.—You really do not know whether she was a good character or not? A.—No.

Q.—You do not think she deliberately set her cap for Mr. Hall? A.—I never saw any indication of it.

Q.—Now, what do you think of it? A.—Now, what do I think?

Q.—Yes? A.—I do not know—I do not know what to think.

Q.—Mrs. Hall. A.—I do not know what to think.

Q.—Mrs. Hall, have you changed your opinion recently regarding Mrs. Millis? I mean by that, covering the period of, say, six months? A.—Do you mean in the six weeks or in the six months?

Q.—Six months? A.—I have not changed my opinion of her, unless you speak of these six weeks. Of course, I have had a good deal to think in this time.

Q.—Prior to the murder, you have not changed the opinion you had of Mrs. Millis for some time? A.—No.

Q.—Is there any other thing you would like to get into this record? Just go ahead and talk about it, without any questions. A.—I don't know what more to say.

Q.—Will you give us that signature? A.—Yes.

TESTIFIES MRS. ROSIER THREATENED HUSBAND

Brother-in-Law Says She Cried 'I'll Kill You' Several Days Before Shooting.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 1.—Mrs. Catherine Rosier, who slew her husband and his stenographer, and is on trial for the murder of the latter, collapsed today and was carried out of court unconscious shortly before adjournment.

The trial's thirteenth day was marked by a renewal of the prosecution's attack on Mrs. Rosier's character before her marriage and testimony of Arthur Rosier, brother of the slain man, contradicting statements made by the defendant and denying the charge that he had forced his attentions on her as part of a plan to help his brother obtain a divorce. Dr. Charles W. Burr and Dr. Horace Phillips, prosecution alienists, testified that Mrs. Rosier was sane at the time of the shooting. Defense alienists had testified she was emotionally insane when she committed the crime.

Arthur Rosier testified that several days before the shooting Mrs. Rosier rushed at her husband with a milk bottle in her hand, crying, "I'll kill you!" He said Mrs. Rosier was unduly jealous of girls at work in the office of her husband, frequently commenting that she supposed her husband was "running around with Gerry Reckitt."

Mrs. Rosier collapsed during the testimony of Dr. Burr. Three minutes were required to revive her.

SISTER PHILLIPS WITNESS.

Testifies Mother and Accused Daughter Were Subject to Epilepsy.

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 1.—Mrs. Clara Phillips once attacked her sister, Mrs. R. S. Jackson, while suffering from a periodical epileptic convulsion, Mrs. Jackson testified today in Mrs. Phillips's trial for the murder of Mrs. Alberta Meadows.

Mrs. Phillips, she said, threw her across a trunk and beat her with a shoe, inflicting a wound on her head of which the scar still remains.

Mrs. Jackson testified that her sister would loss control of herself for from five minutes to two hours when one of the seizures came. Twice during 1917, she said, Mrs. Phillips went into convulsions, bled from the mouth and tore her hair.

The witness said her mother, Mrs. Hannah J. Weaver, was subject to epileptic convulsions and was now an invalid at Tampico, Mexico.

Mrs. Wilhelmina Atkinson testified that she and Mrs. Phillips roomed together as chorus girls at San Antonio in 1918, and described one occasion when she had found Mrs. Phillips in a convulsion and the room looking "like a madhouse." While she was testifying Mrs. Phillips suddenly burst into laughter and stuffed a handkerchief into her mouth to suppress the sound.

The witness looked at Mrs. Phillips, listened to another question and then when she tried to answer it she likewise burst into helpless laughter.

The obstacle the authorities have been up against is that the man who they thought answered Mrs. Gibson's description last of all has an apparently unbreakable alibi for his actions on the night of the murder. They have practically dropped him from consideration for the time being. That Mrs. Gibson may have been mistaken in her report of the name used enters into this phase of the investigation.

That Mr. Mott may be getting his case into form for presentation to the Grand Jury was indicated yesterday when he sent Bertillion experts and a photographer from Newark to New Brunswick to take official photographs and fingerprints for formal evidence. The experts were Edward H. Schwartz, Chief of the Bureau of Identification of the Newark Police Department; Charles E. Derivaux, his assistant, and John L. Day, official photographer of the department.

Phillips Farm Officially Photographed.

Accompanied by Detective Mason, the experts met State Troopers Lamb and Dickman at the Court House in New Brunswick, and all went to the Phillips farm. They remained there for four hours, making official records. They took pictures of De Russy's Lane, along which Mrs. Gibson says she rode her mule the night of the murder; of the juncture of Easton Avenue and De Russy's Lane, where the automobile turned in and illuminated the couple described by Mrs. Gibson; the place in the lane thirty feet or so in from Easton Avenue, where Mrs. Gibson says the couple were when she first saw them; the place where the Diagonal Lane juts off De Russy's Lane to the Phillips farm house, and which is the lane on or near which Hall and Mrs. Millis were caught; the abandoned Phillips farm house, which the rector and Mrs. Millis are believed to have visited before they were caught; the place where Lover's Lane starts from De Russy's Lane to the crabapple tree; the spot in De Russy's Lane to where she stopped to watch the four people she heard quarreling, and the scene of the murder itself, near the crabapple trtee off Lover's Lane. They also drew diagrams of the various places that figure in the story.

Detective Mason told reporters last night about a mysterious episode that took place while the Newark experts were making maps and photographs at the scene of the crime. According to Mason, a well-dressed woman got into the line of the cameras. He asked her to step out of the way and she asked:

"Are you newspaper photographers?"

"No," Mason said he replied. "We're officials."

"Well," he quoted her as replying, "it's too late now for pictures. The —s said they could get away with anything in this town except murder. It looks as if they had got away with it this time."

According to the detectives, the woman was asked her name, and replied that she was the wife of Mayor John J. Morrison of New Brunswick. Reporters saw Mrs. Morrison later and she denied that any such incident had occurred.

The family said to have been mentioned by the woman is one of the richest and most influential in New Brunswick.

Seek Fingerprints on Letters.

Returning to the court house at 2:30 o'clock in the afternoon, the fingerprint experts examined the various exhibits in the case, including the ten love letters written by Mrs. Millis to Hall, and found between the bodies. There were blood spots on these notes, as if they had been thrown on the ground near Mrs. Millis before the woman's throat was cut, according to the authorities. Detective George Totten of Somerset County previously had caused an expert examination of the letters to be made for fingerprints, without finding any; but it was hoped that the new men by some chance, despite the seven weeks which have elapsed since the murder, might find some. The authorities believe that if they learn who handled the letters before the murder besides Hall or Mrs. Millis, they will have the key to the mystery.

Other exhibits examined yesterday included the clothing worn by the rector and Mrs. Millis when they were killed, the coat which Mrs. Hall sent to a Philadelphia dyer after the murder, and the clothing which her eccentric brother, Willie Stevens, sent to the New Brunswick cleaner after the murder.

Following the examination in Prosecutor Joseph E. Stricker's office in the Middlesex County court house, the detectives and experts returned to De Russy's Lane and followed it to Hamilton Street, where Mrs. Gibson lives, making pictures of the route she followed when she rode out on the mule that night, to pursue the wagon she thought contained corn stolen from her farm. At the end of this excursion, the experts returned to Newark.

Pfeiffer Denies Bribery Story.

Charges that Mrs. Gibson, after her identity and part of her story had appeared in the newspapeprs, had been approached with an attempt at bribery by private detectives employed by the Hall family, were denied yesterday by Timothy Newell Pfeiffer. Discussing a statement by Mrs. Gibson that "money and influence were behind attempts to attack her credibility, and that she had complained to the officials because a man had attempted to bribe her, Mr. Pfeiffer made the following statement:

"Last Thursday night a State trooper called at the Hall home and left word that Felix de Martini, a private detective for my employ, was wanted at the prosecutor's office. De Martini was not at the Hall house that night, and did not communicate with me until the following night. At that time I called him to my home in New York and made arrangements to go to New Brunswick with him the next morning, Saturday, to see what was wanted.

"On arriving in New Brunswick I telephoned to the prosecutor's office to see if Judge Mott was there. They told me he might be in his law office in Newark, but when I called up there they told me that they did not know where he was. Then I went to the court house with de Martini and called at the prosecutor's office. Not having been able to get in touch with Judge Mott, I asked for the State Troopers, because it was a State Trooper who had called at the Hall house. None of the State Troopers was there, but Detective Mason was there, and he told me what was wanted.

Mrs. Gibson Made Complaint.

"Mr. Mason said that Mrs. Gibson had complained that a man had called at her house after the publication of her story and when she went to the window to talk to him, had told her something to the effect that it would pay her better to keep silent than to get into the case. She had given a description of the man which Detective Ferd A. David of the Middlesex county detective force had said answered the description of de Martini.

"De Martini stated emphatically that he was not the man, and I told Mr. Mason that I had given de Martini specific instructions not to go near Mrs. Gibson. I also told Mr. Mason that neither de Martini nor myself nor any representative of mine had been near Mrs. Gibson, or had communicated with her, directly or indirectly. Moreover, that statement holds as true today as it did when I made it to Mr. Mason last Saturday."

In an interview yesterday, Mrs. Gibson said: "They are trying to discredit my story in order to protect the woman I named as the accomplice of the murderer. The people who are attacking me want money and influence, and the persons they want to protect have this money and influence. That explains the whole business.

"I am sorry for this woman," she went on. "Her trouble is great enough already, but this thing was on my mind, and I had to tell it after I saw that other people who knew all about it had no intention of giving their information to the authorities. I am not ashamed of anything in my past life. I never did anything to any one."

Mrs. Gibson said she had no idea who was in the wagon she followed down De Russy's Lane to Easton Avenue that night. If he could be found, she said, it would be of great help to the authorities. She said that she could tell much more than she had, and would make a full statement of her story after an arrest had been made.

According to Mrs. Gibson, the man she saw with the woman in the wagon looked very much like a negro. She said she had positively identified the woman who was present at the murder, but that this woman had not done the killing.

It was learned yesterday that Mrs. Gibson's mother, Mrs. Salome Cerrener, had moved from 330 Avenue A, Bayonne, to New Brunswick, on Sept. 14, the day of the murder. She is supposed to have been accompanied by her second husband, and by two other members of her family. She could not be located last night in New Brunswick.

Early History of Mrs. Gibson.

Mrs. Madeline Williams, a sister of Mrs. Gibson, lives at 373 Avenue C, Bayonne. Seen there yesterday, Mrs. Williams said that her sister's maiden name had been Jane Eisleitner, that she had been born in New York, and that she had left home at the age of 14. The family had lived on Leroy Street in New York. After being away for some years Jane Eisleitner returned home, and then went away again. According to Mrs. Williams, her sister lived in Bayonne fourteen or fifteen years ago and kept a poultry store and candy stand at 187 Broadway, Bayonne.

Mrs. Williams said that her sister took several rooms in her furnished room house at 27 East First Street at that time, and lived there for several months with her two children. Two men boarders accompanied her sister from her former home, and, according to Mrs. Williams, she thinks one of these men was named Easton. Mrs. Williams said that her sister left Bayonne about that time, and was not heard from for several years, when she notified her that she was living on the farm outside New Brunswick, and Mrs. Williams visited her.

According to Mrs. Williams, her sister went by the name of Mrs. Jane Gibson when in Bayonne. Mrs. Gibson has told reporters that her first husband was a minister named Gibson.

CHAMPION CASE JURY OUT.

Woman Accused of Slaying O'Connell Breaks Down in Court.

CLEVELAND, Nov. 1.—The case of Mrs. Mabel Champion, charged with the murder of Thomas A. O'Connell, carnival promoter, of New Haven, Conn., went to the jury late today, and, after deliberating about two hours, the jurors were taken to dinner.

Judge Maurice Bernon ordered that if the j
